

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

AT THE GOVT PRESS
ALLAHABAD

Paid.—ON HER MAJESTY'S SERVICE ONLY.

Registered

To The Librarian

AL

Bodleian Library

A. Wiseman

ASST. SUPPT GOVT PRESS, N.W.P. & OUDH.

Oxford
England

Arch. d. 774

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION - UNION POSTALE UNIVERSELLE
BRITISH INDIA INDE BRITANNIQUE
POST CARD CARTE POSTALE

THE ADDRESS ONLY TO BE WRITTEN ON THIS SIDE.

Librarian

Bodleian Library

Oxford

England

1

With the Author's Compliments

A GRAMMAR
OF THE
CLASSICAL ARABIC LANGUAGE,

TRANSLATED AND COMPILED FROM THE WORKS
OF THE
MOST APPROVED NATIVE OR NATURALIZED AUTHORITIES.

By MORTIMER SLOPER HOWELL, C.I.E.,

H. M.'s BENGAL CIVIL SERVICE,

Member of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, and Fellow of the University of Calcutta, and of the Anjuman-i-Panjab.

PUBLISHED
UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNMENT, N.-W. PROVINCES.

IN AN INTRODUCTION AND FOUR PARTS.

The Introduction : and Part I.—The Noun.

ALLAHABAD:

PRINTED AT THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH GOVERNMENT PRESS, 1886.

S. Long, 31 m. 28
1 3

NOTICE.

PAGES XXV-XXVI of the Contents and 87A-88A of the Notes are to be substituted for the corresponding pages given in the 1st Fasciculus of Part I.

M. S. HOWELL.

The 14th July, 1886.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

- P. xxv, l. 23. Read "cop."
P. xxvii, l. 2. Read "met."
P. xxviii, l. l. Read "explanation"—ibid. Read أَفْعَلْ.
P. xxix, l. 21. Read "latent"—l. 29. Read "pron."—l. 31. Read "gen."—l. l. Read "pron."
P. xxxi, l. 19. Read "in the"—ibid. Read "574".
P. xli, l. 16. Read وَبِ .
P. xlii, l. 22. Read رَيْثُ .
P. li, l. 1. Read "form of the sing."
P. 638, l. 2. R here enters upon the discussion of the methods allowable in interrogation with مَنْ about a mentioned rational det., in which case the ordinary method is to repeat the det., putting it in the nom. after مَنْ; so that, when a man says أَخَا زَيْدٍ or رَأَيْتَ زَيْدًا , you say مَنْ زَيْدٌ or مَنْ زَيْدٌ Who is Zaid or the brother of Zaid?
P. 698, l. 12. Before "proper" insert "[generic]"—ll. 14 and 17. For "[proper]" read "[personal proper]".
P. 709, l. 16. "their likes" are preps.
P. 760, l. 18. For "(i.e.)" read "[i.e.]"
P. 93A, l. 20 and l. 29. Read "l. l."
P. 94A, l. 10. Read "l. l."
P. 95A, l. 19. Read "if her".
P. 96A, ll. 2-3. Read "AlYaman" and "dependent"—l. 19. Read رَأَيْتَ and رَأَيْتَ .
P. 98A, l. l. Read "transmits".
P. 104A, l. l. Read "and inceptive [423], an answer".
P. 114A, l. 17. Read "context"—l. l. Read "not an".
P. 115A, l. 1. Read "pron. as".
P. 117A, l. 13. Read "His"—ll. 13-14. Put "His name . . . my knowledge" within marks of quotation.
P. 130A, l. l. Put a comma after "him".
P. 131A, l. 1. Read "One of".
P. 132A, l. 25. Read "AlMansūr".

Additions and Corrections to the Abbreviations of References.

* AKB. The Khizānat alʿAdab wa Lubb Lubāb Lisān alʿArab (c. 1073—1079), an Exposition of the evidentiary verses cited in the Commentary of R upon the IH, by the Shaikh ‘Abd ALKĀDIR Ibn ‘Umar ALBAGHDĀDĪ, resident of Cairo, the Philologist (b. 1030, d. 1093), printed at Bulāk in 1292.

* Amr. The Gloss (c. 1188) of the Shaikh Muḥammad ALAMĪR alAzhari upon the ML, printed in Egypt in 1299.

* CD. The Commentary of Khfj upon the D, cited from extracts given in Thorbecke’s Notes on the D, and latterly from the edition printed at Constantinople in 1300.

* D. The Durrat alGhawwāṣ by H, edited by Thorbecke, and printed at Constantinople with the Commentary of Khfj.

* EC. The Commentary of the SAYYID MUḤAMMAD Ibn ‘Alī Ibn AlḤusain alMūsawī alʿĀmilī alJubāʿī, the Philologist (b. 946, d. 1009), upon the evidentiary verses of the C, cited from an incomplete MS.

[The Author is so named in the LB, p. 42, and in the preface to the EC. The Amal alĀmil, as noticed in the LB, wrongly attributes the work to the Sayyid Ḥusain (d. 1069), son of the Sayyid Muḥammad.]

* FA. The Fawāʿid alKālāʾid fī Mukhtaṣar Sharḥ ashShawāhid, commonly called AshShawāhid aṣṢuḡhrā, an abridgment of the MN, by its Author, cited from a MS.

[The HKh. IV. 393 calls it the Farāʾid alFawāʾid.]

* Khfj. The Raiḥānat alAlibbā wa Zahrat alḤayāt adDunyā, a Biographical Dictionary of Contemporary Celebrities, by Maulānā the Qaḍī Shihāb adDīn Aḥmad Ibn Muḥammad ALKHAFAJĪ alMiṣrī alḤanaṣī, the Philologist (d. 1069), printed in Egypt in 1294.

* Khls. The Khulāṣat alAthar fī Aʿyān alKarn alḤādīʿAshar, a Biographical Dictionary of the Celebrities of the 11th Century, by the Maulā MUḤAMMAD AMIN Ibn Faḍl Allāh ALMUḤIBBĪ, great-grandson of MDE, alḤamawī by origin, adDimashkī by birth and abode, alḤanaṣī, the Historian and Philologist (b. 1061, d. 1111), printed in Egypt in 1284.

* LB. The Lu'lu'at al-Bahrain fi-Ijāzat li-Kurratay-i-l-Ain (c. 1182), a Series of Biographies of the Learned Men of Al-Bahrain, by the Shaikh YŪSUF Ibn Aḥmad Ibn Ibrāhīm ad-Darāzī AL-Baḥrānī, the Philologist (b. 1107), lithographed at Bombay.

MDE. The Ḳaḍī Muḥibb ad-Dīn Abu-l Faḍl Muḥammad Ibn Taḳī ad-Dīn Abī Bakr al-'Ulwānī al-Ḥamawī by birth and education, ad-Dimashḳī al-Ḥanafī, known as MUḤIBB AD-DĪN EFFENDĪ, the Philologist (b. 949, d. 1016), great-grandfather of the Author of the Khl̄s.

* MN. The Commentary named Al-Maḳāṣid an-Naḥwīya fī Sharḥ Shawāhid Shurūḥ al-Alfiya, commonly called Ash-Shawāhid al-Kubrā (c. 806), by the Ḳaḍī Badr ad-Dīn Abū Muḥammad Maḥmūd Ibn Aḥmad as-Sarūjī al-Ḥanafī, known as AL-'AINĪ, born at 'Ain Tāb, the Jurist and Grammarian (b. 762, d. 855), upon the evidentiary verses cited in the Commentaries of BD, IUK, IA, and IHsh upon the IM, printed upon the margin of the AKB.

* N. The Commentary named Tanzīl al-Āyāt 'ala-sh-Shawāhid min al-Ābyāt, by MDE, upon the evidentiary verses of the K, edited by Abū-l-Wafā Naṣr al-Ḥurīnī, and printed at Bulāḳ in 1281.

* NA. The Nuḣat al-Alibbā fī Tabakāt al-Uḍabā, a Treatise on the Classes of the Philologists, by KIamb, printed in Egypt in 1294.

* SD. The Silk ad-Durar fī A'yān al-Ḳarn ath-Thānī-'Ashar, a Biographical Dictionary of the Celebrities of the 12th Century, by the Sayyid Ṣadr ad-Dīn Abu-l-Faḍl MUḤAMMAD KHALĪL EFFENDĪ Ibn 'Alī Effendī al-Murādī al-Bukhārī ad-Dimashḳī an-Naḳshbandī, the Historian and Philologist, printed at Bulāḳ in 1301 from a MS written at Damascus in 1211.

- agreement of the pre. and post. ns. in number and gender is a condition of such government ... 451—465
- § 150. The subst.—definition given by IH—the subst. after $\frac{3}{\text{J}}$ how included in this definition—definition given by IM and IHsh—classification—best construction in the case of the subst. of blunder—the subst. of pure blunder or of forgetfulness not allowable in poetry ... 465—468
- § 151. The ant. is subsidiary to the mention of the subst.—but is not meant to be rejected—refutation of the theory that it is virtually rejected as regards the sense—and as regards the letter ... 468—469
- § 152. The op. of the ant. is virtually repeated with the subst. ... 469
- § 153. The subst. and ant. need not agree in determinateness and indeterminateness—but may be both det., both indet., or one det. and the other indet.—the indet. subst. for a det. ought to be qualified—application of this rule ... 469—471
- § 154. The subst. and ant. are both explicit ns., both prons., or one an explicit n. and the other a pron.—the partial subst. and the subst. of implication need a pronominal cof.—omission of the cop.—theory that the J may supply the place of the pron.—or that the suppression of the pron. may be explained by holding the subst. to be treated as a corrob.—the total subst. does not need a cop.—the interrog. Hamza prefixed to the subst. for an interrog. n.—the v. a subst. for the v.—anacoluthon—order of the subst. and other appos.—suppression of the ant. ... 471—478
- § 155. Syndesis—the synd. expl.—the other appos. how excluded by this definition—the synd. expl. must be prim.—its concord with the ant.—dispute as to whether the synd. expl. and its ant. may be indets.—the synd. expl., being like the ep., must contain the generic Jf when its ant. is a dem.

	Page.
—but is allowed by S to be anarthrous when the dem. is a voc. —and by S and Zd to consist of 2 sings. coupled together when the dem. is a du. —the latter construction disallowed by S, Zd, and others in the ep. —but allowed by S when the du. is a voc.	478—481
§ 156. The synd. expl. how distinguishable from the subst. —either allowable—the synd. expl. necessary—the subst. necessary—differences between them—R's theory of their identity—explanation of their alleged differences— exs. where either is admissible—suppression of the ant. ...	481—491
§ 157. Definition of the coupled—defence of the definition—the coupled is separated from its ant. by a con. —the ep. is sometimes coupled to an ep. ...	491—492
§ 158. Coupling to the attached nom. pron. —to the detached nom. pron. , and attached or detached acc. pron. —to the gen. pron. —discussion as to whether the gen. is coupled to the gen. , or the op. and gen. to the op. and gen. —and whether the coupled is governed in the gen. by the first op. or the second—repetition of the genitival op. not necessary in a case of necessity—nor, according to some, in a case of choice ...	492—498
—
CHAPTER V.—THE UNINFLECTED NOUN.
§ 159. Definition of uninflectedness—definitions of the uninfl. n. —its predicament—it is permanent or accidental—the cause of its uninflectedness according to Z—and according to IM—when the pre. n. gains uninflectedness from the uninfl. post. —allowable uninflectedness of the vague n. of time pre. to a prop. —permanent uninflectedness of ns. necessarily pre. to a prop. —terminations of the uninfl. n. —names of the terminations—distribution of the terminations—classification of the uninfl. ns.	499—505

THE PRONOUNS.

- § 160. The pron. is called emt. by the KK—its definition—its exponent—positions where it relates to an expression posterior literally and in natural order—choice of exponent when determined by proximity—the explicit n. substituted for the pron.—the pron. is (1) attached, (a) prominent or (b) latent, (2) detached ... 506—511
- § 161. The pron. is uninf.—its terminations—reason of its uninflectedness—some prons. are common to 2 or more cases—there are prons. for all 3 cases—which are attached, and which detached—assortment of the prons. with reference to case and attachment or detachment—meanings of each sort—expressions constituted for the attached nom. prons. of each pers.—and for the remaining sorts of prons. of each pers.—aggregate of words and meanings—the ت—its variations—the ت in the variations of رَأَيْتَكَ —attached nom. pron. of the 3rd pers.—the ت in فُرِّبْتَ and فُرِّبْتُ a p., not a pron.—the ا, و, and ن—the و, sometimes used for irrational objects—the ا, و, and ن seldom ps.—the ي—attached nom. pron. in the aor., imp., and prohib.—in the eps., i. e. act. and pass. parts. and assimilate ep., and in the verbal ns. and advs.—detached nom. pron.—أَنَا—نَحْنُ—هِيَ and هُوَ—أَنْتَ to أَنْتِ—ي and هِ—vocalized, elided, made quiescent, or doubled—du. and pl. of the detached nom. pron. of the 3rd pers.—the detached nom. prons. are common to the pret., aor., imp., and eps.—expressions constituted for the attached acc. and gen. prons. of each pers.—vowel of the y in the sing. masc.—impletion, slurring, or elision of this vowel after a mobile—slurring or impletion of the vowel

after a quiescent—summary of the dial. vars. in the ʔ of the sing. masc. after a Kasra or quiescent ي—impletion, slurring, or elision of the vowel of the ʔ in the sing. masc. when a soft letter is elided before the ʔ—vowel of the ʔ in the du.

and pl.—quiescence or vocalization of the ʔ of the pl. after the ʔ pronounced with Kasr, and impletion of its vowel when it is followed by a mobile—summary of the states of the ʔ after the ʔ pronounced with Kasr—states of the ʔ after the ʔ pronounced with Damm—detached acc. pron.—its constitution—gen. pron.—it must be attached, and is exactly like the attached acc.—the ي , ك , and ʔ when obj. and when post.—the ك in ^كزيدا, when a p. and when a post. n.—pl. of magnification—pl. masc. for sing. masc. or sing. fem.—sing. for pl.—the pron. treated like the dem.

511—532

§ 162. اِيَّاي and its variations 532—533

§ 163. Detachment of nom. or acc. pron. not allowable except when attachment is impossible—rules for attachment and detachment when nom. or acc. pron. is governed (1) by a v.—(2) by something else 533—539

§ 164. Rules for attachment and detachment when 2 prons. follow an op., (1) when the op. is a v., (a) if the 2nd pron. be an appos.—(b) if the 2nd pron. be not an appos.—(2) when the op. is a n.—attachment or detachment of pronominal pred. of كُن , etc. 540—544

§ 165. No pron. latent except attached nom.—cause of its latency—attached nom. pron. when not apparent—ag., explicit or pronominal, when not apparent—xplanation of instance where ag. of اَفْعَل

- seems to be apparent as a detached pron.—ag. when apparent as an explicit n. or detached pron.—explanation of instances where ag. of ^{أَفْعَلُ} seems to be apparent as an explicit n., and ag. of ^{نَفْعَلُ} as a detached pron. of the 2nd pers. or as an explicit n. ... 544—546
166. Form of detached nom. pron. intervenes between inch. and enunc. before and after prefixion of their lit. ops.—is named distinctive by the BB, and support by the KK—the ^ل of inception is prefixed to it—the inch. ought to be det., and the enunc. synarthrous—the distinctive remains fixed in case, but varies in number, gender, and pers.—is introduced where the enunc. is anarthrous, but an ^{أَفْعَلُ} of superiority—conditions of the pron. named distinctive and support—its import—some Arabs make it an inch., and what follows it its enunc. ... 546—551
- § 167. The pron. of the case or fact—named pron. of the unknown by the KK—is (1) attached, (a) prominent or (b) latest, (2) detached—when fem.—may not be suppressed, except when an acc.—exs. of its suppression when sub. of ^{أَنْ}—its irregularities—the expos. prop. after it must have both its terms expressed—must be nominal, except when an annuller of inchoation is prefixed to the pron.—and must be enunciatory, except when pred. of the contracted ^{أَنْ} ... 551—554
- § 168. The prop. in ^{رَجُلًا}, ^{رَجُلًا}, and ^{رَجُلًا} ... 554
- § 169. The pron. after ^{لَوْلَا} and ^{عَسَى}—analysis of ^{لَوْلَا} followed by a gen. pron.—and of ^{عَسَى} followed by an acc. prop. ... 555—557

- § 170. The ن of protection or support—why introduced into the v.—inseparable from all paradigms of the v. except the 5 paradigms of the aor. containing the ن of inflection—may be elided with the ن of inflection, but not with the ن of the pron., nor with the single or double ن of corroboration—dispute whether the elided be the ن of protection or the ن of inflection—the ن of the pron., or the single or double ن of corroboration not elided with the ن of protection—the ن of protection elided with the ن of the pron. by poetic license—methods allowable with the ن of inflection—expression or omission of the ن of protection with عَسَى and لَيْسَ—with the اَفْعَلَ of wonder—with verbal ns.—with كُنَّ , لَكِنَّ , اَنَّ , اِنَّ—with كُنَّ—with لَعَلَّ—with قَطُ , قَدْ , عَنْ , مِنْ—with لَيْتَ—with بَجَلٌ ... 557—562
- § 170A. Degrees of particularity in the prons.—the more particular prevails over the less ... 562

THE DEMONSTRATIVES.

- § 171. Definitions—the dems. contain the sense of vs.—demonstrate orig. only sensible and visible objects—their numbers, genders, and cases—the sing. masc. used for the sing. fem. or du. fem.—similar usage in the pron.—the dems. are uninfl.—their terminations—reason of their uninflectedness—dispute on the uninflectedness of the du.—similar dispute on the du. of the conjunct—ذَانِ , اِلََّذَانِ , and the like are quasi-

- ds. ns.*, not real ds.—ذَانِ , تَانِ , اَللَّذَانِ , and اَللَّتَانِ occur in all 3 cases—the dems. are vague, and must therefore be explained by an cp. when they are likely to confuse ... 563—570
- § 172. The ك of allocation is affixed to them to notify [by its variations] the number and gender of the person addressed—it is a p., not a pron.—does not indicate person, but only allocation—varies with the number and gender of the person addressed—aggregate of dems. so formed—the ك is invariable in one dial.—ذُلِّمٌ ذُلِّكٌ ... 570—572
- § 173. The ل is inserted before the ك to indicate the distance of the demonstrated—distinction in meaning between ذَا , ذَاكَ , and ذَلِكْ —some make no distinction between ذَلِكْ and ذَاكَ —numbers and genders of the dems. importing distance—reduplication of the ن in ذَانِ and هَذَانِ —and in ذَانِكَ and ذَانِكَ —the ل when omitted—always omitted in the dial. of Tamīm 572—674
- § 174. The premonitory p. هَا is prefixed to the dems.—هَذَا and its variations—هَذَاكَ and its variations—the هَا is not part of the dem.—explanation of هَذَانِ as an acc. ... 574—576
- § 175. Dems. of place—هَـنَا and هُنَا —هَـنَا is always used as an adv.—and so هُنَا —the ك of allocu-

tion is affixed, and the premonitory هَـ prefixed, to هَـ and هَـ, but not to نَـ — and the ل is inserted—distinction in meaning between هَـ, هَـ, and هَـ — هَـ and هَـ are like هَـ in meaning — هَـ, هَـ, and هَـ sometimes denote time—dispute as to whether they are then pre. to the prop. ... 576—578

THE CONJUNCTS.

- § 176. الَّذِي and its variations—the sing.—reduplication or elision of the ي in the sing.—the ل and ل in all 3 numbers are red.—added to impart the form of the det.—the du.—reduplication of the ن in the du.—similar reduplication in the du. of the dems.—elision of the ن in the du.—dispute as to whether the dus. are infl. or uninfl.—الَّذَانِ and الَّتَانِ occur in all 3 cases—the pl. masc.—الَّذِينَ written with one ل—elision of the ن from الَّذِينَ and الَّذِينَ—other forms of the pl. masc.—the pl. fem.—conjuncts common to all genders and numbers—مَنْ—مَا—أَلْ—أَيُّ expressly or constructively pre. to a det.—sometimes femininized, dualized, and pluralized—the Tā'ī ذُو—its dial. vars.—ذَا—the conjuncts, with some exceptions, are uninfl.—their terminations—reason of their uninflectedness—the conjunct ought to be infl.—the conj. has not a place in inflection—nor have the conjunct and its conj. together—the conjuncts are vague 579—590

§ 177. Definition of the conjunct—its conj., except the conj.

of $\hat{\text{أ}}$ —the rel.—the conj. is a verbal, nominal, cond., or adverbial prop.—this prop. must be enunciatory—and needs a cop.—the pers. of the rel. pron.—the conj. of $\hat{\text{أ}}$ —it is constructively a verbal prop. containing a rel. pron.—its o. f.—it receives the inflection properly belonging to $\hat{\text{أ}}$ —anomalous conjs. of $\hat{\text{أ}}$ —they prove $\hat{\text{أ}}$ not to be a p. of determination, but are peculiar to poetry—the prim. synarthrous substantive as a conjunct—the conj. or part of it does not precede the conjunct—nor does the conj. or any thing depending upon it govern what precedes the conjunct—nor does the conj. depend upon what precedes the conjunct—nor is the conjunct separated from the conj., or part of the conj. from part, by an appos. or enunc. of, or exc. from, the conjunct—in poetry a conjunct occurs coupled to a conjunct before the conj.—sometimes a conjunct is separated from its conj. by a reg. of the conj.—such separation is not allowable with a conjunct p., nor with the conjunct $\hat{\text{أ}}$ —part of the conj. may be separated from part by something coupled to the conj.—part of the conj. precedes part—suppression of the conjunct n. other than $\hat{\text{أ}}$ — of the conj. of the conjunct n. other than $\hat{\text{أ}}$ — the rel. of $\hat{\text{أ}}$ may not be suppressed—nor may one of two rels. when combined in the conj.—suppression of the rel. in other cases

590—606

§ 178. أَلَمْ يَكُنْ is a connective to the qualification of deta.

by prop.—the fact announced by the conj. prop. ought to be known to the person addressed

—distinction between the conj. and the attribute—الَّذِي and its fem. are lightened by elision of the ي alone or with the preceding vowel—the ن is elided from its du. and pl.—its sing. is used to indicate the pl.—number of the rel. pron. in that case

606—608

- § 179. الَّذِي has a wider range in the process of enunciation than أَلْ—an enunc. is not made to أَلْ except from a n. in a verbal prop.—conditions requisite in the v.—enunciation is a process instituted for examination and exercise of the student—when permissible—method of effecting it—concord of the conjunct in number and gender with the n. made an enunc.—latency or detachment of the pron. governed in the nom. by the qual. occurring as conj. of أَلْ—conditions of the n. that an enunc. is made from—enunciation when disallowed

608—614

- § 180. مَا—the مَا that follows an indet. to import vagueness and corroboration of indeterminateness—مَا denotes mostly the irrational, sometimes the rational, often the qualities of the rational, sometimes the unknown in quiddity and essence.

614—619

- § 181. Its ا is subject to conversion and elision—conversion of the ا — مَهْمَا — مَهْمَنْ — مَهْمَا is simple, not compounded—its meanings—elision of the ا with retention or elision of the Fatha—the ا is elided in interrogation, but expressed in enunciation—the ا is expressed in interrogation in extraordinary readings and poetic licenses, not in ordinary readings—the ا is not elided when the interrog. مَا is compounded with ذَا — مَا when written conjoined and when disjoined

619—627

- § 182. ^أمِنْ — ^أمِنْ as a complete indet. or red.—^أمِنْ mostly denotes the rational, sometimes the irrational—^أمِنْ and ^أمَا are literally sing. masc., but are applied to all numbers and genders—observance of the letter is more frequent in expressions made to accord with them than observance of the sense—observance preferable or necessary—precedence of, and reversion to, observance of the letter when the two observances are combined—^أمِنْ when written disjoined, and when conjoined ... 627—638

- § 183. In interrogation with ^أمِنْ about a mentioned rational indet. 3 methods are allowable in pause upon ^أمِنْ, (1) to imitate in ^أمِنْ the inflection of the indet. and the signs of its number and gender—the letters of prolongation are added in the sing. masc.—imitation of the inflection is omitted in the sing. fem. and pl. fem.—the ن before the ة is made quiescent in the du. fem., and sometimes in the sing. fem., but is sometimes mobilized in the du. fem.—(2) to add the letters of prolongation, imitating only the inflection appropriate to the sing. masc., whatever be the number and gender of the indet.—(3) to put ^أمِنْ alone in every state without imitation—imitation allowed by Y in continuity—^أمِنْ is infl. in some dials.—the signs mentioned are affixed only at the end of the sentence—question how put when the rational and irrational are combined—methods allowable in interrogation with ^أمِنْ about a mentioned rational det.—and about a rel. op. of a proper name ... 634—643

- § 184. ^{اى} as a qualified indet.—^{اى} when decidedly aprothetic—^{اى} is infl., except in vocation—the interrog. or cond. ^{اى} is infl. unrestrictedly—the conjunct ^{اى} has 4 states—the conjunct ^{اى} when infl., and when uninfl. upon Damm—conditions of the op. of the conjunct ^{اى} ... 643—646
- § 185. In interrogation with ^{اى} about a mentioned indet., 2 methods are allowable, (1) to imitate in ^{اى} the inflection of the indet. and the signs of its number and gender—reason and pause why required as conditions of imitation with ^{من}, and not with ^{اى}—(2) to restrict oneself in continuity to inflecting ^{اى} in the sing., whatever be the number and gender of the indet.—the vowels and other signs affixed to ^{من} and ^{اى} in the state of imitation are imitative alliterations, these words being in the place of a nom. by inchoation—in interrogation with ^{اى} about dets. what follows it is not imitated—the n. is sometimes imitated without a question—imitation is allowable, according to this dial., in dets. after ^{من} or ^{اى} ... 646—648
- § 186. The dems. as conjuncts — ^{مَاذَا} — ^{ذَا} ... 648—651

THE VERBAL NOUNS AND EJACULATIONS.

- § 187. Definition of the verbal n. given by IH—definition given by IM and Fk—expressions excluded by the latter definition—mood and tense indicated by the verbal n.—the verbal ns. are uninfl.— their terminations—reason of their uninflectedness—meaning of the term “verbal ns.”—object of using them—they are shorter and more intensive than vs.—what they indicate—why they are not called vs.—their o. fs.—they are all transferred from original inf. ns., from inf. ns. orig. cjs., from adv., or from preps. and gens. — أَمِين or أَمِينٌ—its forms—the prep.

and gen. why called a verbal n.—the verbal n. has no place in inflection—it is not in the place of the nom.—it has lost its original place in inflection—nor is it in the place of the acc.—it is transferred from its original meaning to the meaning of the v. in the same way as proper names are transferred—it denotes the meaning, not merely the expression, of the v.—the v.

sometimes becomes a verbal n.—كَذَبَ and كَذَبَ عَلَيْكَ—government of the verbal ns.—the ب is often red. in their obj.—dispute as to whether they may be preceded by their accs.—the verbal n. is not pre.—the aor. is not governed in the subj. in the correl. of the requisitive verbal n., but is governed in the apoc.—the verbal ns. are mostly i. q. the imp.—are more intensive and corrob. in meaning than the corresponding ns.—and, when enunciatory, contain the sense of wonder—they have no sign for the attached pron. governed by them in the nom.—affixion of the ك of allocution and of the Tanwīn to them is restricted to hearsay—the ك attached to them is sometimes a n. governed in the gen., and sometimes a p. of allocution—according to the majority, the Tanwīn affixed to them indicates indeterminateness—the verbal ns. in the state of determination belong to the

- class of n. made det. by the ^{أَلْ} denoting knowledge—according to ISk and Jh, the Tanwin affixed to verbal ns. indicates that they are continuous with what follows them, not paused upon—classification of the verbal ns. — ^{أَرَّة} —
 دِيك — دِي — دَاهَا — دَا — بَعْل — قَطَا — قَدْ دِي — دِي كَان or دِيك أَنْ ... 652—674
- § 188. ^{رَوْد} —ambiguous constructions and various versions ... 674—676
- § 189. ^{هَلَمَّ} —is made uniform by the Hijazis in all numbers and genders, but conjugated by the Banū Tamīm as an imp. v.—is trans. and intrans. — اَهْلَمَ and اَهْلَمَ — هَلَمَّ لَكَ ... 676—678
- § 190. هَا —its dial. vars.—three of these are aplastic vs. ... 679—680
- § 191. حَيْهَل — its dial. vars.—forms peculiar to pause
 — حَيْهَل —sense and government of حَيْهَل — its assumption of the pron. — حَيْهَلْكَ — and هَلْ why combined — حَيَّ used alone — هَلْ or هَلْ used alone ... 680—684
- § 192. ^{بَلَّ} is (1) a verbal n. — (2) an inf. n. — ^{بَهَل} —
 (3) a n. i. q. كَيْفَ —case of what follows it—nature of its Fath—ex. with versions exhibiting all 3 constructions — مِنْ بَلَّ or مِنْ بَهَل — مِنْ بَلَّ occurs in tradition—different versions of this tradition—(4) a prep. ... 684—686

§ 193. فَعَالٍ — it is (1) an imp. verbal n.—universal, or, at all events, frequent, in the tril.—its occurrence in the Revelation—it is rare in the quad., being then فَعَالٍ — refutation of the theory that it is made to deviate from the verbal imp. for the sake of intensiveness and is fem—it is intensive, however, like all verbal ns.—so are فَعَالٍ the inf. n. and فَعَالٍ the ep.—(2) an inf. n.—refutation of the theory that it is made to deviate from a det. fem. inf. n.—there is no evidence of determinateness in فَعَالٍ — nor in other instances of this فَعَالٍ —vacillation of the GG about the gender of all the measures of فَعَالٍ, imp., inf. n., ep., and proper name—(3) a fem. ep.—this ep. does not occur in the masc., is always used without a qualified, and is of 2 kinds, (a) used only in the voc., except by poetic license—this kind, like the imp. فَعَالٍ, may be regularly formed from every tril. att. completely plastic v.—and does not occur as a generic proper name—(b) used in the non-voc., (a) mostly as generic proper names, and therefore det.—(b) sometimes merely as eps.—(4) a personal proper name of a fem.—this kind of proper name is coined—difference between it and the generic proper name mentioned in 3, b, a—it is always fem.—but is sometimes used as a name for a man ...

687—698

§ 194. فَعَالٍ when an imp., inf. n., or ep., has its ل pronounced with Kasr—unless it be used as a personal proper name, in which case, if a name for a masc., it is declined as a diptote, and some-

- times as a triptote, and, if a name for a fem., it is treated like فَعَالٍ when a personal proper name—the ل in the imp. is pronounced with Fath by the Banu Asad—the inf. ns. and eps. are uninfl. by common consent—the generic proper names are uninfl.—the personal proper names of fems. have 3 dial. vars. ... 698—701
- § 195. هَيْهَاتَ — its dial. vars.—its number—reasons for the different vowels of the ت—the final how written when pronounced with Damm ... 701—703
- § 196. شَتَّانَ مَا — requires 2 ags.—شَتَّانَ مَا is allowable—and شَتَّانَ مَا بَيْنَ, though it is less frequent and chaste—but not شَتَّانَ بَيْنَ ... 703—706
- § 197. أَفَّ — its dial. vars.—its final vowel, and its Tauwin ... 706—707
- § 198. These ns. are det. and indet.—signs of the det. and indet.—classification of these ns. as (1) always det.—(2) always indet.—أَيَّ or أَيْهَ — هَيْهَ and أَيْهَ — (3) det. and indet. — أَيْهَ — the Tauwin affixed to these ns.—theory that the verbal ns. are all det. ... 707—709
- § 199. Advs. and preps. as verbal ns.—their gen. is a pron. — pers. of the pron. — عِنْدَكَ, لَدَيْكَ, and مَكَانَكَ — أَمَامَكَ and وَرَاءَكَ — دُونَكَ — question whether مَكَانَكَ and the like are verbal ns. — عَالِي and إِلَى — إِلَيْكَ and عَلَيْكَ — an explicit n. governed in the gen. by عَلَى — dispute whether instigation by adv. of place and by prop. is regular or restricted to hearsay—position of the prom. attached to these words—their ag.—case of the corrob. after them ... 709—713

§ 200. Definition of the ej.—classification of the *ej*s.—these expressions why named *ej*s.—they are treated as words, and coordinated with us.—the Tanwin affixed to some of them—they are all uninfl.—reason of their uninflectedness—when they occur constructed, they may be infl. or uninfl., in-lection being frequent with ḡi, and necessary with TanwIn—gs. imitating the sounds of human beings, dumb animals, or inanimate substances—gs. wherewith brutes are cried to—gs. indicative of the speaker's mental states—

دِيلَ or دِيلِمَ — دِيَتَ, and دِيسَ, دِيمَ, دِيلَ
 ... دِيگَ اَنَ or دِيگانَ or دِيگانَ — 713—720

THE UNINFLECTED ADVERBS.

§ 201. Some adv. are uninfl.—their terminations—the adv. cut off from prothesis—enumeration of the adv. so cut off—others may not be added by analogy—the post. n. or prop. when suppressible—reason of the uninflectedness of the adv. cut off from prothesis—and of أَذْ, حَيْثُ, and إِذَا

—reason of the inflectedness of ^وبعض and ^وكل when the post. is suppressed—these adv. are preferably uninfl., but allowably infl. when pronounced with TanwIn as a compensation for the post.—there is no difference in sense between their infl. and uninfl. forms—contrary opinion that their infl. forms do not imply the sense of prothesis—these ns. are uninfl. upon Damm in

1 state, and infl. in 3 — ^أمِنْ ^أأَوَّلِ — ^أمِنْ قَدَامِ — Tanwīn with the sign of the nom. or acc. in these adv.—they are named “finals”—^{كُلُّ} and ^{بَعْضُ}, when cut off from prothesis, are not so named—^{عَلِ} — it is uninfl. upon Damm or infl.
 —its dial. vars.—the ^ي of ^{عَلِ} is elided in ^{عَلْ} — vowel of the ^ف in ^{عَلَوْ} —and of the ^ل in ^{عَلَوْ} — the finals why uninfl. upon Damm—^{لَا} غَيْرُ or ^{لَيْسَ} غَيْرُ and ^{حَسْبُ} are treated like the adv.
 cut off from prothesis—^{غَيْرُ} — constructions allowable with ^{غَيْرُ} preceded by ^{لَيْسَ} — ^{لَا} غَيْرُ — ^{غَيْرُ} is assimilated to the final adv.—but only after ^{لَا} and ^{لَيْسَ} — ^{غَيْرُ} after ^{لَيْسَ} is i.q.
^{إِلَّا} — ^{حَسْبُ} — it is used as an indet. ep.—and as a prim. substantive—objection to its being a verbal n.—^{حَسْبُ} — its post. why suppressed
 — ^{حَسْبُ} why uninfl. upon Damm—adv. pre.
 to props.—the n. of time is generally pre. to the verbal prop., sometimes to the nominal—the n.
 of time, when not in sense an adv. to the inf. n.
 of the prop., is not used except with an infinitival
p. before the prop. — ^{ذُو} — ^{أَيَّةُ} and ^{رَيْتُ} — order of the two terms of the prop. immediately following ^{حَيْثُ} and ^{أَنَّا} when one of these terms is a v.—^{غَيْرُ} and ^{مِثْلُ} are sometimes pre. to a prop. headed by an infinitival p.—the adv. also are said by the KK to be pre. to ^{٢٢}أَنْ and ^{٢٣}أَنْ—alleged qualifiability of the adv. pre. to props.—determinateness or indeterminateness of this adv.—the

n. of time or ^{٢٤}حَيْثُ, even if not an adv., is pre. to the prop.—^{٢٥}حِينَئِذٍ, ^{٢٦}يَوْمَئِذٍ, and ^{٢٧}سَاعَتَئِذٍ — ^{٢٨}إِذَا — the post. prop. may not contain a pron.

relating to the pre. adv.—the cop. when necessary in the prop. following an adv.—anomalous insertion of a cop. in the prop. post. to an adv.—the adv. necessarily pre. to props. must be uninfl. —the sing. and pl., but not the du., of the adv.

allowably pre. to the prop. or to ^{٢٩}إِذَا may be uninfl. upon Fath—so may ^{٣٠}مِثْلُ with ^{٣١}مَا — and

^{٣٢}غَيْرُ with ^{٣٣}أَنْ or ^{٣٤}أَنْ ... 721—744

§ 202. ^{٣٥}حَيْثُ or ^{٣٦}حَرْثُ is uninfl.—its terminations—^{٣٧}حَيْثُ

is infl. by some—its meaning—how parsed—it does not occur as sub. of ^{٣٨}أَنْ — is always pre. to a prop., more often verbal—extraordinary prefixion to a single term—more extraordinary prefixion to a suppressed prop.—^{٣٩}حَيْثُ, when

pre. to a single term, is infl. by some—^{٤٠}حَيْثُمَا —

proof that ^{٤١}حَيْثُ sometimes denotes time ... 744—748

§ 203. ^{٤٢}مَنْ and ^{٤٣}مَنْذُ — are peculiar to time—their meanings

when they are ns.—what follows them—how parsed when followed by a n. in the gen.—are ns.

when governing a single n. in the nom., or when followed by a prop.—how parsed when followed by a n. in the nom.—or by a verbal or nominal prop.—are uninfl.—reason of their uninflected— ness—their terminations—the o. f. of ^أمَد ...

748—752

- § 204. ^أإِذَا is (1) a n. denoting past time—how used—(2) a n.
denoting future time—(3) causative—a p. or adv., according to different opinions—exa. in favor of the 1st opinion—(4) denotative of suddenness of occurrence—generally occurring after ^أيُنْشَأ or ^أيُنْشَأُ and variously said to be an adv. of place or time, a p. denoting suddenness of occurrence, and a rel.
p.—2 other meanings mentioned for ^أإِذَا, in both of which it appears to be a p.—^أإِذَا is always pre. to a prop., nominal or verbal—but is not prefixed to a n. followed by a pret. v.—suppression of one term of the prop.—^أإِذَا نَحْنُ and ^أإِذَا ذَاكَ— and of the whole prop.—^أإِذَا or ^أإِذَا and ^أيَوْمَئِذٍ— does not denote condition unless it be restrained by ^أمَا from prefixion—^أإِذَا—a p. or adv., according to different opinions—its government of the apoc.
is rare, but not a poetic license—^أإِذَا (1) denotes suddenness of occurrence—this differs from the cond. ^أإِذَا in being peculiar to nominal props., in not needing a correl., nor occurring at the beginning of the sentence, and in meaning the present—and is variously said to be a p., an adv. of place, and an
adv. of time—its op., if it be an adv.—the enunc.
with it—^أإِذَا itself the enunc.—^أخَرَجْتُ فَإِذَا—^أزَيْدٌ جَالِسٌ or ^أجَالِسًا—^أإِذَا regarded as an

adv. of time, but still apparently made enunc. of a concrete n.--فَإِذَا هِيَ or إِيَّاهَا — this إِذَا is used like the ف in the correl. of the condition — (2) denotes something else—this differs from the 1st إِذَا in being an adv. of the future, in implying the sense of condition, and in being peculiar to prefixion to verbal props.—tense of the v. after it—the cond. إِذَا is not prefixed to an inch., whether the inch. be, or be not, followed by a v. —and does not govern the apoc., except in poetry—exclusion of this إِذَا from adverbiality, futurity, and conditionality—when no longer cond., it may still be followed by 2 props.—what governs it in the acc., whether it be cond. or non-cond.—the ف in the correl. of the non-cond. إِذَا — the cond. إِذَا may have for its apod. a nominal prop. without a ف — and be followed by a nominal prop. devoid of v.—حَتَّى إِذَا — إِذَا—إِذَا مَا and إِذَا denoting suddenness of occurrence in the correl. of بَيْنَمَا and بَيْنَمَا — formation of بَيْنَمَا and بَيْنَمَا — sense and government of بَيْنَ in them—كَلَّمَا — tense of the v. after بَيْنَا, بَيْنَمَا, and كَلَّمَا — كَلَّ and بَيْنَ here may be uninfl. —construction of بَيْنَا, بَيْنَمَا, and كَلَّمَا with their 2 props.—إِذَا and إِذَا why prefixed to the correl. of بَيْنَا and بَيْنَمَا — كَلَّ and بَيْنَ in كَلَّمَا

and ^{أَإِذَا} may be infl.—parsing of ^{أَإِذَا} and ^{أَإِذَا} in the correl. of ^{أَإِذَا} and ^{أَإِذَا} —and of ^{أَإِذَا} in the correl. of ^{أَإِذَا}, ^{لَمَّا}, and ^{أَن} —^{أَإِذَا} denoting suddenness of occurrence elsewhere than in the correl. of ^{أَإِذَا} and ^{أَإِذَا} —^{أَإِذَا} may be pre. to an inf. n., contrary to ^{أَإِذَا} ... 752—778

§ 205. ^{لَكُنْ} —its dial. vars.—its government—^{لَكُنْ}
—no n. but ^{لَكُنْ} is governed in the acc. after ^{لَكُنْ} — difference between it and ^{لَكُنْ} —and between it and ^{عِنْدَ} —there is no proof of its uninflectedness—its ... 778—784

§ 206. ^{أَلَا} — is an adv. of time, uninfl. upon Fath—the ^{أَلَا} prefixed to it—how it is made det.—reason of its uninflectedness—it is sometimes infl.—its vars. — ^{أَمْسَ} — its termination when it means a specified day, and is not pre., nor synarthrous, nor formed into a du. or broken pl. or dim.—its inflection when it is used as a name for a man—and when it means some day or other of the past days, or is pre. or synarthrous, or is formed into a du. or broken pl. or dim.—its uninflectedness when it is anarthrous, and means a specified day, but is used as an adv.—^{قَطَا}—its usages—it is uninfl.—reason of its uninflectedness—its terminations—its dial. vars.—^{عَرَضَ} or ^{عَرَضَ} —its usages—when it is infl. and when uninfl.—reason of its uninflectedness —its terminations—^{لَمَّا} —it is a p.—or an adv.

- of time—reason of its uninflectedness—attempted refutation of its nominality—the v. following it—its correl.—apparent omission of its 2 vs.—
 — لَهُ — its formation—لَهُ and لَهُ said to be uninfl.—reason for its uninflectedness—it is really infl.—the ل in مَعًا — أَيْنَ — is uninfl.—its termination—مَتَى — is also a p or a n. syn. with وَسَطًا — is uninfl.—its termination—أَيْنَمَا and مَتَى — distinction between مَتَى and أَيْنَمَا — is uninfl.—reason of its uninflectedness—its termination—its derivation—its dial. vars.—parsing of cond. and interrog. ns. and the like—the enunc. of the cond. inch.—the correl. of the cond. inch. needs a cop.—the interrog. or cond. reg. of the v. or its like must precede its op.—the op. of مَتَى and every cond. adv. ... 785—804
- § 207. كَيْفَ is a n.—treated as an adv. by many—dispute as to whether it be an adv. or a plain n.—how renderable—its usages—said to occur as a con.—is uninfl.—reason of its uninflectedness—its termination—أَتَى — كَيْ — condition of its occurrence in the sense of كَيْفَ or مَتَى — it is uninfl.—reason of its uninflectedness—its termination ... 804—810

THE COMPOUNDS.

- § 208. IH's definition—includes such as سَيِّبِيَّة — excludes such as عَبْدُ اللَّهِ and قَابِطُ شَرَا — excludes part of the defined also—amendment of the definition—classification of the comps.—dispute as to classification of certain comps. ... 811—812

	Page.
§ 209. Distinction between the 2 kinds of comp. ...	812—813
§ 210. The num. exceeding 10—the ع of عَشْر sometimes made quiescent—this num. , when synarthrous or pre. , remains uninfl. —dispute as to uninflectedness of the pre. —treatment of this num. when used as a name for a man ...	813—814
§ 211. Classification of the synthetic comps. uninfl. upon Fath—all synthetic comps. used as ds. s. —synthetic composition in what is not an adv. or d. s. — o. f. of حَيْصُ بَيْصُ — its dial. vars. ...	814—818
§ 212. خَاِزُ بَاِزُ — its dial. vars. and meanings ...	818—820
§ 213. بَاِئِي بُدَاِ or بَاِئِي بُدِي — is used as a d. s. —its dial. vars. ...	820
§ 214. اِيْئِي سُبَاِ or اِيْئِي سُبَا — its dial. vars. —is a d. s. —the Hamza of سُبَا omitted ...	820—821
§ 215. حَضْرَمَتْ, قَالِي كَلَا — its dial. vars. —مُعْدِيْكَرْبُ, مُعْدِيْكَرْبُ, and the like—the مِعْدِيْ of مِعْدِيْ, when pre. , is made quiescent in the acc. —كَرْبُ in مُعْدِيْ كَرْبُ —dispute as to classification of قَالِي كَلَا ...	821—822

THE UNINFLECTED METONYMS.

- § 216. Definition of metonymy—signification of the met. denoting an expression—all the interrog. and cond. ns. are met.—being used for unlimited particular

	things —all mets. are not uninfl. —the uninfl. mets. —the interrog. and cond. ns. why not reckoned here—the mets. are like the advs. in being infl. and uninfl.	823—825
§ 217.	كَمْ — is interrog. and enunciatory—both denote number and numbered , and each needs a sp. —case and number of the sp. —points of agreement between the interrog. and enunciatory—and of difference	825—827
§ 218.	Parsing of كَمْ	827—828
§ 219.	Suppression of the sp.	828—829
§ 220.	Number of the sp. of the interrog. كَمْ — of the n. coupled to the sp. of the interrog. —of the sp. of the enunciatory	829—830
§ 221.	Separation of كَمْ from its sp. —case of the sp. of the separated interrog. كَمْ — and of the sp. of the separated enunciatory كَمْ —treatment of the sp. of the separated enunciatory كَمْ, when the separation is by a trans. v. —and of the sp. of the separated interrog. كَمْ, when the sp. , if كَمْ were not separated from it, would be governed in the gen.	830—831
§ 222.	Number and gender of كَمْ —and of the pron. relating to it—this pron. ought not to be du. ...	832
§ 223.	كَمْ is peculiar to indels. —apparent determination of its sp. —and of the n. coupled to its sp. ...	832—833
§ 224.	Case of the sp. of the interrog. كَمْ — the gen. when allowable in this sp. —the sp. of the enunciatory

- كَمْ is sometimes governed in the acc. without separation—^{كَمْ عَمَّ} 833—835
- § 225. The sp. how governed in the gen. when كَمْ is interrog. —and when كَمْ is enunciatory—^{مِنْ} prefixed to the sp.—كَمْ when construed to be pronounced with Tanwin 835—836
- § 226. كَذَا and ^{كَايِن} — points of agreement between كَذَا and كَمْ — and of difference—كَذَا as a met. for the expression occurring in narration—the uncompounded كَذَا — هَكَذَا — points of agreement between ^{كَايِن} and كَمْ — and of difference—dial. vars. of ^{كَايِن} 836—840
- § 227. ذَيْتٌ and كَيْتٌ — their terminations—their pausal form—they are often used according to the o.f. — كَيْه — reason of their uninflectedness—they are always repeated with the con. و — distinction between them 840—841

CHAPTER VI.

THE DUAL NOUN.

- § 228. Definition of dualization—and of the du.—o.f. of the du. and pl.—corresponding definition of the du.—demonstration of the theory that the o.f. is coupling—coupling when allowable instead of dualization—multiplication sometimes denoted by repetition without coupling or by dualization—conditions of dualization—ns. not dualized—exceptions to some of these conditions—classifi-

- elation of the du.—the form fo the sing. is generally preserved—elision of the ة of femininization—of the ِ of the du.—and of its | ... 842—846
- § 229. The form of the sing. when unaltered in the du.—and when altered—dualization of the abbreviated, when its | is 3rd—different opinions on the mode of converting the rad. | and the | whose o. f. is unknown—modes allowable when the | has 2 o. f.—dualization of the abbreviated when its | is 4th or upwards—مُذَرَّانْ — elision of the | in the du. of the abbreviated transcending 4 letters—فَهْرَانْ and خُزَلْنِ — summary of the rules for converting the | of the abbreviated in the du.—summary of the anomalous du. in the abbreviated ... 846—850
- § 230. The ns. whose final is Hamza are prolonged and unprolonged—definition of the prolonged—its Hamza—dualization of the prolonged when its Hamza is (1) substituted for the | of femininization—(2) rad.—(3) denotative of co-ordination and (4) converted from a rad. و or ی — كَسَائَانِ and ثَنَائَانِ — elision of the | and Hamza of femininization—summary of the anomalous du. in the prolonged—definition and dualization of the unprolonged ... 850—853
- § 231. Dualization of the n. arbitrarily curtailed of its final—the n. whose ِ is elided for a necessitating cause ... 853—855
- § 232. Dualization of the quasi-pl. and of the broken, but not ultimate, pl.—dualization is easier in the quasi-pl. than in the broken pl.—and is not allowable in the ultimate pl. ... 855—856

§ 233.	Number preferred in the pre. , (1) when 2 parts are literally or ideally pre. to their 2 wholes, (a) if the 2 wholes be uniform in letter—the du. disapproved unless omission of dualization would lead to ambiguity—the pl. why preferred to the sing. —difference of opinion as to the number allowable when each whole contains more than one of each part— ex. of the du. and pl. , and ex. of the du. —(b) if the 2 wholes be separated by a con. —(2) when the pre. is not part of the post. du. —number of the pron. , qual. , dem. , and the like, belonging to the pre. n. whose letter differs from its sense—the sing. substituted for the du. or pl. —the du. for the sing. —the pl. for the sing. or du. — ex. of the sing. and pl. for the du.	856—861
--------	---	-----	-----	-----	---------

CHAPTER V.

THE UNINFLECTED NOUN.

§ 159. Uninflectedness is the inseparability of the termination of the word from one state, literally or constructively, like the inseparability of ^{هَوْلًا} from Kasra, ^{مَنْدًا} from Damma, and ^{أَيْنًا} from Fatha (Sh). The uninfl. n. is the one whose final's quiescence or vowel is not by reason of an op. (M, MM). The uninfl. [n. (Jm)] is what (1) is related to the orig. uninfl., [vid. the p., pret. v., and imp. without the ^ل, which relation is detailed (below) by the author of the M (Jm)] ; (2) occurs unconstructed: [being of 2 kinds, either uninfl. from the lack of the motive for inflection, vid. construction, like ns. enumerated, as ^{ثَلَاثَةً} ^{اِثْنَانِ} ^{وَاحِدًا} (321), ^{أَلْفٌ} ^{بَا} ^{تَا} ^{تَا}, and ^{زَيْدٌ} ; or uninfl. from the presence of the preventive of inflection, notwithstanding the existence of the motive for it, that preventive being resemblance (of the n.) to the p., pret., or imp., or its being a verbal n. (187) (R):] and its predicament is that its termination does not vary because of the variation of the ops. (IH). It is (1) permanent, vid. (a) what implies the sense of the p., like ^{أَيْنًا} [206], ^{مَتَى} [below], and ^{كَيْفَ} [207]; (b) what resembles it, like ^{الَّذِي} [below], ^{الَّتِي}, and the like : (2) accidental, vid. (a) the [n.] pre. to the ^ي of the 1st pers. [129], as ^{غَلَامِي} [below] ; (b) the aprothetic det.

voc., as ^أيَا ^ززَيْدٌ [48]; (c) the aprothetic indet. with the generic neg. ^{لَا}لَا, as ^{لَا}لَا رَجُلٌ فِي الدَّارِ [99]; (d) the comp., as ^خخُمْسَةُ ^ععَشْرَ [210]; (e) what the post. is suppressed from, vid. ^{قَبْلُ}قَبْلُ, ^{بَعْدُ}بَعْدُ, ^{فَوْقُ}فَوْقُ, ^{تَحْتُ}تَحْتُ, and the rest of the 6 relative locations [128, 201] (MM). The cause of its uninflectedness is its relation to what has [orig. (AAz)] no declinability in any way, near or remote, [like the pret. vs., imp. of the 2nd pers., and ps., which are orig. so constituted as to have no declinability, contrary to the uninfl. ns., whose indeclinability is adventitious, not original (AAz),] through (1) implying its sense, like ^أأَمْسَى and ^أأَيُّ [206]; (2) resembling it, like the [prons. (161) and] vague ns. [262]; (3) occurring in its place, like ^{نَزَالٌ}نَزَالٌ [193]; (4) conforming to what occurs in its place, like ^{فَجَارٌ}فَجَارٌ and ^{فَسَاقٌ}فَسَاقٌ [194]; (5) occurring in the place of what resembles it, like the voc. pronounced with Damm [48]; (6) being prefixed to it, as in LXX. 11. [below] and ^{هَذَا يَوْمٌ لَا}هَذَا يَوْمٌ لَا LXXVII. 35. This will be a day when they shall not speak in the readings with Fath [of the م (AAz)], ^{لَمْ يَمْنَعْ الشَّرْبَ الْخَ}لَمْ يَمْنَعْ الشَّرْبَ الْخَ [90], and

عَلَى حِينٍ عَاتَبْتُ الْمَشِيبَ عَلَى الصَّبِي وَقُلْتُ أَلَمْ أَصْغِ وَالْمَشِيبُ دَاوُعُ

by AnNābigha (M) adhDhubyānī, At the time when I reproved hoariness for the passing away of youth, and said, What? have I not yet become sober when hoariness is hindering (from sport)? (J). The cause of uninflectedness is restricted to resemblance to the p., according to IM, who mentions that the n. resembles the p. in (1) constitution, as when the n. is constituted of (a) one letter, like the ع in عُرْبَت [161]; (b) two letters, like the ُ in أَكْرَمْنَا: (2) sense, vid. what resembles a p (a) existing, like مَتَى [206], which is used to denote interrogation, like the Hamza, and condition, like إِن; (b) non-existent, like هَذَا, because demonstration, being a meaning, ought to have a p. constituted to indicate it [171], so that the dems. are uninfl. because of their resemblance to a supplied p.: (3) acting as a subst. for the v. and not being impressible by the op., like the verbal ns., as نَرَاكَ [193], which is uninfl. because of its resemblance to the p. in governing and not being governed by anything else; but this is based upon the opinion that the verbal ns. have no place in inflection [187]: (4) permanent need, like the conjunct ns., as الَّذِي [176], which, always needing the conj. [177], resemble the p. in permanence of need [497] (IA). The [pre. (DM)] n. gains uninflectedness [from the post., when uninfl. (DM),] by prothesis [111], when the pre. is (1) vague, [but not a n. of time (DM),] like

وَحِيلَ بَيْنَهُمْ وَبَيْنَ [بَيْنِ] , مَثَلٌ , and نُورٌ , whence XXXIV. 53. And their union and the union of what they shall long for shall be obstructed and LXXII. 11. And of us is the inferior of that, as Akh says, the reading لَقَدْ تَقَطَّعَ بَيْنَكُمْ VI. 94. Assuredly your union hath become dissevered, as Akh says, which is confirmed by the reading with the nom., LI. 23. [518], the reading أَنْ يُصِيبَكُمْ مِثْلُ مَا أَصَابَ XI. 93. That the like of what befell [the people of Noah &c.] should befall you, [107], and لَمْ يَمْنَعْ [107], and رَأَى مَا مِثْلَهُمُ الْخ : whereas, if the pre. be not vague, it is not uninfl.; while the saying of Jj and those who agree with him, that [the pre. n. in] غُلَامِي [above] and the like is uninfl., is refuted, [because غُلَامٌ is not a vague n. (DM),] and [because it (DM)] entails uninflectedness of [the pre. n. in] غُلَامُكَ and غُلَامَةٌ, which no one maintains : (2) a vague [n. of] time, the post. being (a) أَنْ , as وَمِنْ خِزْيٍ XI. 69. And We saved them from the ignominy of that day and مِنْ عَذَابٍ يَوْمَئِذٍ LXX. 11. From the chastisement of that day, both read with the gen. and Fath of يَوْمٍ ; (b) an uninfl. v., whether the uninflectedness be original, as in عَلَى حِينٍ عَاتَبْتُ الْخ , or adventitious [402, 406], as in

لَا جُذْبَنَ مِنْهُمْ قَلْبِي تَحُلُمًا * عَلَى حِينٍ يَسْتَصْبِينُ كُلُّ حَالِمٍ

[I will surely draw away from them my heart, by endeavouring to acquire staidness, at the time when they seek to befool every staid man (Jsh)], both related with Fatḥ [of حِينٍ (DM)], which is superior to inflection according to IM, and inferior according to IU: whereas, if the post. be an infl. v. or nominal prop., the BB say that inflection is necessary; but the correct view is that uninflectedness is allowable, whence the reading of Nāfi' هَذَا يَوْمَ الْآلِ V. 119. [1], the reading of others than Abū 'Amr and Ibn Kathīr يَوْمَ لَا تَمْلِكُ نَفْسٌ LXXXII. 19. (It is) the day when a soul shall not have in its power, [i. e. هُوَ يَوْمٌ (DM),]

إِذَا قُلْتُ هَذَا حِينٍ أَسْلُو يَهِيْجَنِيْ

نَسِيمُ الصَّبَا مِنْ حَيْثُ يَطْلُعُ الْفَجْرُ

[by Abū Ṣakhr al-Hudhalī, When I say "This is the time when I shall forget", the breeze of the east wind from where the dawn rises stirs me (Jsh)], and

أَلَمْ تَعْلَمْ يَا عَمْرُكَ اللَّهُ اَنْتَنِيْ * كَرِيْمٌ عَلَى حِينِي الْكَرَامُ قَلِيلٌ

[Didst thou not know (O, I pray God to prolong thy life!) that I am generous at the time when the generous are few? (Jsh)], both [verses] being related with Fatḥ

(ML) of حِينَ (DM). The vague [n. of] time, i. e. what does not indicate any time particularly, as وَقْتُ حِينَ, سَاعَةُ, and زَمَانُ, may be pre. to the prop.; and then may be infl. or uninfl. upon Fath, uninflectedness being preferable to inflection when the post. is a verbal prop. whose v. is uninfl., and the converse being the case when the post. is a verbal prop. whose v. is infl. or a nominal prop. (Sh). Such ns. as are necessarily pre. to the prop. are permanently uninfl., because of their resemblance to the p. in needing the prop., like حَيْثُ, أَنْ, and إِذَا [115] (IA). Uninflectedness upon quiescence is the general rule (M, IA), because it is lighter than the vowel (IA): and deviation from it to the vowel is only for one of three causes, (1) to avoid [irregular (AAz)] concurrence of two quiescents [663], as in هُوَ لَا; (2) not to begin with a quiescent, literally or predicamentally, as in the two ك s, that which is i. q. مِثْلُ [509], and that which is a pron., [as in اِكْرَمْتُكَ, because it is in the predicament of detachment, as being an objective complement, without which the v. and ag. are complete (AAz)]; (3) [to indicate (AAz)] accidental uninflectedness, as in خَمْسَةَ عَشَرَ, مِنْ قَبْلُ, لَا رَجُلَ فِي الدَّارِ, يَا حَكَمُ, [because, being orig. infl., they are vocalized to distinguish between the permanently and accidentally uninfl. (AAz)]. The quiescence of uninflectedness is named pause ; and its vowels Damm, Fath, and Kasr (M). Uninflectedness upon Kasr and Damm is found in the n. and p. [497] ; and uninflectedness upon Fath and quiescence in the n., v. [402], and p. [497] (IA). The uninfl. ns. [except such as may be anomalous or have been previously mentioned (M)] comprise [7 cats. (M),] the prons., the dems., the conjuncts, the verbal ns. and ejs., some of the advs., the comps., and the met. (M, IH).

THE PRONOUNS.

§ 160. The pron., named by the KK met., is what indicates (1) a 1st pers., as ^{أنا} I and ^{نحن} We: (2) a 2nd pers., as ^{أنت} Thou and ^{أنتم} Ye two: (3) a 3rd pers., as ^{هو} He or It and ^{هما} They two, (a) known, as ^{إنا أنزلناه} XCVII. 1. Verily We sent it down [433]: (b) prior, (a) unrestrictedly, as XXXVI. 39. [504]; (b) literally, but not in natural order, as ^{وَأَن ابْتَلَىٰ أَبْرَاهِيمَ رَبَّهُ} II. 118. And when his Lord tried Abraham; (c) in intention, as ^{فَأَوْجَسَ فِي نَفْسِهِ خِيفَةً مُّوسَىٰ} XX. 70. And Moses conceived fear in his mind: (c) posterior, unrestrictedly, in such as ^{قُلْ هُوَ اللَّهُ أَحَدٌ} CXII. 1. Say thou, It, i. e. The case [167], is this [27], God is one [609], XLV. 23. [539], ^{نَعَمْ رَجُلًا زَيْدٌ} Most excellent is he as a man, Zaid [469], ^{رَبِّهِ رَجُلًا} [168], ^{قَامَا وَقَعَدَا أَخَوَاكَ} [22], ^{ضَرْبَتَهُ زَيْدًا} [154], and ^{جَزَىٰ رَبَّهُ أَلْحَنَ} [20]; but the soundest opinion is that this [last] is a poetic license. The pron. must have an exponent explaining what is meant by it. If it denote a 1st or 2nd pers., its exponent is the presence of the person that it belongs to. If it denote a 3rd pers., its exponent is (1) not an expression, as XCVII. 1., i. e. the Kur'ān, whose celebrity and independence of exposition are thus attested: (2) an expression, (a) mostly prior, (a) literally and constructively, as XXXVI. 39.; (b) literally, but not constructively, as II. 118.; (c) constructively, but not literally, as XX. 70.: because ^ااِبْرَهِيمَ, being an obj., is meant to be understood as postpos.; and ^ممُوسَى, being an ag., is meant to be understood as prepos.: (b) sometimes posterior literally and in natural order (Sh). The positions where the pron. relates to an expression posterior literally and in natural order are 7, vid. where the pron. is (1) governed in the nom. by ^ننَعَمْ or ^ببُئْسَ, in which case it is expounded only by the sp., as ^زرَجُلًا زَيْدٌ and ^عرَجُلًا عَمْرُو; while the ^ففَعْلٌ that praise or blame is intended by [468] is coordinated with them, as VII. 176. [(475), orig. ^سسَوَا (DM)], ^ككِبَرَتْ

XVIII. 4. How great it is as a word that proceedeth!, and ^ظظَرْفٌ رَجُلًا زَيْدٌ How clever he is as a man, Zaid!: but, according to Fr and Ks, the particularized is the ag., and there is no pron. in the v., which is refuted by ^ننَعَمْ رَجُلًا كَانَ زَيْدٌ Such that most excellent was he as a man was Zaid!, the annuller not being prefixed to the ag., [but to the inch. (DM)]; and by the particularized's being sometimes suppressed [473], as ^ببُئْسَ لِلظَّالِمِينَ بَدَلًا

XVIII. 48. Most evil is it, i. e. the substitute [469], as a substitute for God, (Iblis and his offspring), [i. e. ^ااِبْلِيسُ

^ووَفَرِيقَتَهُ (B), the ag. not being suppressed (DM)]: (2) governed in the nom. by the 1st of 2 contending ops.

the 2nd of which is made to govern, as

جَفَرُونِي وَلَمْ أَجِفْ الْإِخْلَاءَ إِنِّي
لَغَيْرِ جَمِيلٍ مِنْ خَلِيلِي مُهْمَلٌ

[They behaved unkindly to me, and I behaved not unkindly to the friends: verily I am indifferent to unkindness from my friends (Jsh)]: (3) predicated of [by a single term

(DM)], in which case it is expounded by its enunc. or pred., as ^{XXIII. 39.} It, i. e. Life, is not aught save our lower life, orig., says Z

[followed by B], ^{ابن الصيرة} إِلَّا النَّعْ: (4) the pron. of the case and fact, [which is the pron. predicated of by a prop. expos. of it (DM),] as ^{CXH. 1.} فَإِذَا هِيَ شَاخِصَةٌ and ^{XXI. 97.} لَوْ أَنَّ عَيْنَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا Lo, it, i. e. the fact, will be this, staring will be the eyes of them that have disbelieved:

(5) governed in the gen. by ^{رَبِّ} [505], in which case its predicament is the same as that of the pron. of ^{نَعَمَ} and ^{بِئْسَ} in that its exponent must be a sp., and it itself must be sing., as

رَبَّةٌ قَتِيلَةٌ دَعَوْتُ إِلَى مَا * يُورِثُ الْمَجْدَ دَائِبًا فَاجَابُوا

[Many youths have I called to what entails glory perpetually, and they have answered! (Jsh)]; but it is always

masc., as رَبِّهَا امْرَأَةٌ, not رِبَّهَا, whereas نَعِمَتْ امْرَأَةٌ هِنْدُ [474] is said: (6) followed by an explicit subst. expos. of it, as ضَرْبُهُ زَيْدًا; and thus are explained اَللَّهُمَّ اَلْحِمْ him, the pitiful, the merciful and اَلْحِمْ بَقَرَقَرَى اَلْحِمْ him, the wretch [156], قَامُوا اِخْوَتَكَ [21], قَامَا اِخْوَاكَ [156], and قَمْنِ نَسَوَتَكَ (7) attached to a prior ag., its exponent being a posterior obj., as ضَرْبُ غُلَامَةٍ زَيْدًا, allowed by Akh and IJ, whence كَسَا حِلْمَةَ اَلْحِمْ and وَلَوْ اَنْ مَجْدًا اَلْحِمْ [20]; but the majority hold that in prose the obj. in the case of that [pron. attached to the ag. and relating to the obj. (DM)] must be prior, as II. 118. (ML). When 2 or more possible exponents precede, the exponent is the nearest, as جَاوَنِي زَيْدٌ وَبَكْرٌ قَضْرَبْتَهُ, i. e. I beat Bakr; but with [an explanatory] context may be the farthest, as مَا سَعَادُ اَلْحِمْ (R). In جَاوَنِي عَالِمٌ وَجَاهِلٌ فَكَرَمْتَهُ [149] the o. fr. is مَا هِيَ, the explicit n. being then made to act as a subst. for the pron., which is facilitated by their being in 2 opposite props., [nominal and verbal,] and in 2 verses, [the 1st of which بَانَتُ اَلْحِمْ is in § 22.,] and separated by a prop [فَقَلْبِي اَلْحِمْ]; and by the fact that repetition of the beloved's name is delighted in : and inferior to it is the saying of AlḤuṭai'a

أَلَا حَبْدًا هِنْدٌ وَأَرْضٌ بِهَا هِنْدٌ

Now dearly loved are Hind and a land that Hind is in !, because they are in one prop., repetition of the explicit n. in one prop. being good only on the occasion of magnifying, as وَأَصْحَابُ الْيَمِينِ مَا أَصْحَابُ الْيَمِينِ LVI. 26. And the companions of the right hand, what etc.? [29]; or aweing, as LXIX. 1. 2. [27] (BS). AlFind azZim-mānī says

مَشِينًا مَشِيدَةً اللَّيْثُ * غَدَاً وَاللَّيْثُ غَضْبَانٌ

We stalked (towards them) with the stalk of the lion, when he has come forth early, the lion being wrathful (from hunger), repeating اللَّيْثُ in the [same] verse, and not putting its pron., for the sake of solemnity and awe ; and they do that in the case of generic ns. and proper names, as says 'Adī Ibn Zaid

لَا أَرَى الْمَوْتَ يَسْبِقُ الْمَوْتَ شَيْءٌ

نَقَضَ الْمَوْتُ ذَا الْغَنَى وَالْفَقِيرَا

(T) I see not death to be such that aught outstrips death: death has troubled the life of the wealthy and the poor (Jsh). The pron. is (1) attached, [which is {inseparably (M)} attached (M, R) to its op. before it, being like a supplement to that op. and like some of its letters (R): and is (a) prominent, vid. what is expressed, like the ك in أَخُوک; (b) latent, vid. what is meant to be understood, like that which is in زَيْدٌ ضَرْبٌ (21) (M)] : (2) detached (M, IH), which is like the explicit n. (M, R) in its independence (M), whether it be separated from its op., as in مَا ضَرْبٌ إِلَّا أَيَّكَ ; or contiguous to it, as in مَا أَنْتَ مُنْطَلَقًا (R).

§ 161. The prons. are [all (IA)] uninfl. (R, IA, Sh) upon quiescence, as قَوْمًا, قَوْمِي, and قَوْمُوا ; Fath, as قُمَّتْ ; Kasr, as قُمْتُ ; and Damm, as قُمْتُ (Sh): (1) from their resemblance to ps. (a) in constitution, like the ضَرْبٌ in ضَرْبٌ [159] and ك in ضَرْبُكَ, while the rest of the prons., as أَنَا, أَنْتَ, نَحْنُ, and أَنْتُمْ, are similarly treated for the sake of uniformity ; or (b) in need of the exponent [160], as the p. needs an expression by means of which its sense may be intelligible [497]: or (2) from lack of the motive for inflection in them, because the requirer of inflection in ns. is the concentration of various meanings upon one form, while the prons. are independent of inflection through the variation of their forms on account of the variation of meanings, since the nom., acc., and gen. have each a special pron. (R). Some of them, however, are common to (1) the acc. and gen., vid. every attached acc. or gen. pron., as أَكْرَمْتُكَ and مَرَرْتُ : (2) the nom., acc., and gen., vid. (a)

نَا, as نُنَّا, فَنَّا, and بَنَا ; (b) the ي, as اِضْرِبِي [402], اَكْرَمْنِي [170], and مَرِّبِي ; (c) هُمْ, as قَاتِلُونَ, اَكْرَمُهُمْ, while the meaning is one, and is an attached pron. in the 3 cases ; whereas the ي, though used to denote the nom., acc., and gen., and an attached pron. in the 3 cases, is not of one meaning in the 3 cases, because in the nom.
 it denotes the 2nd pers., and in the acc. and gen. the 1st ; and هُمْ, though of one meaning in the 3 cases, is in the nom. a detached pron., and in the acc. and gen. an attached pron. (IA). The pron. is nom., acc., and gen., [because it occupies the place of the explicit n. (R, Jm)] :
 the 2 first being [each (Jm)] attached and detached ;
 and the 3rd only attached, [because the attached is like the last part of its op. in that they are not separable (160), while the gen. is so likewise (158), since separation of the pre. and post., though allowable in poetry (125), being bad with the explicit n., is not regarded in the constitution of the pron. (R)]. The pron. is, therefore, of 5 sorts, (1) [the attached nom., (like) the pron. of the pret. act. (Jm)] ضَرَبْتُ, ضَرَبْتَا, ضَرَبْتَ, ضَرَبْتُمَا, ضَرَبْتُ, ضَرَبْتُمَا, ضَرَبْتَ, ضَرَبْتُمَا, ضَرَبْتُ, ضَرَبْتُمَا to ضَرَبْتُ ; and [analogously of the pass. (Jm)] ضَرَبْتُ to ضَرَبْتُ : (2) [the detached nom. (Jm)], اَنَا, اَنْتَ, اَنْتِ,

(Jm),] to ^{هُم} هُمْ, ^{هُمَا} هُمَا, ^{هِيَ} هِيَ, ^{هُوَ} هُوَ, ^{أَنْتَ} أَنْتَ, ^{أَنْتِ} أَنْتِ, ^{أَنْتُمْ} أَنْتُمْ, ^{أَنْتُنَّ} أَنْتُنَّ,

(3) [the attached acc., which is attached to the v., as ^{هِيَ} هِيَ :

(Jm)] ^{ضَرْبُكُمْ} ضَرْبُكُمْ, ^{ضَرْبُكُمَا} ضَرْبُكُمَا, ^{ضَرْبُكَ} ضَرْبُكَ, ^{ضَرْبُكِ} ضَرْبُكِ, ^{ضَرْبُنَا} ضَرْبُنَا, ^{ضَرْبِنِي} ضَرْبِنِي,

; ^{ضَرْبُهُنَّ} ضَرْبُهُنَّ to (Jm),] ^{ضَرْبُهُم} ضَرْبُهُم, ^{ضَرْبُهَا} ضَرْبُهَا, ^{ضَرْبَهُ} ضَرْبَهُ, ^{ضَرْبُكِ} ضَرْبُكِ ;

and [to something else, as (Jm)] ^{أَنْتَ} أَنْتَ, ^{أَنْتِ} أَنْتِ, ^{أَنْنِي} أَنْنِي,

(4) : ^{أَنْهَى} أَنْهَى to (Jm), etc.,] ^{أَنْتَ} أَنْتَ, ^{أَنْتِ} أَنْتِ, ^{أَنْكُمْ} أَنْكُمْ, ^{أَنْكُمَا} أَنْكُمَا, ^{أَنْكِ} أَنْكِ,

[the detached acc. (Jm)] ^{أَيَّاكَ} أَيَّاكَ, ^{أَيَّاكِ} أَيَّاكِ, ^{أَيَّاَنَا} أَيَّاَنَا, ^{أَيَّاِي} أَيَّاِي,

(5) : ^{أَيَّاهُنَّ} أَيَّاهُنَّ to (Jm), etc.,] ^{أَيَّاهُ} أَيَّاهُ, ^{أَيَّاكِ} أَيَّاكِ, ^{أَيَّاكُمْ} أَيَّاكُمْ,

[the attached gen., which is attached to the n., as (Jm)] ^{غُلَامُنَا} غُلَامُنَا, ^{غُلَامِي} غُلَامِي,

; and [to the p., as (Jm)] ^{غُلَامُكَ} غُلَامُكَ, etc.,] to ^{غُلَامُهُنَّ} غُلَامُهُنَّ ;

and [to the p., as (Jm)] ^{لَهُنَّ} لَهُنَّ (IH). Each of these 5 sorts denotes 18 meanings, because each of them denotes a 1st, 2nd, or 3rd pers.; and these 3, being each sing., du., or pl., become 9 ; and each of the 9 is masc. or fem. :

so that 6 [meanings] belong to the 1st pers., 6 to the 2nd, and 6 to the 3rd (R); and by analogy the prons. of each pers. should be 6 in number (Jm). But the Arabs constitute (1) for the 1st pers. 2 expressions, that indicate

[the (R)] 6 meanings [mentioned (R)], as ^{ضَرْبُتُ} ضَرْبُتُ and

^{ضَرْبُنَا} ضَرْبُنَا, [the pron. of (Jm)] ^{ضَرْبُتُ} ضَرْبُتُ being common to the sing. masc. and fem., and [the pron. of (Jm)]

^{ضَرْبُنَا} ضَرْبُنَا to the du. and pl., masc. and fem. : [(a) they make the 1st pers., sing. or otherwise, common to the masc. and fem., because of the rarity of ambiguity in the 1st pers.: (b) they coin a form, vid. ^{أَنتَ}, as likewise is the case with ^{نَحْنُ}, for the du. and pl. of the 1st pers., and do not add an l for the du. and و for the pl., as they do in the du. and pl. of the 2nd and 3rd pers., because, when told to distribute ^{أَنْتُمْ} and ^{أَنْتَ}, you say ^{أَنْتَ يَا زَيْدَ وَأَنْتَ يَا عَمْرُو} and ^{أَنْتَ يَا زَيْدَ وَأَنْتَ يَا عَمْرُو}, whereas, when told to distribute ^{نَحْنُ}, you say, when you mean the du., ^{أَنَا وَزَيْدٌ} or ^{أَنَا} ^{وَهُوَ وَأَنْتَ}, and, when you mean the pl., ^{أَنَا وَزَيْدٌ} ^{وَعَمْرُو}, each of its individuals not being ^{أَنَا}; so that, since the condition of the du. and pl., vid. agreement of the 2 or more ns. in letter is not realized (in the 1st pers.), the constituents of its du. and pl. do not agree with those of the other dus. and pls.; and therefore they coin a form for the du., and make it common to the pl. because of the security from ambiguity owing to the sight (of the persons meant): (c) the great man sometimes says ^{نَحْنُ}, ^{فَعَلْنَا}, and ^{أَيَّانَا}, reckoning himself to be like a multitude (R)]: (2) for the 2nd pers. 5 expressions, 4 proper, [vid. ^{ضَرَبْتَ}, ^{ضَرَبْتُمْ}, ^{ضَرَبْتَنِي}, and ^{ضَرَبْتُمْ} (R)]; and 1 common to the du. masc. and fem., [vid. ^{ضَرَبْتُمَا} (R)]: (3) for the 3rd pers.

the same assortment as for the 2nd, [as ضَرَبْتُ , ضَرَبَ , ضَرَبَا , ضَرَبْتُمَا , ضَرَبُوا , and ضَرَبْتُمْ (R),] the pron. [in ضَرَبَا and ضَرَبْتُمَا (Jm)] being the l common to the 2 du.; [whereas the 2 prons. supplied in ضَرَبَ and ضَرَبْتُمْ must be different one from the other, like the detached prons. هُوَ and هِيَ (R)]. The rest of the 5 sorts follow this course, i. e. the 1st pers. has 2 expressions, the 2nd 5, and the 3rd 5, the total being 12 words denoting 18 meanings (R, Jm); so that the aggregate of the 5 sorts is 60 words denoting 90 meanings (Jm). The ت made mobile in the endings of vs. is a pron., as قُمْتُ , قُمْتِ , and قُمْتُمْ (ML). They pronounce the ت (1) of the 1st pers. sing. with Damm, because of the affinity of Damma to the vowel of the ag.: (2) of the 2nd pers. sing. (a) in the masc. with Fath, for distinction between it and the 1st pers. sing. and for alleviation; (b) in the fem. with Kasr. They add م before the l of the du. in تُمَا and م of the pl. [masc.] in تُمُو , in order that the du. may not be confounded with the 2nd pers. sing. masc. when its Fatha is impleted because of unbinding, nor the pl. with the 1st pers. sing. whose Damma is impleted: the م being the letter most suitable for addition, because the unsound letters are deemed heavy before the l and م; while the م is the nearest of the sound letters to the unsound ones, because it is nasal and labial like the م, for which reason what precedes it is pronounced with Damm, like what precedes the و. Elision of the و of the pl. with quiescence of the م, if not immediately followed by a pron., is commoner than retention of the و preceded by Damm, because the و at the end preceded by Damm is deemed heavy [721]; whereas, if the م of the pl. be followed immediately by a pron., as ^{ضربتموه} ضربتموه, the Damm and و must be restored, because, the [subsequent] pron. being through its attachment like one of the letters of the word, the و as it were does not occur at the end. The م of the pl., when met by a quiescent after it, is pronounced with Damm, because it is restored to its o. f.; but Kasr of it is allowed, as will be shown [in the 2nd ضربتم below]. A و doubled to correspond with the م and و in the masc. is added for the [pl.] fem., the و being chosen from its resemblance, as being nasal, to the م and و together, while all 3 are letters of augmentation [671] (R). A strange fact about the و is that it is divested of allocution, [the allocution understood from the ك being held sufficient (DM),] and is invariably sing. masc., [even though the party addressed by the expression containing it be du. masc. or fem., pl. masc., sing. fem., or pl. fem., as (DM)] in ^{ارايتمكم} ارايتكم, ^{ارايتمكن} ارايتكن, [560], ^{ارايتمكن} ارايتكن, and ^{ارايتمكن} ارايتكن, since, if they said ^{ارايتماكن} ارايتماكن, they would combine 2 allocutions [in one sentence (DM)]; whereas, when they abstain from combining them in ^{يا غلامكم} يا غلامكم, so that they do not say it, as they say ^{يا غلامنا} يا غلامنا

and ^{أَءْلَامُهُمْ} يَا ^{أَءْلَامُهُمْ} , notwithstanding that in the ^{أَءْلَامُ} the allocation is adventitious because of the vocation, [not original (DM),] and that ^{أَءْلَامُكُمْ} يَا ^{أَءْلَامُكُمْ} is an address to two [different parties], not to one, this is more fit [to be disallowed, because the allocution in it is original, not adventitious, and the party addressed by it is one, not two (DM)], while ^{أَءْلَامِيَّةُ} يَا ^{أَءْلَامِيَّةُ} [55] is allowable only because the lamented is not really addressed (ML), but merely grieved over (DM). The [attached nom.] pron. of the 3rd pers. sing. masc. and fem. is latent [165], because, since the exponent of the 3rd pers. is orig. a prior expression, contrary to those of the 2nd and 3rd pers., they mean the prons. of the 3rd pers. to be shorter than those of the 2 others : so that they begin in the 2 sings. with the extreme of abbreviation, vid. supplying without expressing anything ; and restrict themselves in the du. masc. and fem. to the ا , which is the sign of dualization in every du. ; and in the pl. masc. to the و , which is sometimes dispensed with by the aid of the Damma in poetic license, as

وَلَوْ أَنَّ الْأَطِبَّاءَ كَانُوا حَوْلِي * وَكَانَ مَعَ الْأَطِبَّاءِ الْأَسَاءَةُ

[And, if it were the case that the physicians were around me, and the surgeons were with the physicians, orig. كَانُوا (Jsh)], because the و preceded by Damm is deemed heavy at the end ; and [in the pl. fem.] to a single ف corresponding with the و , since it is single. The و in ^{ضَرَبَتْ} and ^{ضَرَبَتْهَا} is a p. denoting femininization [607], not a pron., as is proved by ^{ضَرَبَتْ هُنْدُ} (R). The ^ا, ^و, and ^ي are attached nom. prons., denoting the 3rd pers., as ^{الْزَيْدَانِ قَامَا} [20], ^{الزَّيْدُونَ قَامُوا}, and ^{الْهِنْدَاتُ قُمْنَ}; and the 2nd, as ^{اعْلَمُوا}, ^{اعْلَمَ}, and ^{اعْلَمْنِ}; but not the 1st (IA). The ^و is sometimes used for irrational objects, when treated like rational beings, as ^{يَا أَيُّهَا النَّمْلُ ادْخُلُوا مَسَاكِنَكُمْ} XXVIII. 18. O ye ants, enter etc. [611], because the allocution is addressed to them, [allocution being addressed only to rational beings (DM)]; but the saying [of AnNābigha alJa'dī (Jsh)]

شَرِبْتُ بِهَا وَالَّذِيكَ يَدْعُو صَبَاحَهُ
إِذَا مَا بَنُو نَعَشٍ دَنُوا فَتَصَوَّبُوا

[Did I drink of (the pron. in ^{بِهَا} relating to the ^{صُهْبَاءُ} mentioned in the preceding verse ^{وَصُهْبَاءُ الْخَمِّ} And many a red wine etc.), while the cock was crowing in his morning, when the stars in the tail of Ursa Minor had drawn near to the west and set (Jsh)] is anomalous, [because allocution is not found in it (DM),] what emboldens him to that being his saying ^{بَنُو}, not ^{بَنَاتُ} (ML). The ^ا, ^و, and ^ي are seldom ps. [21, 497], like the ^و of femininization (R). The ^ي is a pron. denoting the [2nd pers.]

sing. fem. [402], as تَقْوِمِينَ and تَوْمِي (ML). In the aor. the [attached nom.] pron. is not made prominent in أَفْعَلْ and نَفْعَلْ [165], because the two aoristic letters [404] notify the ag., since أَفْعَلْ notifies that its ag. is أَنَا, and نَفْعَلْ that its ag. is نَحْنُ; and similarly, يَفْعَلْ being proper to the 3rd pers. sing. masc., they do not need a prominent pron. for it; and, though تَفْعَلْ is common to the 2nd pers. sing. masc. and 3rd pers. sing. fem., still they do not make its pron. prominent, in order to treat the sings. of the aor. uniformly; and perhaps this is what induces Akh to say that the ي in تَضَرَّبِينَ is not a pron., but a p. of femininization, and the pron. necessarily latent: while the predicament of the imp. أَفْعَلْ and prohib. لَا تَفْعَلْ is that of تَفْعَلْ for the 2nd pers. sing. masc., because the imp. and prohib. are derived from the aor. [428, 419, 603]. The [attached] nom. prons. are not made prominent in the eps., i. e. act. and pass. parts. and assimilate ep., because, their requirement of the ag. not being radical, but due to resemblance to the v., the pron. of the ag. does not appear in them, as likewise is the case with the verbal ns. and advs. [168, 165, 187]: and also because, the ل and ر in the du. and pls. of prim. substantives, like الزَّيْدَانِ and الزَّيْدُونَ, being undoubtedly letters added as a sign of the du. and pls., and the du. and pls. of ops. being modelled upon the du. and pls. of prims., the ! becomes a sign of the du., and the , of the pl., so that it is impossible for the ! and , of the pron. to be conjoined with the du. and pl., lest two *!*s and two *,*s be combined, and therefore the 2 prons. become covert, the ! in the du. and the , in the pl., the proof that the expressed ! and , are not prons. being their convertibility [into ى] by the ops., as ضَارِبِي and لَقَيْتُ ضَارِبِي, whereas the ag. is not altered by the ops. prefixed to its op.; while the ن likewise becomes covert in ضَارِبَات and مَضْرُوبَات in imitation of the pron. in the pl. masc., since it is the o. f.; and, since the pron. is latent in the du. and pl., it is a fortiori latent in their sings.; so that it is invariably latent in all [numbers and genders] (R). The detached nom. is (1) 1st pers., (a) sing. أَنَا; (b) associated with or magnifying himself نَحْنُ; (2) 2nd pers., (a) sing., masc. أَنْتَ and fem. أَنْتِ; (b) du., masc. or fem. أَنْتُمَا; (c) pl., masc. أَنْتُمْ and fem. أَنْتُنَّ; (3) 3rd pers., (a) sing., masc. هُوَ and fem. هِيَ; (b) du., masc. or fem. هُمَا; (c) pl., masc. هُمْ and fem. هُنَّ (IA). According to the BB, انا is a Hamza and ن pronounced with Fath; and the ! is put after the ن in pause to make the Fatha plain, because, if it were not for the !, the Fatha would drop off on account of the pause, so that it might be confounded with the p. ^أأى ; and therefore it is written with the ʾ, because orthography is based upon [the forms of] pause and inception : but sometimes its ى is paused upon quiescent, or its Fatha is made plain in pause by the ʾ of silence [615]; and the ʾ is retained in continuity also by the Banū Tamīm as matter of choice, but by others only as a poetic license, as

أَنَا سَيْفُ الْعَشِيرَةِ فَأَعْرِفُونِي * حَمِيدًا قَدْ تَذَرَيْتُ السَّنَامَا

[I am the sword of the paternal kinsfolk; wherefore know ye me praiseworthy, having mounted upon the summit (Jsh)]. The KK, however, hold that the ʾ after the ى is part of the word itself ; but its mostly dropping off [in pronunciation] in continuity, with Fath and sometimes quiescence of the ى, and the alternation of the ʾ of silence with it in pause are proofs that it is aug. and intended to make the vowel plain in pause. [The final of] نَحْنُ is vocalized because of the 2 quiescents ; and is pronounced with Damm, either because نَحْنُ is a nom. pron., or because it denotes the pl., whose property is the و. The pron. in أَنْتَ to أَنْتِ, according to the BB, is ^أأى, its o. f. being أَنَا, which, according to them, is a pron. applicable to all the 2nd perss. and to the 1st pers. sing.; so that they begin with the 1st pers., and, though by analogy they ought to distinguish it by the ى pronounced with Damm, as أَنْتِ, still, since the 1st pers. is original, they make omission of the sign & sign of it, and distinguish the 2nd pers. by a p. ت [560] after ان, like the n. [ت] in letter and plasticity. But Fr holds that انت in its entirety is a n., the ت being part of the word itself : while some say that the nom. pron. is the plastic ت that is an attached nom., and that, when they mean it to be detached, they support it with ان in order that it may be independent, as some of the KK and IK hold that the plastic ك in ايك is [an] attached [acc.], and that, when they mean it to be literally independent, in order that it may become detached, they make ايا a support for it, so that the pron. is what follows ايا [162]; and I think this saying to be not far from right in both cases. The و and ي in هو and هي are, according to the BB, an original part of the word ; and, according to the KK, an impletion, the pron. being the ه alone, on the evidence of the du. and pl., where you elide them : but the 1st is right, because the letter of impletion is not vocalized, nor even authorized except as a poetic license. The و and ي are vocalized in order that the word, becoming independent by means of the Fatha, may be fit to be a detached pron., since, if it were not for the vowel, they would be as it were impletions, as the KK think ; for, when you mean the word not to be independent, you make the و and ي quiescent, as انهو and انهي [converted, as will be shown, into ^{أَنتَ}انها]: but the ^و and ^ي are sometimes elided by poetic license, as [^{وَ}اكْفِيهِ ^{أَلْخ} (501),]

فَبَيْنَمَا يَشْرِي رَحْلَهُ قَالَ قَائِلٌ * لِمَنْ جَمَلٌ رَخْوٌ أَلَمْ لَا نَجِيبُ

Then, while he was selling his camel-saddle, a sayer said, Who has a he-camel soft in the side of the hump, well-bred?, and ^{دَارُ}أَلْخ [333]; and are made quiescent by

Kais and Asad; and doubled by Hamdān, as ^{وَأَنْ}لِسَانِي

[498]. The du. and pl. are lightened by elision of the ^و and ^ي; and the addition of the ^م [in the du. and pl. masc.], the elision of the ^و in the pl. masc., and the addition of the two ^نs in the pl. fem., are exactly according to what we mentioned in the attached [nom.].

These detached nom. prons. are common to the pret., aor., imp., and eps.; and are not like the attached noms., none of which are common to the pret. and aor., except the ^{أَنَا}أَنَا, ^{مَا}يَضْرِبُ, ^{مَا}مَا ضَرَبَ, ^{أَلَّا}أَلَّا هُوَ, and ^{نَا}نَا: you say ^{أَنَا}أَنَا, ^{أَضْرِبُ}أَضْرِبُ هُمَا, and ^{أَلَّا}أَلَّا أَنَا.

They constitute for the 1st pers. sing. of the attached acc. and gen. a ^يي either quiescent or pronounced with Fath [129]; and for the 1st pers. with others ^{نَا}نَا, as in the attached nom.: and for the 2nd pers. the ^{كَ}كَ, like the ^تت in plasticity, as ^{كُنْ}كُنْ, ^{كُمَا}كُمَا, ^{كِي}كِي, while the elision of the ^و , from [the pl. masc., as] ^{عَلَيْكُمْ}عَلَيْكُمْ, and the quiescence of the م are as we described in ضَرَبْتُمْ : and they abridge the two sings. of the 3rd pers. from the detached nom., eliding the vowel of the و and ی from هُوَ and هِیَ, and converting the ی of هِیَ into ا, so that it becomes هَا ; because, the pron. of the masc., when it immediately follows Kasr, having its و converted into ی, as یَہِیَ, they fear confusion of the fem. with the masc. The vowel of the ڤ in the sing. masc. is Damma, unless it be preceded by a [quiescent] ی or a Kasra : and, if it be preceded by either of them, the people of AlHijāz preserve its Damma, saying لَدِیْہِو and یَہِو ; but others pronounce it with Kasr, because the ڤ, being a light letter, is not an impassable barrier, so that the quiescent و as it were immediately follows the Kasra or ی, and is therefore converted into ی, while the ڤ is pronounced with Kasr on account of the ی after it : whereas, if the quiescent be any other than the ی, Damm of the ڤ is agreed upon, except that, as F transmits, a people of Bakr Ibn Wā'il pronounce it with Kasr in the sing. masc., du., and two pls., as مِنْہُ, مِنْہَا, مِنْہُمْ, and مِنْہُنَّ [below]. If the ڤ of the sing. masc. immediately follow a mobile, its vowel is impleted, as غُلَامُہُو, ضَرَبُہُو, لَہُو, and یَہِیَ, a و being engendered from the Damm, and a ى from the Kasr: though the Banū 'Ukail and Kilāb allow elision of the conj., i. e. the , and ى, after the mobile as matter of choice, with retention of the Damma or Kasra of the ى, as غَالِمَةٌ and بِهٖ, and also with quiescence of the ى; while others allow both, i. e. slurring and elision of the vowel, as a poetic license, not as matter of choice. But, if the ى of the sing. masc. immediately follow a quiescent, whether a soft letter, as in عَلَيْهِ, or any other, as in مِنْهُ, the vowel is preferably slurred, i. e. the conj. is omitted, because, the ى being a faint letter, [if the conj. were put,] 2 quiescents would as it were meet together; while Ibn Kathīr conjoins unrestrictedly, as عَلَيْهِ, مِنْهُ, and the like. Thus in the ى of the sing. masc. after the Kasra or [quiescent] ى there are with respect to its Damm, Kasr, slurring, and conjunction 4 dials., Kasr being the commonest, (1) Kasr of the ى, (a) not conjoined with a ى, [as بِهٖ and عَلَيْهِ,] which is more frequent after the ى than after the Kasra, because in the 1st case [if the ى were conjoined with a ى] there would be a quasi-concurrence of 2 quiescents; (b) conjoined with a ى, as بِهِ and عَلَيْهِ, which is commoner after the Kasra than after the ى, because of what we have just mentioned:

(2) Damm of the δ , (a) with the γ , as $\gamma\delta$ and $\gamma\delta$;
 (b) without a γ , as δ and δ : while after the Kasra there is a 5th dial., vid. making the Kasr of the δ to smack somewhat of Damma without conjunction. And, if a soft letter be elided before the δ of the sing. masc., because of apocopation, as in δ XXXIX. 9. He will approve it and δ IV. 115. And We will burn him, or pause [431], as in δ XXVII. 28. And cast thou it, the vowel of the δ may be impleted from regard to the mobile literally before it, or slurred from regard to the quiescent accidentally elided before it; or the δ may be made quiescent by treating continuity like pause: with all of which pronunciations the Kur'ān is read. The δ in the du. and 2 pls., (1) if preceded by a Fatha or Damma, is pronounced with Damm, as δ and δ :
 (2) if preceded by an ι , γ , or sound quiescent, is likewise so pronounced; except in what F transmits [above], such as δ , δ , δ , and δ , because of the alliteration, and because the barrier is reckoned to be not impassable on account of its quiescence: (3) if preceded by a Kasra or [quiescent] δ , is pronounced (a) with Damm by those who say in the sing. δ and δ , vid. the people of AlHijāz, as δ and δ ,

غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ and غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ and غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ and غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ and غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ and غَلَامِيَّهِنَّ

while Hamza makes Damm in the pl. masc. peculiar to 3 words, عَلَيْهِم, إِلَيْهِمْ, and لَدَيْهِمْ, because, as is said, the ي in them, being a subst. for the ا, is given the predicament of its o. f.; but, according to this reasoning, he ought to read in the sing. masc., du., and pl. fem. عَلَيْهِ, عَلَيْهَا, and عَلَيْهِنَّ, whereas he does not do so:

(b) with Kasr unrestrictedly by others than the people of AlHijāz, as in the sing. masc., which is commoner. The م of the pl. after the ذ pronounced with Kasr, (1) if paused upon, must be made quiescent after elision of its conj.: (2) if not paused upon, then, (a) if followed by a quiescent, is more agreeably with analogy pronounced with Kasr, because of the alliteration to the Kasr of the ذ and because of the concurrence of 2 quiescents

[664], as مِنْ نَوْنِهِنَّ امْرَأَتَيْنِ XXVIII. 23. Below them

two women and عَلَيْهِمُ الذِّلَّةُ II. 58. [And] abjectness

[and poverty were made to cleave] to them, according to the reading of Abū 'Amr; while the rest of the Readers pronounce the م with Damm from regard to the o. f.:

(b) if followed by a mobile, is most commonly made quiescent, as I. 6. 7. [498]; while some implete the

Damm of the م, as عَلَيْهِمُ غَيْرُ الْمَغْضُوبِ عَلَيْهِمْ, like the reading of Ibn Kathīr; and impletion of the Kasr is more agreeable with analogy, because of the alliteration.

Thus the μ after the δ pronounced with Kasr has 5 states, 2 before the quiescent, vid. Kasr and Damm, each with slurring, i. e. omission of the conj.; and 3 before the mobile, vid. quiescence, impletion of Damm, and impletion of Kasr. And the μ after the δ pronounced with Damm in accordance with the practice of the people of AlHijāz in ^{أَءِ}بِهِمْ and ^{أَءِ}عَلَيْهِمْ, and with common consent in such as ^{أَءِ}لَهُمْ, ^{أَءِ}غَلَامُهُمْ, and ^{أَءِ}قَفَّاهُمْ, and with the commonest usage in ^{أَءِ}مَنْهُمْ—as likewise [the μ of the pl.] in ^{أَءِ}أَنْتُمْ, ^{أَءِ}ضَرَبْتُمْ [above], and ^{أَءِ}غَلَامَكُمْ—has also 5 states, 2 before the quiescent, vid. Damm, which is more agreeable with analogy and commoner, because of the alliteration and from regard for the o. f.; and Kasr, from regard to the 2 quiescents, which is extremely rare, and is disallowed by F : and 3 before the mobile, vid. quiescence, which is the commonest; Damm and conjunction with a μ ; and Kasr and conjunction with a μ , which is peculiar to the μ whose δ is preceded by a Kasra or [quiescent] μ , as ^{أَءِ}بِهِمْ and ^{أَءِ}عَلَيْهِمْ, the μ being pronounced with Kasr for homogeneity with the Kasra or μ before the δ , and the μ converted into μ on account of the Kasra of the μ , which also is disallowed by F (R). The detached acc.

is (1) 1st pers., (a) sing. أَيَّيْ ; (b) associated with or magnifying himself أَيَّنَا : (2) 2nd pers., (a) sing., masc. أَيَّكَ and fem. أَيَّاكَ ; (b) du., masc. or fem. أَيَّكُمَا ; (c) pl., masc. أَيَّكُمْ and fem. أَيَّاكُنَّ : (3) 3rd pers., (a) sing., masc. أَيَّاهُ and fem. أَيَّاها ; (b) du., masc. or fem. أَيَّاهُمَا ; (c) pl., masc. أَيَّاهُمْ and fem. أَيَّاهُنَّ (IA).

To constitute the detached acc. they put أَيَّ followed by the form of the pron. of the attached acc. [162]. They make the pron. of the gen. accord with that of the acc., because the gen. is [also] an obj., but through a medium; and make it accord with the expression of the attached acc., because the gen. must be attached: so that the pron. of the gen. is exactly like that of the attached acc.

(R). The ي, ك, and ؤ, when attached to the v. are objs.; and, when attached to the n., are post. From the 1st [rule], however, are excepted such [phrases] as

أَرَايَتَكَ زَيْدًا مَا صَنَعَ [560]: and from the 2nd two sorts,

(1) one where these expressions have no [inflectional] place, as in ذَلِكَ and تِلْكَ [172], and أَيَّ [162], أَيَّكَ, and أَيَّاهُ :

(2) one where they are in the place of an acc., as in (a) الضَّارِبُكَ and الضَّارِبَةُ [113], according to S;

(b) their saying لَا أَعْلَمُ قَفَا مِنْهُ وَلَا أَوْضَعُهُ

I have no knowledge of a baser fellow as to back of the head than him, nor of a viler as to it with Fath of the ع, the ṣ being in the position of an acc., like the ṣ in الضَّارِبَةُ, except that the latter [ṣ (DM)] is an obj., and the former assimilated to the obj., because the n. of superiority does not govern the obj. in the acc., and not being post., otherwise اَوْضَعَ would be put into the gen. with Kasra [17]; (c) the saying [of AlAhwas (Jsh)]

لَنْ كَانِ النِّكَاحُ أَحْلَ شَيْئًا * فَإِنَّ نِكَاحَهَا مَطَرٌ حَرَامٌ

[Assuredly, if wedlock be such that it makes lawful a thing unlawful, verily Maṭar's wedding her is unlawful (Jsh)], in the version with مَطَرٌ in the gen., the pron. being in the acc. as an obj., and separating the pre. [inf. n. (DM)] and post. [ag. (DM)]. The ك in رَوَيْدَكَ زَيْدًا [i. q. amēl (DM),] is a p. of allocution, [زَيْدًا being an obj., and the ag. a latent pron. (DM)]; but, if you construe it to be an inf. n., [i. q. arḍat and amēl, governed in the acc. by a suppressed v., i. e. arḍat رَوَيْدَكَ (DM),] is a post. n., [the inf. n. being pre. to its ag. (DM),] whose place is the nom., because it is an ag. (ML). In XXIII. 101. [598] God is addressed with the pl. for magnification, like

فَإِنْ شِئْتِ حَرَمْتُ النِّسَاءَ سِوَاكِمْ
وَإِنْ شِئْتِ لَمْ أَطْعَمْ نَفَاخًا وَلَا بَرْدًا

[by Al'Arjī, And, if thou wish, I will forbid myself women, except you; and, if thou wish, I will not taste sweet cool water nor sleep, a single woman being sometimes addressed with the pl. masc., as a man says of his wife كَذَا فَعَلُوا from taking such extraordinary pains to conceal her that he does not even utter the pron. applicable to her, whence لَاهِلَهُ أَمْكُتُوا XX. 9. And said to his wife, Bide ye here (N),] and

أَلَا فَارْحَمُونِي يَا إِلَهَ مُحَمَّدٍ * فَإِنْ لَمْ أَكُنْ أَهْلًا فَانْتَ لَهُ أَهْلٌ
(K) Now, then, have Ye mercy upon me, O God of Muhammad: for, if I be not worthy of mercy, Thou art worthy of having it (Jsh), it being a way of the Arabs to say to a great man and august sovereign انظُرُوا فِي امرى Look ye into mine affair, because lords and kings say نَحْنُ فَعَلْنَا and أَنَا أَمَرْنَا (N). 'Akil Ibn 'Ullafa alMurri says

وَلَسْتُ بِسَائِلٍ جَارَاتِ بَيْتِي * أَغْيَابُ رِجَالِكِ أَمْ شُهُودُ

And I am not one to ask the female neighbours of my tent, Are your husbands absent or present?, orig. رِجَالِكُنَّ; but this is allowable in poetry only (T). In ^{وَاتُوا النِّسَاءَ} and ^{صُدَّقَاتِهِنَّ نِحْلَةً فَإِنَّ النَّخَ} IV. 3. And give ye the women their dowries freely ; but, if etc. [85] the pron. in ^{مِنْهُ} is treated like the dem., as though ^{مِنْ ذَلِكَ} were said, like ^{أَوْ نَبِّئُكُمْ بِخَيْرٍ مِنْ ذَلِكَ} III. 13. Say thou, Shall I tell you of a better than that ? after the mention of the ^{شَهَوَاتِ} lusts, one of the proofs heard from the mouths of the Arabs being that Ru'ba [Ibn Al'Ajjāj (Jsh)] is related to have said respecting his own saying

^{قَوْدُ ثَمَانٍ مِثْلُ أَمْرَاسٍ أَلْبَقِ * فِيهَا خُطُوطٌ مِنْ سَوَادٍ وَبَلَقِ}
^{كَانَهُ فِي الْجِلْدِ تَوَلِّيعٌ أَلْبَهُقُ * لَوَاحِقُ الْأَقْرَابِ فِيهَا كَالْمَقِقِ}
[Eight horses long in the back and neck, like ropes of hemp, wherein are streaks of black and piebald, as though that were in the skin the blotchiness of leprosy, lank in the bellies, wherein is inordinate length with slenderness (509) (Jsh),] that he meant كَانِ ذَاكَ [171] (K).

§ 162. S, Khl, Akh, Mz, and F say that the [detached acc. (K, B on II. 4.)] pron. is ^{إِيَّا} [161]: but S says that what is attached to it is a p. [560, 562] indicating the states of the [person] referred to, vid. speaking, being addressed, and absence, since ^{إِيَّا} is homonymous ; while Khl, Akh, and Mz say that it is a n. that ^{إِيَّا} is pre.

to, because of the [anomalous (K, B)] saying [transmitted by Khl (K, B)] إِذَا بَلَغَ الرَّجُلُ السَّتِينَ فَأَيُّهُ ^ع الشَّوَابُ ^ع When the man reaches the age of sixty years, let him [60] beware of the young women, which is weak, because the prons. are not pre. [112]. Zj and Sf say that أَيُّهُ is an explicit n. pre. to the prons., as though أَيُّهُ were i. q. نَفْسُكَ ^ع thyself. Many of the KK say that أَيُّهُ ^ع, أَيُّهُ ^ع, and أَيُّهُ ^ع in their entirety are ns., which is weak, since there is no n., explicit or pronominal, whose final is successively ي, ك, and ة. And some of the KK and IK among the BB say that the prons. are the suffixes to أَيُّهُ ^ع; and that أَيُّهُ ^ع is a support for them, by means of which they become detached [161] (R).

§ 163. The attached pron. being shorter (Jm), the detached [pron., nom. or acc. (Jm),] is not allowable, except on account of the impossibility of the attached through (1) precedence [of the pron. (Jm)] before its op., as أَيُّهُ ^ع ضَرَبْتُ : (2) separation for an object [not realized except by means of separation (Jm)], as أَنَا ^ع مَا ضَرَبَكَ إِلَّا أَنَا ^ع, [where the object is particularization (Jm)]; while the saying {of AlFarazdak (J)}

بِالْبَيْتِ الْوَارِثِ الْأَمْوَاتِ قَدْ ضَمَنْتُ
أَيُّهُمُ الْأَرْضُ فِي دَهْرِ الدَّهَارِ

{ By the Raiser, the Inheritor of the dead, when the earth has inclosed them in the time of calamities! (J) } is a poetic license (R) : (3) suppression [of its op. (Jm)], as ^{شَرِّ} ^{وَالشَّرِّ} ^{أَيَّامَ} [60] : (4) the op.'s being (a) id., as ^{أَنَا} ^{زَيْدٌ} [24]; (b) a p., when the pron. [governed by it (Jm)] is a nom., as ^{مَا} ^{أَنْتَ} ^{قَائِمًا}, [since the nom. pron. is not attached to the p. (Jm)] : (5) the pron.'s being the subject of an [act. or pass. part. or assimilate (R)] ep. applied to a person [or thing (Jm)] other than the one that [the quality denoted by] it belongs to, as ^{هِيَ} ^{زَيْدٌ} ^{ضَارِبَتُهُ} ^{هِيَ} [26]

(IH); but that is correct only if ^{هِيَ} be an ag., not a corrob. [below], otherwise it would be included in the case of separation for the object of corroboration (Jm). If the nom. or acc. pron. be governed by the v., it must be attached to its op., except (1) when it precedes its op., being then only an acc., as I. 4. [20] : (2) when the op. is suppressed, as ^{أَنْتَ} ^{ضَرَبْتَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{ضَرَبْتَهُ} [62], ^{أَنْتَ} ^{ضَرَبْتَ} [23, 591], and ^{أَيَّامَ} said in reply to "Whom shall I beat?"

[45]; whereas ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} [60] is a case of precedence of the obj. before its op., [i. e. ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} ^{أَيَّامَ} (R on cautioning)] : (3) when it is separated from its op. for an object not fulfilled except by means of separation, vid. when it is (a) an appos.; (a) a corrob., as II. 33. [158]

and لَقَيْتُكَ أَيَاكَ ; (b) a subst., as زَيْدًا أَيَا after أَخْرَجَ [154]; (c) coupled, as زَيْدٌ وَأَنْتَ : (b) after مَا ضَرَبْتُ إِلَّا أَنَا and مَا ضَرَبْتُ إِلَّا أَيَاكَ , while وَمَا نُبَالِي إِذَا مَا كُنْتَ جَارَتِنَا * إِلَّا يُجَاوِرُنَا إِلَّاكَ دِيلَرُ [And we care not, when thou art our female neighbour, that not any one but thou should be neighbour to us (AAz)] is anomalous: (c) after the sense of [مَا and (AAz)] إِلَّا ,

23

*
 كَأَنَّا يَوْمَ قُرَى إِنَّمَا نَقْتُلُ إِيَّانَا

[by Dhu-l-Iṣṣā' al-'Adwānī, As though we on the day of Kurra were slaying only ourselves (AAz): F says that the Arabs treat إِنَّمَا like the neg. and إِلَّا as respects detachment of the pron., as in the saying of AlFarazdaq

أَنَا الذَّائِدُ الْحَامِي الذَّمَّارُ وَإِنَّمَا يُدَافِعُ عَنْ أَحْسَائِهِمْ أَنَا أَوْ مِثْلِي

{I am the repeller, the protector of what ought to be protected; and only I or my like defends their honors (Jsh)}, like the saying {of 'Amr Ibn Ma'dikarib (AAz)}

قَدْ عَلِمْتُ سَلْمَى وَجَارَاتُهَا * مَا قَطَرَ الْفَارِسَى إِلَّا أَنَا

(ML on مَا) Assuredly Salma and her female neighbours have known, not any one has speared and overthrown the horseman but I (AAz)] : (d) after ^{أَمَّا أَنْتَ} , as ^{جَاوَنِي} جَاوَنِي : (e) the 2nd of the two ^{أَوْ زَيْدٍ} أَوْ زَيْدٍ and ^{أَوْ عَمْرًا} أَوْ عَمْرًا : (e) the 2nd of the two objs. of ^{عَلِمْتُ} عَلِمْتُ or ^{أَعْطَيْتُ} أَعْطَيْتُ , when attachment of the pron.

 would lead to its being mistaken for the 1st obj., as when you make the 2nd obj. in ^{عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا and ^{أَعْطَيْتُ} أَعْطَيْتُ ^{زَيْدًا} زَيْدًا [432] an enunc. [179], in which case you say ^{الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا He that I knew Zaid to be ^{أَيُّهُ أَبِيكَ} أَيُّهُ أَبِيكَ was thy father and ^{الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا He that ^{عَمْرًا} عَمْرًا I gave to Zaid was 'Amr, not ^{زَيْدًا} زَيْدًا nor ^{الَّذِي} الَّذِي ^{أَعْطَيْتُهُ} أَعْطَيْتُهُ زَيْدًا , because the 2nd obj. would be mistaken for the 1st ; whereas, if it would not be mistaken [for the 1st obj.], attachment is better in the cat. of ^{أَعْطَيْتُ} أَعْطَيْتُ , and detachment in that of ^{عَلِمْتُ} عَلِمْتُ , as when you make the 2nd obj. in ^{عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا and ^{أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا} أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا an enunc., in which case ^{الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُهُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُهُ زَيْدًا What I ^{دِرْهَمًا} دِرْهَمًا gave to Zaid was a dirham is better than ^{الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي أَعْطَيْتُ زَيْدًا ^{أَيُّهُ} أَيُّهُ , because you are able to attach without spoiling the letter or sense, and ^{الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا What I knew ^{عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا Zaid to be was standing than ^{الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا} الَّذِي عَلِمْتُ زَيْدًا , because the 2nd obj. in the o. f. must be detached from its op.
 for the same reason as [the pred.] in ^{كُنْتُ} كُنْتُ [164].

If the pron. be governed by something else than the v., then, (1) if it be a nom., (a) when an inch., enunc., pred. of أَنْ &c., or sub. of مَا, it is only detached : (b) when governed in the nom. by the act. or pass. part., assimilate ep., verbal n., adv., or prep. and gen., then, (a) if separated from its op. for an object not fulfilled except by means of separation, it must be detached, as زَيْدٌ قَاتِلٌ مَرْثُ بَرَجَلٍ فِي الدَّارِ, هِيَهَاتَ زَيْدٌ وَأَنْتَ, أَخُوهُ وَأَنْتَ; and like it is the prominent pron. after the ep. applied to a [person or] thing other than the one that [the quality denoted by] it belongs to, since this pron. is a corrob. [above] of the pron. covert in the ep., not its ag., because you say نَحْنُ الزَّيْدُونَ صَارِبُوهُمْ نَحْنُ and الزَّيْدَانِ الْهِنْدَانِ صَارِبَاهُمَا هُمَا, whereas you know the weakness of جَاؤُنِي رَجُلٌ قَاعِدُونَ غِلْمَانُهُ [146]: (b) if governed in the nom. by the ep. or adv., when the 2 latter together with the nom. are props., vid. when they are supported upon the interrog. Hamza or neg. p., as مَا أَقَاتِمُ أَنْتَمَا, أَفَنِي الدَّارِ أَنْتَمَا, it must be detached to distinguish the case where it is one of the 2 terms of the prop. from the case where it is not so : (c) if neither separated from its op. nor governed in the nom. by the ep. or adv. supported upon what has just been mentioned, it must be attached, because the act. and pass. parts., assimilate ep., verbal n., adv., and prep. and gen. supply the place of vs. without needing an adjunct; but this attached pron. is only covert [161,165]: (c) when governed in the nom. by the inf. n., it is only detached, even if it follow the inf. n. without separation, because the inf. n. is not renderable by the v. except with the adjunct ^{ان}, as ^{اعجبني الضرب انت زيداً} and ^{اعجبني ضرب انت زيداً}: (2) if it be an acc., then, (a) if the op. be such as must be detached from the acc. by constitution, like the Hījāzī ^{ما}, as ^{ما زيد اياك}, or if they be separated because of an object not fulfilled except by means of separation, as ^{ما انا ضارب الا اياك}, the pron. must be detached, as you see: (b) if neither be the case, then, (a) if the op. be a p., the pron. must be attached to it, as ^{ايتك} and ^{انك قائم}, because the p. is not independent [134]: (b) if the op. be a verbal n., the pron. must be attached to it, because, though it is orig. independent as respects the quality of n., not in need of an acc., still, since its sense becomes that of the v., it is like the v. in the necessity of attachment to it, as ^{حيهله} and ^{رويدة}; while detachment is allowable in the case of such verbal ns. as the ك is attached to, as ^{عليك ايلة} and ^{رويدك ايلة}, only by assimilation to ^{اعطاك ايلة} [164], though the ك [187, 560] is not this ك: (c) if the op. be an inf. n., then,

§ 164. When 2 prons. follow an op., then, if the 2nd be an appos., the 1st must be attached, and the 2nd detached, as II. 33. [158] and رَايَتَكَ أَيَاكَ, because the appos. is not one of the requisites of the v. [131], so that it should be attached to it and be like one of its parts. But, if the 2nd be not [an appos.], then, (1) if one of them be an attached nom., it must precede the acc., because the attached nom. becomes like part of the v.; while every pron. that follows that nom. must be attached, whether it be more det. [262] than that nom., as ضَرْبَتَنِي, or not, as ضَرْبَتَكَ, because the 2nd is as it were attached to the op. itself, since the attached nom. is like part of its op.: (2) if the v. be followed by an attached acc. without a nom. before it, as اَعْطَاكُنِي زَيْدٌ, or after a nom. pron., as اَعْطَاكَ, the pron. following that acc., (a) if less det. than it, must be attached according to S; while others allow attachment or detachment, as اَعْطَاكَ زَيْدٌ Zaid gave thee it or اَعْطَاكَ أَيَاكَ, and اَعْطَاكَ اَيْلَا I gave thee it or اَعْطَاكَ اَيْلَا, and similarly اَخْلَعَكَ اَيْلَا I fancied thee to be him or اَخْلَعَكَ اَيْلَا: the reason of its attachment being that there is nothing derogatory to the 2nd in being appended to, and becoming by attachment part of, what is superior to, because more det. than it; and the reason of its detachment being that the 1st attached is a complement, whose attachment is not like that of the nom.:

while detachment in the cat. of ^أخَلَّتْ is better than in that of ^أأَعْطَيْتَ, because, the 1st obj. in the cat. of ^أأَعْطَيْتَ being an ag. as respects the sense [432], the 2nd is as it were attached to the pron. of the ag.; whereas, the 2 objs. of ^أخَلَّتْ still containing some tinge of the inch. and enunc. [440], whose property is detachment [163], and the 1st of them being necessarily attached because of its nearness to the v., detachment is better in the 2nd for observance of the o. f.: (b) if more det., must be detached according to S; though S quotes from the GG allowance of attachment also, as ^أأَعْطَاهُوكَ and ^أأَعْطَاهَانِي, and Mb approves the opinion of the GG: while here attachment of the 2nd has not been transmitted by hearsay, because the 2nd, being superior to, as being more det. than, the 1st, disdains to be appended to what is inferior to it; whereas those who allow that by analogy, not by hearsay, look to the bare fact that the 1st is attached: (c) if equal to the attached acc., then, (a) if they be of the 3rd pers., as ^أأَعْطَاهُوكَا and ^أأَعْطَاهَا, is, as S says, allowably attached, but oftener detached: (b) if not, is allowed to be attached by Mb, who approves it by analogy to the 3rd pers.; but not by S: while here also detachment is better, because the 2nd disdains to be appended to, and become a supplement of, what is like it; whereas that is allowable in the 3rd pers., because each pron. relates to something else than what the other relates to, contrary to the prons. of the 2nd and 1st pers. All of this is when the 2 prons. follow the v.: but, when they follow the n., (1) if the 1st be an attached nom., which is only latent [161, 163, 165], as زَيْدٌ ضَارِبُكَ, the 2nd may be attached, [as exemplified,] or detached, as زَيْدٌ ضَارِبُ إِيَّاكَ : (2) if the 1st be a gen., the 2nd, (a) if an acc., is in the same predicament as when they follow the v. and are both accs., i. e., when less det. [than the 1st], it may be attached or detached, as فَلَا تَطْمَعُ الْخ [503] and مُعْطِيكَ إِيَّاهَا or مُنْعَكَ إِيَّاهَا and مُعْطِيكَ إِيَّاهَا, like مُعْطِيكَ إِيَّاهَا or مُنْعَكَ إِيَّاهَا, except that detachment in what follows the gen. is better than in what follows the acc. pron., because the v. is more habituated to attachment of the pron. to it than the inf. n. and act. part.; and similarly, when the 2nd is more or equally det., attachment is anomalous, as ضَرْبُهُ and ضَرْبُهُوك, whence

وَقَدْ جَعَلْتُ نَفْسِي تَطْلِبُ لَضْغَمَةً
لَضْغَمَاهَا يَقْرَعُ الْعِظَامَ نَائِبَهَا

[by Mughallis Ibn Lakīṭ alAsadī, And my soul has begun to be resigned to a calamity, because of their experiencing one like it, whose canine tooth strikes the bone, i. e. extremely severe (AAz)]: (b) if a nom., must be detached, whether it be more det. than the gen. or equally or less det., because the prominent attached nom. is attached only to the v. [161, 165], as ضَرْبُهُ هُوَ , ضَرْبُكَ أَنَا , and هُوَ ضَرْبُكَ : (3) the 1st is not an acc., except according to the opinion of Hsh and Akh on such as ضَارِبُكَ [163], in which case the predicament of the pron. that follows it, according to them, is the same as that of the pron. that follows the gen. (R). The [pronominal (M, IA)] pred. of كَانَ , &c., [may be attached or detached: but (IA)] is preferably detached (M, IH, IA) according to S, as كُنْتُ أَيَّامًا (IA), because it is orig. an enunc. [447], which must be detached [163]. (AAz); and attached according to IM, as كُنْتُ (IA): the poet [‘Umar Ibn Abi Rabi’a (R, AAz)] says

لَكُنْ كَانَ أَيَّامٌ لَقَدْ حَالَ بَعْدُنَا * عَنِ الْعَهْدِ وَالْإِنْسَانِ قَدْ يَتَغَيَّرُ

[Assuredly, if he be he, he has indeed changed, after quitting us, from the youthful state: and man does sometimes alter (AAz)], and [the same poet (AAz)] says

لَيْتَ هَذَا اللَّيْلَ شَهْرٌ * لَا نَرَى فِيهَا غَرِيبًا
لَيْسَ أَيَّامٌ وَإِيَّا * يَ وَلَا نَخْشَى دَرِيبًا

[Would that this night were a month, wherein we saw not any one, except me and thee, nor feared a watcher! (AAz)]; but a poet [says تَنَفَّكَ الْفُجَّ (454), and Ibn Duraid (AAz)] says

نَدَدْتُ قَوْمِي كَعَدِيدِ الطَّيْسِ * اِذْ ذَهَبَ الْقَوْمُ الْكَرَامُ لَيْسِي

[I numbered my people like the number of the multitudinous sand, when the generous men other than I (170) were gone (AAz)], and an Arab said عَلَيْهِ رَجُلًا لَيْسَنِي Let him keep to a man that is not I [170, 199] (M, R), the reason of the attachment being that كُنْتُه is like ضَرْبَتُهُ [97].

§ 165. No pron. is latent except the [attached] nom., because the acc. and gen. are complements, since they are objs.; whereas the nom. is an ag., which is like part of the v., so that in the cat. of the attached prons., which are constituted for abridgment, they content themselves with expressing the v. The cause of its latency, where it is latent, has been mentioned [161]. The attached [nom.] pron. does not appear at all in the case of (1) the pret., 3rd pers. sing. masc. and fem.; (2) the aor., in اَفْعَلُ, نَفْعَلُ, يَفْعَلُ, and تَفْعَلُ 2nd pers. sing. masc. or 3rd pers. sing. fem.; (3) [the imp.] اَفْعَلْ; (4) all the eps., verbal ns., and advs. [161, 163]: nor does the ag., explicit or pronominal, appear in the case of 5 of them, vid. اَفْعَلُ, نَفْعَلُ, تَفْعَلُ 2nd pers. sing. masc., the imp. اَفْعَلْ, and the imp. verbal n. in the sing., du., and pl.; while what appears in II. 33. [158] is a corrob. of the latent [pron.], not an ag.: but the explicit ag.

and the detached pron. appear in the case of (1) فَعَلٌ,] فَعَلَتْ, يَفْعَلُ, and تَفْعُلُ 3rd pers. sing. fem., as ضَرَبَ
مَا تَضْرِبُ أَلَا and تَضْرِبُ هَندُ and مَا ضَرَبْتَ أَلَا هِيَ and زَيْدٌ
مَا قَاتَمُ and أَقَاتَمُ الزَّيْدَانِ [24] (2) the sing. ep., as هِيَ ;
 (3) the adv. when supported, as أَفَى الدَّارِ زَيْدٌ and هُمَا ;
 (4) the verbal n. when enunciatory, as مَا فِي الدَّارِ هُوَ ;
 (R). The saying of the GG on II. 33. that the coupling is to the latent pron. is a mistake, and has been refuted by IM, who holds it to be a coupling of props., orig. وَلَيْسَكُنْ زَوْجَكِ and (let) thy wife (dwell), and likewise says that لَا تُخَلِّفُهُ نَحْنُ وَلَا أَنْتَ XX. 60. That we shall not break, nor (shalt) thou (break) is in full أَنْتَ وَلَا تُخَلِّفُهُ أَنْتَ, because [the coupled is in the predicament of the ant. (538), whereas] the nom. of the imp. v. is not an explicit n., and the nom. of the aor. v.
 possessed of the ي is nothing else than the pron. of the 1st pers.; while he allows ذُو in

*نَطْرِفُ مَا نَطْرِفُ ثُمَّ نَارِي * ذُو الْأَمْوَالِ مِنَّا وَالْعَدِيمُ*
*إِلَى حِفْرِ أَسَانِلِهِمْ جَوْفُ * وَاعْلَاهُنَّ صَفَاحُ مُقِيمٍ*

[by AlBurj Ibn Mushir atTā'i, We roam about so long as we roam about; then repair, the possessors of riches of us and the destitute (repair), to holes (i. e. graves) whose bottoms are wide, and whose top is a broad stone standing fast (Jsh)] to be ag. of a suppressed v. of the 3rd pers., i. e. يَارِي ذُو الْأَمْوَالِ, or, with what follows it, a corrob. [of the pron. in نَارِي (DM)] upon the principle of ضَرَبَ زَيْدُ الظَّهْرِ وَالْبَطْنِ [154] (ML).

§ 166. The form of (IH) a detached nom. [pron.
(M, R) agreeing with the inch. (IH) in number, gender, and person, as اَنَا اللهُ XXVIII. 30. Verily I am God and اِنَّهُ هُوَ الْغَفُورُ الرَّحِيمُ XII. 99. Verily He is the for- giving, the merciful, but sometimes in the 3rd pers. after a 1st or 2nd, because the latter occupies the place of a pre. n., as

وَكَاثِبًا بِالْأَبَاطِلِ مِنْ صَدِيقٍ * يَرَانِي لَوْ أَصِبتُ هُوَ الْمَصَابِ

{by JarIr, And how many a friend there is of mine in the wide pebbly watercourses, who would think (the affliction of) me, if I were afflicted, to be the great affliction! (Jsh)}, i. e. يَرَى مُصَابِي هُوَ الْمُصَابُ (R),] intervenes between the inch. and [its (M')] enunc., before and after [prefixion of (M, R)] the [lit. (M)] ops. [of the inch. and enunc., vid. the cat. of طَى, the cat. of اَى, the Hījāzi مَا, and the cat. of اَى (R)], when the enunc. is det. or [similar thereto, like

(M)] ^{أَفْعَلُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{كَذَا} (M, IH), as ^{زَيْدٌ} ^{هُوَ} ^{الْمُنْطَلِقُ} Zaid is the departer, [XVIII. 37. (419), ^{وَلَا} ^{تُحَسِبَنَّ} ^{الَّذِينَ} ^{يَبْخُلُونَ} ^{بِمَا} ^{آتَاهُمُ} ^{اللَّهُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{فَضْلِهِ} ^{هُوَ} ^{خَيْرٌ} ^{لَهُمْ} III. 175.
(443) And do not thou account (the niggardliness of) them that are niggardly of what God hath vouchsafed them of His bounty to be better for them (M), i. e. ^{بُخْلُ} ^{الَّذِينَ} (K, B), XII. 99., ^{مَا} ^{زَيْدٌ} ^{هُوَ} ^{الْمُنْطَلِقُ} Zaid is not the departer (R), ^{إِنْ} ^{كَانَ} ^{هَذَا} ^{هُوَ} ^{الْحَقُّ} VIII. 32. If this be the truth (M),] and ^{كُنْتَ} ^{أَنْتَ} ^{الرَّقِيبَ} ^{عَلَيْهِمْ} V. 117.
Thou wast the watcher over them (M, R). It is named [by the BB (M, R)] distinctive (M, IH, IA), because, [say the moderns (R),] it distinguishes the [case where what follows it is an (R)] enunc. from the [case where it is an (R)] ep. (R, IA), since, when you say ^{زَيْدٌ} ^{الْمُنْطَلِقُ}, the hearer may imagine ^{الْمُنْطَلِقُ} to be an ep., and therefore await the enunc., so that you put the distinctive to specify that it is an enunc., not an ep.; or because, say Khl and S, it distinguishes the n. before it from the one after it by indicating that the latter is not a supplement [140] of the former, but is its enunc. (R): and by the KK support (M, R), because it keeps what follows it from falling from the status of enunc., as the support in the house keeps the roof from falling (R). The ل of inception is prefixed to it (M, R, IA), as ^{أَنْ هَذَا لَهُوَ} an haza lahuwa III. 55. Verily this is the true story (IA), like ^{أَنْكَ لَأَنْتَ الْحَلِيمُ الرَّشِيدُ} an ka lan ta al halim al rashid XI. 89. Verily thou art the mild, the director. The inch. ought to be det., because the distinctive imports corroboration [138], since ^{زَيْدٌ} zaid means Zaid himself is the stander; and the enunc. ought to be synarthrous, because, when it is so, it imports restriction, which, importing corroboration, is in keeping with the corroboration of the inch. by the distinctive: while the form of a detached nom. pron. agreeing with the inch. is put in order that it may be in the semblance of a 2nd inch. whose enunc. is what follows it, the prop. being the enunc. of the 1st inch., so that by this means the synarthrous [enunc. after it] may be distinguishable from the ep., because the pron. is not qualified [147]; but afterwards, since the object of putting the distinctive is to avert confusion of the enunc. after it with the ep., and this is the sense of the p., vid. to import a meaning in something else [497], it becomes a p., and is stripped of the quality of n., so that it keeps to a fixed shape, vid. that of the nom. pron., even if what follows it alter from the nom. to the acc., because the p. is aplastic; though it retains one plasticity that it had when it was a n., i. e. its variation in number, gender and person, because it is not orig. a p. Then, greater latitude being taken in the distinctive, it is introduced where the enunc. is similar to the synarthrous, vid. the ^{أَفْعَلُ} of superiority, which resembles the synarthrous in that its particularizer is a p., vid. ^{مِنْ} [355], united with it, as the particularizer of the synarthrous is a p. united with it, i. e. the ^{لِ} (R). The conditions of the pron. named distinctive and support are [thus] 6, (1) that what precedes it should be (a) an inch., actually or orig., as ^{أُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْمُفْلِحُونَ} VII. 156. Those shall be the prosperous, ^{وَأَنَا لَنَحْصِي الصَّافِرِينَ} XXXVII. 165. And verily we are the standers in ranks, V. 117., LXXIII. 20. [440], and XVIII. 37.; but Akh allows it to occur between the d. s. and s. s., holding ^{هَؤُلَاءِ بَنَاتِي هُنَّ أَطْهَرُ لَكُمْ} XI. 80. These are my daughters, purer for you, [read by Ibn Marwān (K, DM), Sa'id Ibn Jubair, AlḤasan alBaṣrī, and Zaid Ibn 'Alī (DM)] with ^{أَطْهَرُ} in the acc., to be an instance of it: (b) det., as exemplified; but Fr, Hsh, and such of the KK as follow them allow it to be indet., attributing ^{أَنْ تَكُونَ أُمَّةٌ هِيَ أَرْبَى مِنْ أُمَّةٍ} XVI. 94. Because a people is more numerous and wealthy than a people to it : (2) that what follows it should be (a) an enunc. actually or orig.: (b) det., or like the det. in not receiving ^{أَلْ}, as above in the case of ^{خَيْرًا} LXXIII. 20. and ^{أَقْلَ} XVIII. 73.; while the condition of the one like the

det. is that it should be a n., as exemplified: but Jj coordinates the aor. with the n., because of their mutual resemblance, holding ^{اِنَّهُ هُوَ يَبْدِي وَيُعِيدُ} LXXXV. 13.

Verily He produceth and reproduceth to be an instance of it; and is followed by AB, who allows the distinctive in ^{وَمَكَرَ اُولَئِكَ هُوَ يَبُورُ} XXXV. 11. And the plotting of those shall prove vain; and 'by IKhz, who says that there is no difference between accidental prevention of ^{اَلْ}, as in ^{اَفْعَلُ مِنْ}, [where the preventive of ^{اَلْ} is the ^{اَلْ} (DM),] and in the pre., like ^{مِثْلُكَ}, [where the preventive is the prothesis (DM)], and natural, as in the [pret. and (DM)] aor. v.; while Suh says on ^{وَاِنَّهُ هُوَ اَضْحَكَ وَاَبْكٰى وَاِنَّهُ هُوَ اَمَاتَ وَاَحْيَا وَاِنَّهُ خَلَقَ الزَّوْجَيْنِ} ^{اَلذَّكَرَ وَالْاُنْثٰى} LIII. 44—46 And that He hath made to laugh and made to weep, and that He hath killed and made alive, and that He hath created the two mates, the male and the female that the distinctive pron. is put in the first 2 [verses], and not in the 3rd, because some of the heathen sometimes attribute these acts to others than God, as Nimrod says ^{اَنَا اَحْيٰى وَاَمَيْتُ} II. 260. I make alive and kill, whereas the 3rd has not been claimed by any of mankind; and the text ^{وَيَرٰى الَّذِيْنَ اَوْتُوْا الْعِلْمَ} XXXIV. 6. And they that have been vouchsafed knowledge know what hath been revealed to thee from thy Lord to be the truth and to guide aright is sometimes cited as evidence in favour of Jj's saying, ^{أَيُّ}يَهْدِي being coupled to [the 2nd obj. (DM)] ^{أَيُّ}الْحَقُّ occurring as enunc. after the distinctive: (3) that it itself should be (a) in the form of the nom.; (b) in agreement with what precedes it [in person, gender, and number (DM)]. Its import is (1) lit., vid. notification from the very first that what follows it is an enunc., not an appos.; (2) id., vid. corroboration; (3) also id., vid. particularization, [i. e. restriction of the predicament to the mentioned, and negation of it from all others (DM)]: and Z mentions all three in the exposition of ^{وَأُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْمُفْلِحُونَ} II. 4. And those shall be the prosperous, saying that its import is (1) indication that what follows it is an enunc., not an ep.; (2) corroboration; (3) affirmation that the import of the attribute is predicable of the subject exclusively of others (ML). Some of the Arabs make it an inch., and what follows it its enunc.; [and accordingly ^{وَمَا ظَلَمْنَاهُمْ وَلَكِنْ كَانُوا} ^{هُمُ الظَّالِمُونَ} XLIII. 76. Nor have We wronged them; but (545) they were such that they were the wrong-doers and ^{أَنَا أَقَلُّ} XVIII. 37. to be such that I am less are read (M, R) with the nom. among others than the Seven (R)].

§ 167. The prop. is preceded by a pron. [of the 3rd pers. (IH) sing., masc. or fem. (R),] named the pron. of the ^{شأن} case [when masc. (Jm)] and ^{قصة} fact [when fem. (Jm)], but by the KK {the pron. of (R)} the unknown (M, R), because that case is unknown until the pron. is (R) expounded by the prop. {mentioned (Jm)} after it (IH), as CXII. 1. (160) (M)]. It is [according to the ops. (IH)] (1) attached, (a) prominent, [an acc., in the cats. of ^{ظن} and ^{ان} (R), as in ^{ظننته زيد} I thought the case to be this, Zaid was standing and قائم LXXII. 19. And that the case was this, when the servant of God stood (M)]; (b) latent (M, IH), a nom., in the cats. of ^{كان} and ^{كاد} (R), as in their saying ^{ليس خلق الله مثله} The case is not this, God has created his like and IX. 118. [460] (M): (2) detached (IH), when an inch. or a sub. of ^{ما} (R). It is [preferably (R)] fem. when the [expos. (R)] prop. contains a fem., as ^{فانها لا تعمى الابصار} XXII. 45. For verily the fact is this, the eyes are not blind, [^{اولم تكن لهم اية} XXVI. 197. (M), so read by Ibn 'Amir (B). And was not the fact this, that the learned of the children of Israel should know it was a sign for them? (K,B), or they had a sign, that the learned &c? (K), and ^{على انها تغفر الخ} [507] (M, R), provided that the fem. in the prop. be not a complement or like a complement, so that ^{انها بنيت غرفة} or ^{انها كان}

الْقُرَّانِ مُعْجَزَةٌ [19, 447] is not preferable, because, the pron. being intended, important, its agreement with complements is not observed. This pron. may not be suppressed, from want of indication of it [1], since the enunc. is independent, not containing a connecting pron. [27] (R). Its suppression, when it is an acc., [however, is allowable, because it becomes a quasi-complement through being governed in the acc., and is besides indicated by the sentence, as اِنَّ مِنْ يَدْخُلِ النَّحْ (517) and اِنَّ مِنْ لَّامِ النَّحْ (1), the indication here being that the annullers of the inch. are not prefixed to cond. words; but (R)] is weak, except with اِنَّ when contracted [525], in which case it is necessary (IH). The reading of XX. 66. [171] is said to be orig. اِنَّ هَٰذَا لَهٗمَا سَاحِرَانِ [27], the [2nd] inch. [هٗمَا] being then suppressed, and the pron. of the case, as in اِنَّ مِنْ اَشَدِّ النَّاسِ النَّحْ [517] (Sh). This pron. is irregular in 5 ways:—(1) it necessarily relates to what follows it [160], since it may not be preceded by the prop. expos. of it, nor by any part thereof; and ISf errs in saying on

اَسْكُرَانِ كَانَ ابْنُ الْمَرْاغَةِ اَنْ هَجَا تَمِيْمًا بِجَوْرِ الشَّامِ اَمْ مِتْسَاكِرِ

[by AlFarazdak, What! drunk was Ibn AlMarāgha (i.e. Jarīr) when he satirized Tamīm in the region of Syria, or shamming drunk? (Jsh)] that كَانَ contains the pron. of the case, and ^{أَبْنِ} ^{الرَّاعِي} ^{سَكْرَانٍ} are inch. and enunc., the prop. being pred. of ^{كَانَ}, whereas correctly ^{كَانَ} is red.: (2) its exponent is only a prop.; and no pron. shares with it in this, [since the exponent of every other pron. is a single term (DM)]: (3) it is not followed by an appos., not being corroborated [135], nor coupled to [158], nor followed by a subst. [154]: (4) it is governed only by inchoation or one of its annullers: (5) it is invariably sing., not being dualized or pluralized, even if it be expounded by 2 or more stories (ML). The BB hold that both terms of the expos. prop. must be expressed, because, it being expos., its own 2 terms ought to be independent of exponent. The exponent, when the annullers of the inch. are not prefixed to the pron., must be a nominal prop., [as CXII. 1.]; but, when they are prefixed to it, may be verbal also, as XXII. 45. (R). The prop. occurring as enunc. or pred. to the pron. of the case must be enunciatory, whatever is transmitted to the contrary being paraphrased, except the pred. of the contracted ^{أَنْ}, which may be a precatory prop., as in the reading of XXIV. 9. [34, 525] (ML).

§ 168. The pron. in ^{رَبِّ} ^{رَجُلًا} [498] is a vague indet. [262, 505], thrown out at hazard without aim at any particular person, and afterwards expounded [84, 160]; and like it in vagueness and exposition is the pron. in ^{نَعَمْ} ^{رَجُلًا} [84, 160, 469].

§ 169. When the n. occurring after لَوْلَا and عَسَى is a pron., the general practice is to say لَوْلَا أَنْتَ, لَوْلَا أَنْتُمْ, لَوْلَا لَكُمَا مُؤْمِنَيْنِ, عَسَيْتَ, عَسَيْتِ, لَوْلَا أَنَا XXXIV. 30. If it had not been for you, we should have been believers and فَهَلْ عَسَيْتُمْ XLVII. 24. [462]: but trustworthy persons transmit from the Arabs لَوْلَاكَ, لَوْلَايَ, عَسَانِي, عَسَاكَ, and لَوْلَايَ, as وَكَمْ مَوْطِنٍ لَوْلَايَ طَلَعْتَ كَمَا هَوَى

بِأَجْرَامِهِ مِنْ قُلَّةِ النَّبْقِ مِنْهُوَى

[by Yazīd Ibn AlḤakam, And how many a place of combat, if I (had) not (been present with thee) wouldst thou have perished (in), as a faller falls with his limbs from the summit of the peak ! (J)],

أَوَمَتْ بِكَفَيْهَا مِنْ الْهُوَجِ * لَوْلَاكَ هَذَا الْعَامَ لَمْ أَحْجِمْ

[by 'Umar Ibn Abi Rabr'a, She signed with her two hands from the litter, saying, If thou (hadst) not (been with me) this year, I should not have performed the pilgrimage (Jsh)],

تَقُولُ بِنْتِي قَدْ أَتَىٰ إِنَاكَ * يَا أَبَتَا عَلِكَ أَرَّ عَسَاكَ

[by Ru'ba Ibn Al'Ajjā, My daughter says, Thy time of departure has arrived. O my father, perhaps thou, or may-be thou, (wilt find sustenance) (Jsh)], and

وَلِي نَفْسٍ أَقُولُ لَهَا إِذَا مَا * تَنَازَعْنِي لَعَلِّي أَوْ عَسَانِي

[by 'Imrān Ibn Hittān, And I have a soul, to which I say, whenever it opposes me, Perhaps I, or may-be I, (shall attain mine object) (AAz)]; while authorities differ as to [the explanation of] that (M). S and the majority say that لَوْلَا is a prep. [513], peculiar to the pron., as حَتَّى [501] and the ك [509] are peculiar to the explicit n., and not depending upon any thing [498]; and that the position of its gen. is that of a nom. by inchoation, the enunc. being suppressed [29, 574]: while Akh says that the pron. is an inch., and لَوْلَا not a prep., but that they substitute the gen. pron. for the nom., as they do the converse, since they say مَا أَنَا كَأَنْتَ وَلَا أَنْتَ كَمَا I am not like thee, nor art thou like me [509]; whereas substitution occurs only in the case of the detached prons., [a refutation of Akh's saying (DM),] because of their resemblance to explicit ns. in their independence. On عَسَانِي [in some MSS عَسَانِي (170) (DM),] &c. [459, 462], there are 3 opinions:—(1) S says that عَسَى is treated like لَعَلَّ in governing the sub. in the acc. and pred. in the nom. [516], as لَعَلَّ is treated like it in having its pred. conjoined with أَلَمْ [536]: (2) Akh says that it continues to govern like كَأَنَّ [459]; but that the acc. pron. is borrowed in place of the nom. pron.: which is

مَا عَدَانِي or قَامُوا مَا خَلَانِي and عَسَانِي , or aplastic, as اَكْرَمَنِي , or aplastic, as عَسَانِي and قَامُوا مَا خَلَانِي or عَدَانِي if حَاشِي be held to be a v. [511]; (b) the verbal n., as دَرَاكِنِي , تَرَاكِنِي , and عَلَيَكِنِي ; (c) the p. [اِنَّ , &c. (516) DM], as اَنْنِي : (2) when governed in the gen. by مِنْ and عَنْ : (3) when post. to لَدُنْ , قَدْ [187], or قَطًا : (4) in other cases anomalously, as بَجَلْنِي i. q. حَسْبِي my sufficiency [187] and اَمْسَامْنِي النَّحْ [609] (ML). The ن of protection is introduced into the v. to protect it from the Kasr, because what precedes the ي of the 1st pers. must be pronounced with Kasr ; whereas, since they debar the v. from the gen. [404], and the Kasra is the original sign of the gen. [16], they dislike that what is sometimes the sign of the gen. should be found in the v. : while its introduction in such as اَعْطَانِي and يُعْطِينِي is either for the sake of uniformity, or because the Kasr would be supplied upon the ا and ي , if it were not for the ن , as in عَصَايَ and قَاعِي ; and its introduction with the ن of inflection, as اَضْرَبُونَنِي , the ن of corroboration, as اَضْرَبْنِي , and the attached nom. pron., as ضَرَبْتَنِي and يَضْرِبُنَنِي , is allowable because the ن s of inflection and corroboration and the prons. mentioned are like part of the v. This ن is inseparable from (1) all the paradigms of the pret. : (2) the aor. [including the imp.], except the five paradigms containing the ي of inflection [405], whether the aor. [or imp.] contain the ي of the pron. or the single or double ي of corroboration, as يُضْرَبَنَّي and

هَلْ تُبَلِّغُنِي دَارَهَا شَدَانِيَّةٌ * لَعْنَتْ بِمَحْرُومِ الشَّرَابِ مُصْرِمٌ

[by 'Antara, Will a Shadanî she-camel cursed with an udder debarred from milk, cut off, bring me to her dwelling? (EM)], or not. The place of the ي of protection may be supplied by the ي of inflection, contrary to the ي of the pron. and the two يs of corroboration, although combination of two likes is realized in the case of all, because, the ي of inflection having no meaning, like the ي of protection, each of them is for a lit. matter, contrary to the ي of the pron. and the two يs of corroboration. This is according to the opinion of those who, like Jz, hold the elided to be the ي of protection, because the heaviness comes from it, not from the ي of inflection; whereas according to the saying of S, that the elided is the ي of inflection, because it is exposed to elision in the apoc. and subj. and has no meaning, the cause of the non-elision of the ي of the pron. and two يs of corroboration is obvious, since they are not exposed to elision and have a meaning. Elision of the ي of protection with the ي of the pron. occurs, however, by poetic license, as

تَرَاهُ كَالْتَّغَامِ يَعْلُ مَسْكًا * يَسُوءُ الْفَالِيَابِ إِذَا فَلَيْنِي

[by 'Amr Ibn Ma'dikarib azZubaidî, Thou seest it (the hair of the head) like wormwood steeped in musk, vexing

the women rummaging for lice when they rummage me for lice, orig. فَلَينَنِي (Jsh)], where the elided may not be the ن of the pron., since the ag. is not suppressed.

Three methods are allowable with the ن of inflection, elision of one ن, incorporation of the ن of inflection into the ن of protection, and expression of both without incorporation; and VI. 80. [405] is read according to all three. Expression of the ن with لَيْسَ is better, as اِنَّ ذَهَبَ لَيْسَ عَلَيْهِ رَجُلًا اَلَمْ [164]; but اِنَّ ذَهَبَ لَيْسَ is allowable, as اِنَّ ذَهَبَ لَيْسَ عَلَيْهِ رَجُلًا اَلَمْ [164], by assimilation to غَيْرِي; and عَسَايَ occurs by assimilation to لَعَلِّي; but عَسَانِي is more frequent. (R).

It is disputed whether the ن of protection be inseparable from the أَفْعَلُ of wonder or not, as مَا أَفْقَرَنِي اَلَمْ [477] or مَا أَفْقَرِي; but the correct opinion is that it is inseparable (IA). The ن may be affixed to verbal ns., because they convey the sense of the v.; or omitted, because they are not orig. vs. [187]. The ن may be affixed to أَنْ, إِنْ, لَكِنْ, and كَانَ, because they resemble the v. [516]; or elided, because the affixion is due to the resemblance, and is not original, and because of the combination of likes, together with the frequency of usage (R). لَعَلَّ is correctly denuded of the ن, as XL. 38. [411]; and expression of the ن is rare, as

فَقُلْتُ أَعِيرَانِي الْقَدُومَ لَعَلَّنِي * أَخْطُبُ بِهَا قَبْرًا لَا يَبْقَى مُاجِدٌ

[Then said I, Lend ye two to me the adze: perhaps I shall carve with it a scabbard for a glorious sword (J)].

The ى is not elided with لَيْتَ, except extraordinarily, as

كَمْ نِيَّةٌ جَابِرٌ إِنْ قَالَ لَيْتَنِي * أَعَادَنَهُ وَأَقْدَمْتُ بَعْضَ مَالِي

[by Zaid AlKhail, Like the wish of Jābir, when he said, Would that I were to find him, and I would lose some of my property for the sake of slaying him (J)] ; but is commonly expressed, as IV. 75. [411] (IA). Jz says that expression of the ى in the case of مَنْ, عَنْ, قَدْ, and قَطْ is better known; but according to S elision is a license not allowable except in poetry, as

أَيُّهَا السَّائِلُ عَنْهُمْ وَعَنِّي * لَسْتُ مِنْ قَيْسٍ وَلَا قَيْسٌ مِنِّي

[O thou asker about them and about me, I am not of Kais, nor is Kais of me (J)] and

قَدْنِي مِنْ نَصْرِ الْخُبَيْبَيْنِ قَدِي
لَيْسَ الْإِمَامُ بِالشَّحِيمِ الْمَلْحَدِ

[by Ḥumaid Ibn Mālik alArkaṭ, My sufficiency is the help (ى being red.) of the two Khubaibs ('Abd Allāh Ibn AzZubair, surnamed Abū Khubaib, and his son Khubaib), my sufficiency: the Imām (Khubaib Ibn 'Abd Allāh) is not the unrighteous niggard (J)] : and the ى is affixed for preservation of the inseparable quiescence [of the final]. According to S and Zj, elision of the ى from لَدُنِّ is not allowable, except by poetic license ; whereas, according to others, expression is preferable, but elision is not a poetic license, because it is authorized among the Seven, [قَدْ بَلَغْتَ مِنْ لَدُنِّي عُذْرًا XVIII. 75. Thou hast obtained from me an excuse being read لَدُنِّي (K, B) by Nāfi' (B)] ; but IH follows Jz, who says that you are allowed an option in the case of لَدُنِّ, the reading inducing them to say so : and affixion of the ى to لَدُنِّ, though it is not a v., is for preservation of the inseparable quiescence of the ى. Elision is better than expression in the case of بَجَلْ, because of the dislike to a quiescent ج before the ى, and from the difficulty of pronouncing it.

§ 170.A. The most particular of the prons. is the pron. of the 1st pers., then that of the 2nd pers., then that of the 3rd ; and in combination the more particular prevails, as أَنْتَ وَهُوَ قُلْنَا or أَنَا وَهُوَ and أَنْتَ وَهُوَ قُلْتُمَا (R).

THE DEMONSTRATIVES.

§. 171. The dem. is what indicates a denominate and demonstration of that denominate: you say, when demonstrating Zaid for example, هَذَا This, the word هَذَا indicating the person Zaid and demonstration of that person (Sh). The dems. are the ns. that the denominate is demonstrated by; and on that account they contain the sense of the v., and therefore govern ds s. [75] (IY). Only a visible sensible [object], near or distant, is orig. demonstrated by the dems.: so that, if an invisible sensible [object] be demonstrated by them, as تِلْكَ الْجَنَّةُ XIX. 64. That is the Paradise, this is because it is made to be like the visible; and similarly if what is imperceptible by the senses be demonstrated by them, as VI. 102. [172] and XII. 37. [561] (R). The dems. are (1) sing., (a) masc. هَذَا: (b) fem. هَذِهِ, هَذِهِ [or هَذِهِ, with slurring or impletion (R)], هَذِهِ [or هَذِهِ, with slurring or impletion (R)], هَذِهِ, [and sometimes هَذِهِ (R)]: (2) du., (a) masc., [in the nom. (M, Jm)] هَٰؤُلَاءِ, and [in the acc. and gen. (M, Jm)] هَٰؤُلَاءِ, [but in some dials. هَٰؤُلَاءِ, whence هَٰؤُلَاءِ لَسَاخِرَانِ XX. 66. Verily these two are two enchanters (174) (M)]; (b) fem., [in the nom. (IY, Jm)] تَانِي, and [in the acc. and gen. (IY, Jm)] تَيْنِي, [تَانِي being the only fem. dial. var. dualized (M, Jm), because of the frequency of its occurrence (Jm)]: (3) pl., masc. and fem. أَوْلَا [or أَوْلَى, a heteromorphous pl., the measure of which is فُعَال upon the measure of غُرَاب (IY)], pronounced with prolongation or abbreviation (M, IH), and in the latter case [generally] written with the ي (R, Jm); which is common to the rational and irrational, as

ذَمَّ الْمَنَازِلَ بَعْدَ مَنَزَلَةِ اللَّوَى
وَالْعَيْشَ بَعْدَ أَوَّلِكَ الْإِيَّامِ

(M, R), by Jarīr (M, J), Disparage thou [664] the halting-places after quitting the halting-place of Al Liwā, and life after the passing of those days (J), where it is used for the irrational (IY, J), as in اِنْ السَّمْعُ وَالْبَصَرُ وَالْقُلُوبُ كُلُّ أُولَئِكَ كَانَ عَنْهُ مَسْئُولٌ XVII. 38. Verily the ear and the eye and the heart, all of those are inquired about (J), and similarly

يَا مَا أَمِيلُ غَزَلَانَا شَدَنَ لَنَا
مِنْ هَوْلِيَانِكُنِ الضَّالِّ وَالسَّامِرِ

(IY), by ‘Abd Allāh [Ibn ‘Umar (ID)] Ibn ‘Amr Ibn ‘Uthmān Ibn ‘Affān al‘Arjī, O how graceful [288] are

young gazelles whose horns have budded for us from among those herds of gazelles that graze amidst those little [293] wild lote trees and gum-acacia trees! (Jsh), though it is mostly used for the rational, and there is a version ^{أَقْوَام} peoples [in the former verse] (J); and, when pronounced with Kasr, sometimes has Tauwīn [608], in which case, the Tanwīn denoting indeterminateness, as in ضَعُ [187, 198], while ^{أُولَآءِ} is det., its import is distance, in order that the persons demonstrated may be like the indet., so that ^{أُولَآءِ} is like ^{أُولَآئِكَ} [173]; and sometimes has the 1st Hamza changed into ه, as هَآلَآءِ, or the last Hamza pronounced with Damm, as ^{أُولَآءِ}; and sometimes has the Damma before the ل impleted, as ^{أُولَآءِ} upon the measure of طَرْمَارُ; whereas ^{هُوَآءِ} upon the measure of تَرَابُ, as

تَجَلَدَ لَا يَقُلْ هُوَآءِ هَذَا * بَكَى لَمَّا بَكَى أَسْفًا وَغَيْطًا

*Bear up: let not these say, This man wept, when he wept, for grief and rage is not a dial. var., but a contraction of هُوَآءِ [174] by elision of the ه of هَا and conversion of the [1st] Hamza of ^{أُولَآءِ} into و (R). The dem. in II. 1. [599] is made masc., though the demonstrated is a fem., vid. the سُورَةُ chapter, because اَلْكِتَابُ is (1) its enunc., in which case, ذَلِكْ having the same* meaning and denominate as الْكِتَابُ, the gender of the former may be made to accord with that of the latter, as in كَانَتْ أَمْكُ [182, 449]: (2) its ep., That scripture, in which case only الْكِتَابُ is plainly demonstrated by it, since by the dem. is demonstrated the [n. of] genus occurring as its ep.: you say هَذَا ذَلِكَ الْإِنْسَانُ فَعَلَ كَذَا or ذَلِكَ الشَّخْصُ Hind, that human being, or that person, did such a thing, and [An Nābigha] adh Dhubyānī says

نُبِّئْتُ نَعْمًا عَلَى الْهَجْرَانِ عَاتِبَةً
سَقِيًّا وَرَعِيًّا لِذَاكَ الْعَاتِبِ الزَّارِي

[I have been told that Nu'm (the beloved) is blaming the desertion: God send down rain to, and keep, that blaming, upbraiding (person)! (N)]. And بَيْنَ [115] may be prefixed to ذَلِكَ in ذَلِكَ بَيْنَ II. 63. Middle-aged between those two because ذَلِكَ is i. q. two things [172], since it occurs as a dem. of the فَارِضُ and بُكَرُ mentioned [149], being allowable as a dem. of two fems., though it is sing. masc., as being a paraphrase of مَا تَقَدَّمَ or مَا ذُكِرَ for the sake of abridgment. And the pron. is sometimes treated like the dem. in this respect: AU says, I said to Ru'ba about his saying فِيهَا خُطُوطٌ أَلْفُ

[161] "If thou mean the خُطُوط, say كَانَهَا, and, if the سَوَاد and بَلَق, say كَانَهُمَا"; and he said, "I meant كَانَ ذَاكَ" (K). The dems. [except ذَانِ and تَانِ (Sh)] are uninfl. (IY, R, Sh), upon quiescence, like ذَا and ذِي; Fath, like ثُمَّ [175], as وَأَزَلَفْنَا ثُمَّ الْآخِرِينَ XXVI. 64. And We made the others draw near there; Kasr, like هُؤُلَاءِ; and Damm, like هُؤُلَاءِ, which Ktb relates that some of the Arabs say (Sh): (1) according to most (R), because they imply the sense of the p. (IY, R), vid. demonstration: for, this being a meaning, like interrogation, a p. ought to be constituted to indicate it [159], because their custom current in the case of every meaning introduced into the sentence or into words after their formation is that a p. should be constituted to indicate it, like the [ps. of] interrogation in أَضْرَبَ زَيْدٌ and هَلْ أَضْرَبَ, negation in مَا ضَرَبَ عَمْرُو, wish, hope, beginning, ending, premonition, comparison, etc., for which لَيْتَ, لَعَلَّ, مِنْ, إِلَى, هَآ, the ك, etc. are constituted; or that what follows the course of the p. in needing something else should be constituted to denote it, like the inflection indicative of the various meanings, the ي of relation, and the alteration of the formation alone, as in غُرْفَةٌ and غُرْفٌ and كِسْرَةٌ and كُسْرٌ, or with the addition of a letter; as in the dim. and some broken

pls.: and, since demonstration is a meaning introduced into words like ^{هَذَا} الرَّجُلُ and ^{ذَلِكَ} الْفَرَسُ in ^{هَذَا} الرَّجُلُ This man and ^{ذَلِكَ} الْفَرَسُ That horse, and no p. has been constituted to indicate it, the dems. become like impliers of the sense of the p. (R): (2) as some say, because the dem. resembles the pron.: for you demonstrate by the former what is in your presence so long as it remains present, and, when it is absent, that n. quits it, whereas [explicit] ns. are so constituted as to be inseparable from their denominates; and, since this n. is separable from what it is constituted for, it becomes like the pron., which, being used as a n. when an explicit n. precedes [160], and not having been a n. for it before that, is a n. for the denominate in one state, and not in another: so that, since the pron. must be uninfl. [161], the vague [262] must likewise be uninfl. (IY): (3) as is said, because the constitution of some dems., as ^{ذَا}, ^{تَا}, ^{ذِي}, and ^{تِي}, is [bil.] like that of ps.; while the remainder, as ^{أَوَّلًا} and ^{أَوَّلًا}, are made to accord with them: (4) as is said, because they need the context that removes their vagueness, vid. either sensible demonstration or qualification [148], as ^{هَذَا} الرَّجُلُ This man, as the p. needs something else [497]. The majority say that the du. is uninfl., because the cause of uninflectedness exists in it, as in the sing. and pl.; and that ^{ذَانِ} is a coined form, not constructed upon a sing., ^{ذَانِ} being a form for the nom., and ^{ذَيْنِ}

for the acc. and gen.: but some say that it is infl., because its termination varies with the variation of the ops., while the assertion that each of them is a fresh form is contrary to the apparent [case]. And the dispute on الَّذِي and الَّذِي [176] is the same as on ذَا and ذِي (R). The dems. ذَا and تَا and the conjuncts الَّذِي and الَّتِي are like the du., i. e. are infl. with the ا in the nom. and with the ي preceded by Fath in the acc. and gen. [16], like الزَّيْدَانِ and الرَّجُلَانِ: but are not really du., because the only dets. that may be dualized are such as are susceptible of being made indet., like زَيْدٌ and عَمْرٌ, which, when held to be common and indet. [12], may be dualized, for which reason you say الزَّيْدَانِ and الْعَمْرَانِ, prefixing the p. of determination to them [13], whereas, if they retained the determination of the quality of proper name, the p. of determination might not be prefixed to them; while, ذَا and الَّذِي not being susceptible of being made indet., because their determination is by means of demonstration and the conj., which are inseparable from them, that proves ذَا, الَّذِي, and the like to be quasi-du. ns., like هَـمَا and أَنْتَـمَا, not really du., for which reason أَلْ may not be prefixed to ذَا, as it may not be to هَـمَا and أَنْتَـمَا (Sh).

But ذَاكَ, تَاكَ, اَلَّذَاكَ, and اَلَّتَاكَ [176] occur in the three cases; and to this is attributed XX. 66. [above] (R). These ns. are said to be vague [262] because you demonstrate by them everything that is in your presence, and sometimes there are several things in your presence, so that they confuse the person addressed, who does not know which of them you demonstrate; and therefore these ns., being vague, are for that reason invariably explained by the ep. upon the occasion of confusion (IY).

§ 172. The p. [ك (IY, Sh, Jm)] of allocation [560] is affixed to them (M, IH, Sh), to give warning of the number and gender of the person addressed (Jm), as ذَاكَ, [ذَانِكَ or ذَانِكَ] with the ن single or double [173], whence فَذَانِكَ بُرْهَانَانِ مِنْ رَبِّكَ XXVIII. 32. Then those two shall be two proofs from thy Lord, ذِيكَ [below], تَاكَ, تِيكَ, [but not (IY)] ذِيكَ [below], اُولَئِكَ, اُولَئِكَ, and اُولَئِكَ (M). The ك is not a pron., as in غُلَامِكَ, because that would necessarily involve its being governed in the gen. by prothesis, which is not allowable, because the dems. are not pre., since they are invariably det. [112] (Sh). The ك of ذَلِكْ [173] does not indicate the 2nd pers. [160], but only allocation; so that it is a p. indicating a meaning, but having absolutely no indication of the person (Sh on the prons.). It varies with the gender and number of the person addressed, as كَذَلِكَ قَالَ رَبُّكَ XIX. 10. Thus hath thy Lord said, [XIX. 21. (561) (IY),] XII. 37. [561], ^{اَوَّوْ صَطَا وَتَوَّو} ذَلِكُمْ اَللّٰهُ رَبُّكُمْ VI. 102. That is God your Lord, and XII. 32. [502] (M). These [ps. of allocution (Jm)] being five [multiplied (Jm)] into five [sorts of dem., i. e. the sing. masc. and fem., the du. masc. and fem., and the common pl. (Jm)], that [product (Jm)] is 25, vid.

ذَانِكُنَّ [and ذَيْنِك (Jm)] to ذَانِك , ذَانِكِي to ذَاكَ and ذَيْنِكِي (Jm)], and similarly the rest (IH), i. e. تَاكَ and تَانِكِي to تَيْنِك and تَانِك , تِيَكِي and تَاَكِي to تِيَك and اُولَاكِي and اُولَاكِي to اُولَاكَ and اُولَاكِ , and تَيْنِكِي ;

while ذِيكَ , though given by Z [above] and MK, is said in the [Th and] Sihāḥ to be wrong (Jm). But there is another dial., transmitted by trustworthy authorities, which makes the sign of allocution sing. and pronounces it with Fath in every case, by giving predominance to the side of the sing. masc., as وَكَذَلِكَ جَعَلْنَاكُمْ اُمَّةً وَصَطًا II. 137. And thus have We made you a chosen people, where the analogy of the 1st dial. requires وَكَذَلِكُمْ , because the address is to a multitude, as in the other text لَنْ تَتَّبِعُونَا كَذَلِكُمْ قَالَ اَللّٰهُ مِنْ قَبْلُ XLVIII. 15. Ye shall not follow us. Thus hath God said before ; and hence يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا XLVII. 8-10. ^{أَن تَنصُرُوا اللَّهَ يَنْصُرْكُمْ}.....ذَلِكَ بَانَهُمْ

O ye that have believed, if ye help God, He will help you.....That is because they, not ذَلِكُمْ, though the addressed is a multitude (IY). And [thus] ذَلِكْ is sometimes used in place of ذَلِكُمْ, as ذَلِكْ لِمَنْ خَشِيَ الْعَنَتَ IV. 30. That marrying of the handmaidens is for him of you that dreadeth falling into fornication and ذَلِكْ أَدْنَىٰ أَنْ لَا تُعُولُوا IV. 3. That choice of one wife will be nearer to the condition that ye be not unfair; just as the sing. is sometimes used to demonstrate two [things], as II. 63. [171], or more, as كُلُّ ذَلِكْ كَانَ سَيِّئَةً XVII. 40. All of those, the evil thereof are hateful in the sight of thy Lord, by paraphrasing the du. or pl. by المَذْكُور (R).

§ 173. The ل [599, 681] before the ك is optional, as ذَاكَ or ذَلِكْ (Sh). ذَلِكْ is ذَاكَ with the ل added in it [to indicate the distance of the demonstrated, and pronounced with Kasr because of the concurrence of two quiescents (IY)]. A distinction being made between ذَا, ذَاكَ, and ذَلِكْ (M), ذَا is said to denote the near, ذَاكَ the intermediate, and ذَلِكْ the distant. [But some, holding that there is no medium between the near and distant, say that the dems. denuded of the ل and ك denote the near; and that those conjoined with them, or with the ك alone, denote the distant (R).] And like [the masc. (IY)] ذَلِكْ [in importing distance (Jm)] are [the fem. (M, R)] تَلَكْ (M, IH) from تِي, in which they elide the ي because of its quiescence and the quiescence of the ل after it (IY), تَلِكْ, تَلِكْ with Fath of the ت by elision of the ا of تَ (R), and تَلِكْ [from تَ, in which they do not elide the ا, as they do not elide it in ذَلِكْ (IY)], the last [3 (R)] being rare (M, R); the du. (R) ذَانِكْ and تَانِكْ; and [the pl. (R)] اُولَئِكَ (IH) and اُولَآءِ [171] (R). The reduplication of the ن [in ذَانِي and هَذَانِي is a compensation for an elided letter, the ا of ذَا; but (IY)] in ذَانِكْ [and تَانِكْ (R)], says Mb, is a compensation for the ل in ذَلِكْ (IY, R) and تَلِكْ (R): so that, when you say ذَاكْ in the sing., you say ذَانِكْ in the du. (IY); while, according to Mb, ذَانِكْ is the du. of ذَلِكْ (M). But others than Mb say that the reduplication is a compensation for the elided ا of the sing. [ذَاكْ and تَاكْ] :

and this is more likely, because they say الَّذَانِي and الَّتَانِي with the ن doubled as a compensation for the elided ي [176]; while, if the reduplication were a compensation for the ل, هَذَانِي with هَا [174] would not be said, as هَٰذَاكَ is not said: so that, according to others than Mb and his followers, the distant and intermediate have one expression in the du. (R). The ل must be omitted in (1) the dem. of the du., as ذَانِكَ and تَانِكَ: (2) the dem. of the pl. in the dial. of those who prolong it, as أُولَئِكَ; whereas, if you abbreviate, you say أُولَاكَ or أُولَاكَ: (3) every dem. preceded by the premonitory p., as هَٰذَاكَ [174], هَٰتَاكَ, and هَٰتَيْكَ (Sh). And Fr asserts that omission of the ل in all is the dial. of Tamīm, who content themselves with the ك alone to denote the distant and intermediate (R).

§ 174. The premonitory [p. (IH) هَا (M, R)] is prefixed to them [552] (M, IH). One says [sing. masc. (Sh)] هَٰذَا, [the ا of هَا being dropped in writing from frequency of usage, but retained in pronunciation (IY); fem. (Sh) هَٰذِهِ (IY, Sh), هَٰتِهِ (IY), هَٰذِي (M),] هَٰتَا, and هَٰتَيْ, [as

وخبّرتماني أنما الموت بالقري
فكيف وهاتي هضبة وكتيب

{by Ka'b alGhanawī, And ye two told me that death was only in the towns: then how (did my brother die in this place), when this is a rock and a sand-heap?

(N),} and وَلَيْسَ لِعَيْشِنَا الْخ (149) (IY): du. (IY, Sh)

masc., in the nom. (Sh) هَذَانِ, [and in the acc. and

gen. هَذَيْنِ; fem., in the nom. (Sh) هَاتَانِ, {and in the

acc. and gen. هَاتَيْنِ (Sh)}: pl. (IY, Sh), masc. and fem.

(Sh) هُوَلَا (M, Sh) or هُوَلَا (M), with prolongation [in the dial. of the Hijāzīs, which is transmitted in the Kūr'ān (Sh),] or abbreviation (IY, Sh) in the dial. of the Banū Tamīm (Sh), and هُوَلَا [or هُوَلَا] with elision of the l of هَا, as تَجَلَدَ لَا يَقْلُ هُوَلَا الْخ [171] and by AlA'shà, To these, then those, did I give sandals measured by sandals (IY). And [sometimes the p. of allocation is with them, as (IY) هَاتَاكَ, [هَاتَاكَ (IY),]

هُوَلَا ثُمَّ هُوَلَيْكَ اعْطِيْكَ * مَت نَعَالًا مُحَذَّرَةً بِنَعَالٍ

{ هُوَلَاكَ or هُوَلَيْكَ, [هَاتَاكَ, هَاتَاكَ (M), هَاتَيْكَ

(IY). The هَا is not part of the dem., but only a p. put to call the attention of the person addressed to the demonstrated, as is proved by its ellipse, allowably in ذَا and ذَاكَ, and necessarily in ذَلِك [173] (Sh). One explanation of XX. 66. [16, 171] is that, when هَذَا is dualized, two ʾs, the ʾ of هَذَا and the ʾ of dualization, are combined, so that one of them must be elided, because of the concurrence of two quiescents; and therefore those who assume the elided to be the ʾ of هَذَا, and the remaining one to be the ʾ of dualization, convert the latter into ي in the acc. and gen. [16]; but those who assume the converse do not alter the ʾ [171] (Sh on inflection).

§ 175. And hence their saying, when they demonstrate the near place, هُنَا; and, when the distant, هُنَا, for which [هُنَا, with (IY)] Kasr [of the ʾ, a vicious and rare dial. var. (IY),] has been transmitted, and ثُمَّ (M): these ns. also being dems., like هَذَا and هُوَ لَا, except that by these ns. only that place which is present, and by those everything, is demonstrated. And Dhu-r Rumma says

هَنَا وَهَنَا وَمِنْ هَنَا لَهِنَّ بِهَا * ذَاتَ الشَّامِلِ وَالْأَيْمَانِ هَيْنُومِ
 [There (an adv. to زَجَلَ in the preceding saying لِّلْجِنِّ بِاللَّيْلِ فِي أَرْجَائِنَا زَجَلَ The Jinn have at night on our sides a clamouring), and there, and here (مِنْ being red.) or there: they (the Jinn) have on them (the sides), on the left hands and on the right hands a muttering, with Fath of the ة in all three, or, as is said, with Fath of the ة in the 1st, Kasr in the 2nd, and Damm in the 3rd, and (FA)] with reduplication [of the ن in all three (FA)]; but, as for the saying of the Rājiz

قَدْ وَرَدَتْ مِنْ أَمْكِنَةٍ مِنْ هَاهُنَا وَمِنْ هُنَا
إِنْ لَمْ أَرِدْهَا فَمَهْ

[They (the camels) have come to water from many places, from here and from here: if I quench not their thirst, what (am I to do)? (AAz)], he means هُنَا, and substitutes a ة for the ا [181, 690] (IY). هُنَا is invariably an adv., either in the acc. or governed in the gen. by مِنْ or اِلَى only (R). ثُمَّ is a n. whereby distant place is demonstrated, as XXVI. 64. [171]: and it [also] is an aplastic [64] adv. [of place, i. e. is not used except as an adv., nor governed in the gen. except by مِنْ (DM)]; for which reason he that parses it as [direct (DM)] obj. of رَأَيْتَ in رَأَيْتَ ثُمَّ رَأَيْتَ LXXVI. 20. And, when thou seest there, thou shalt see makes a blunder, [رَأَيْتَ having no obj. expressed or supplied, in order that it may be general, and ثُمَّ being in the position of the acc. as an adv., i. e. in Paradise (K)]: and it is not preceded by the premonitory p. [552], nor followed by the ك of allocution [560] (ML). The ك [of allocution (M)] is affixed, [and the premonitory p. is prefixed (M),] to [هنا and (M)] هُنا (M, R), as هُنَاكَ, هَاهُنَا, and هَاهُنَا, e. g. اِنَّا هَاهُنَا قَاعِدُونَ V. 27. Verily we stop here (IY); but not to ثُمَّ, the saying ثُمَّكَ being wrong (R): and [they put the ل, so that (IY)] هُنَاكَ [599, 681] is said, as ذَلِك [173] is said (M), e. g. XVIII. 42. [75] (IY). هُنا denotes the near, هُنَاكَ the intermediate, and هُنَاكَ the distant: while هُنَا, هُنَاكَ, and هُنَا, like هُنَاكَ, denote the distant. But sometimes time is meant by هُنَاكَ, هُنَاكَ, and هُنَا, as XVIII. 42. [75], i. e. حِينَئِذٍ Then, and حَتَّى هُنَا, when (the longing was) not at a time that etc, هُنَا being an adv. of time, because of its prefixion to the prop. [124] (R). IHsh, however, says that the dem. is not pre. (SM); and the best is the saying of F that لَات is inop., [the adv.] هُنَا a prepos. enunc., and حَتَّى a postpos. inch. by subaudition of اِنَّ, as in [وَمِنْ آيَاتِهِ يَرْسِلُ الْبَرْقَ] XXX. 23. And among His signs is (that) He showeth you the lightning and (SM) [وَلَيْسَ تَسْمَعُ بِالْمَعِيدِ] [2, 418. A.] (ML), i. e. وَلَيْسَ كَاثِنًا فِي هَذَا الْوَقْتِ, i. e. الْحَنِينُ هُنَا (DM).

THE CONJUNCTS.

§. 176. They are (1) [أَلَّذِي and الَّتِي and their du. and pl. (IY),] (a) sing., masc. أَلَّذِي, [used for the rational and irrational (IY, Sh), as XXXIX. 34. (178) and أَلَّذِي كُنْتُمْ تَوَعَدُونُ XXI. 103. This is your day, which ye used to be promised (Sh)]; fem. الَّتِي, [used for the rational and irrational, as LVIII. 1. (575) and سَيَقُولُ السُّفَهَاءُ مِنَ النَّاسِ مَا وَلَّاهُمْ عَنْ قِبَلَتِهِمُ الَّتِي and كَانُوا عَلَيْهَا II. 136. The foolish of the people continually (578) say, What hath turned them away from their Kibla that they were determined upon? (Sh): (a) sometimes the ي of أَلَّذِي {and الَّتِي (IY, R, Sh)} is (α) doubled (M, R, Sh), as أَلَّذِي and الَّتِي (IY, R), the two words being then infl. {like أَي according to Jz, (R)}, or uninfl. upon Kasr (R, Sh) according to some, as

وَلَيْسَ أَلْمَالُ فَاعْلَمَهُ بِمَالٍ * وَأَنْ أَغْنَاكَ إِلَّا لِلَّذِي
يُنَالُ بِهِ الْعِلَاءُ وَيُصْطَفِيهِ * لِأَقْرَبِ أَقْرَبِيهِ وَلِلصَّفِيِّ

And wealth is not (then know thou it) wealth, even if it enrich thee, except for him that obtains by it eminence, and devotes it to the nearest of his kindred and to the friend (R); (β) elided, the preceding letter being then pronounced with Kasr, {as it was before the elision (Sh),} or quiescent (IY, R, Sh), as وَالَّذِي لَوْ شَاءَ لَكُنْتُ صَخْرًا * أَوْ جَبَلًا أَوْ مَشْمُورًا

By Him Who is such that, if He willed, I should be a rock or a mountain solid, high,

وَلَا تُكُونَنَّ مِنَ الَّذِينَ كِيدُوا * كَالَّذِي تَرَىٰ زَيِّفًا فَاصْطِيدًا

And be sure thou be not of them that have been outwitted, like him that has dug a pitfall, and been caught in it himself, and

فَقُلْ لِّلَّتْ تَلَوْمُكَ إِنَّ نَفْسِي * أَرَاهَا لَا تُعَوِّزُ بِالتَّمِيمِ

Then say thou to her that blames thee, Verily my soul, I know it charms not with amulets (R): (b) the ا and

ل in الَّذِي and اَلَّتِي and their du. and pl. are, according to critical judges, red. (599), what is intended by them being the form of determination, not its sense, as is proved by two matters, (a) that the ا and ل in the conjuncts are an inseparable addition; whereas the ل of determination is not known by us to occur inseparably, but on the contrary may be dropped, as الْغَلَامُ and غُلَامٌ; while we do not find them say لَنْ, as they say غُلَامٌ: (β) that we find many of the conjunct ns. to be denuded of the ا and ل, but, notwithstanding that, to be det., vid. مَنْ, مَا, and اَيُّ, their determinateness being only by means of the conj's. after them; and, when it is established that the conj. is determinative, the ا and و in such conjuncts as they are prefixed to are not determinative also, because the n. does not become det. for two different reasons: (c) the ا and و are added for a sort of rectification of the form, because الَّذِي and such of its sisters as contain a و are introduced only as connectives to the qualification of dets. by props. (178): for props. are indet. (144), and the indet. is not an ep. of the det. (146); while it is impossible to prefix the و of determination to the prop., because this و is one of the peculiarities of ns. (2), whereas the prop. is not peculiar to ns., but is nominal and verbal: so that they then put الَّذِي, and make the prop. a conj. to الَّذِي, which is the ep. in form, though the object is the prop.; and, the form of الَّذِي before the prefixion of the ا and و not being in accordance with the form of the eps. of dets., they add at its beginning the ا and و, in order that they may thereby obtain the form of the det., which they intend, and thus the form and sense may correspond (IY): (b) du., masc., [in the nom. (IY, IA, Sh)] الَّذَانِ, [and in the acc. and gen. الَّذَيْنِ (IY, IA, Sh)]; fem., [in the nom. (IY, IA, Sh)] الَّتَانِ, [and in the acc. and gen. الَّتَيْنِ (IY, IA, Sh): the ي being elided in the du. (IY, R, IA); and replaced by the ا in the nom., and by the ي in the acc. and gen. (IA)]: (a)

sometime the ي is (α) doubled, [as a compensation for the elided ي (173) (R, IA), as in the reading {of Ibn Kathir (IY)} $\text{يَاتِيَانِهَا مِنْكُمْ}$, IV. 20 And the two of you that shall commit it (IY, IA) and the reading $\text{بِنَا أَرْنَا الَّذِينَ}$, XLI. 29. Our Lord, show Thou us the two that; and this reduplication is allowable in the du. of the dems. ذَا and تَا also, as ذَانِ , تَانِ , ذَيْنِ , and تَيْنِ , being intended as a compensation for the elided ا (IA): (β) elided (R, Sh), because the conjunct is deemed too long by reason of its conj., as أَبْنَىٰ كَلِيبٍ (178) and

$\text{هُمَا أَلَّتَا لَوْ وَلَدَتْ تَمِيمٌ * لَقِيلَ فَخَرُّ لَهُمْ صَمِيمٌ}$

{by AlAkhtal, They two are those two women who are such that, if Tamīm had given them birth, it would have been said, Theirs is genuine glory! (Jsh)}: (b) the dus. are infl. or uninfl., according to the different opinions on ذَانِ and تَانِ (171); and أَلَّتَانِ and أَلَّتَانِ occur in the three cases in some unchaste dials.; but, when they vary, it is better to say that they are infl. (R)]: (c) pl., masc. الَّذِينَ , [for the rational (R, IA), in the three cases (IY, R, IA, Sh)]; and [in some dials. (M)] الَّذُونَ [in the nom. (IY, R, IA, Sh), the dial. of Hudhail (R, IA), or, as some say, 'Ukail (J), whence

نَحْنُ الَّذِينَ صَبَحُوا الصَّبَاحَ * يَوْمَ النَّخِيلِ غَارَةُ مُلْحَا

(IA), by Abū Harb AlA‘lam alJāhili al‘Ukāili, We are they that came in the morning on the day of AnNukhail (a place in Syria) for an obstinate onslaught (Jsh), الَّذِينَ being written with two ل s, and الَّذِينَ with one, because آل, being a determinative or in the semblance thereof, whereas the determinative is not prefixed to the p. nor to the uninfls. like it, is elided in writing, contrary to the infl. (DM), and الَّذِينَ in the acc. and gen. (IY, IA), the inflection of the pl. being, says Z, the dial. of those who double the ي in the sing., which confirms the saying of Jz that الَّذِي is infl., so that الَّذِينَ is orig. الَّذِينَ, and, one of the two ي s having been elided, is afterwards treated like قَاضُونَ; while some transmit الَّذِينَ in the nom. and الَّذِينَ in the acc. and gen., which is the dial. of those who double the ي, and then pluralize الَّذِي without elision of anything; and sometimes the ن is elided from الَّذِينَ for alleviation, as

قَوْمِي الَّذِينَ بَعَاظَ طَيْرُوا شَرًّا

مِنْ رُؤْسِ قَوْمِكَ ضَرْبًا بِالْمَتَائِقِلِ

My people are they that at 'Ukāz made sparks fly from the heads of thy people, smiting with the weights, and from الَّذِيْنَ also, as وَانَّ الَّذِيْ حَازَتْ اَلْخَ (117, 178) (R)]; and اَلَّذِيْنَ [or اَلَا (FA), i. q. اَلَّذِيْنَ (IY, FA), a heteromorphous pl. of اَلَّذِيْ (IY, R), upon the measure of اَلْعُلَى (R), pronounced with abbreviation or prolongation (Sh), used for the rational and irrational, and sometimes for the pl. fem., both matters being combined in

وَتَبْلَى اَلَايَ يَسْتَلْتُمُوْنَ عَلَى اَلَايَ
تَرَاهُنَّ يَوْمَ الرُّوْعِ كَالْحَدِيْدِ الْقَبْلِ

(IA), by Abū Dhu'aib alHudhalī, And it (relating to Fate in the preceding verse) consumes those heroes who put on coats of mail when purposing to mount upon those mares which thou wilt know on the day of battle to be like squint-eyed kites in swiftness (J); and اَللَّائِيْنَ in the nom., acc., and gen.; and, the ن being elided, اَللَّائِيْ, like اَلْقَاضِيْ, which is rare in the masc., as اَللَّائِيْ يُؤْلَوْنَ مِنْ نِسَائِهِمْ II. 226. For them that swear to abstain from their wives, so read by Akh (R); and اَللَّاءِ (R, IA), by elision of the ي (R), as

فَمَا اَبَاؤُنَا بِاَمْنٍ مِّنْهُ * عَلَيْنَا اِلَّا قَدْ مَهَدُوا الْحَجُّوْرَا

(IA) Then our fathers, who have spread out the bosoms of their garments as cradles for us, are not kinder to us than he (J); and ^{وَالَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ in the nom., and ^{الَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ in the acc. and gen. (M, R), perf. pl. of ^{الَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ i. q. ^{الَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ, as ^{الَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ (IY)]: fem. ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي, [upon the measure of ^{فَاعِل} فَاعِل from ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي, a quasi-pl. n., like ^{الْبَاقِر} الْبَاقِر and ^{الْجَامِل} الْجَامِل (257) (R)]; and ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي, [with Hamza in place of the ب, which is frequent in the pl. of ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي, but not in the pl. of ^{الَّذِينَ} الَّذِينَ (R); and ^{اللَّوَاتِي} اللَّوَاتِي (M, R) and ^{اللَّوَاتِي} اللَّوَاتِي (IY, R), as though they were pls. of the pl. (R)]; and ^{اللَّات} اللَّات, ^{اللَّات} اللَّات, [^{اللَّوَات} اللَّوَات, and ^{اللَّوَات} اللَّوَات (IY, R), by elision of the ي (R, IA, Sh) in all four (R), as in LXV. 4. (29) (IY, Sh), which is read with or without the ي, while ^{يَاتِينَ} يَاتِينَ ^{الْفَاحِشَةُ} الْفَاحِشَةُ IV. 19. And those who shall commit adultery is read among the Seven only with the ي, because it is lighter than ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي, as being without a Hamza (Sh); and ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي (M, R), the Hamza of ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي being lightened between Hamza and ي (658), because it is pronounced with Kasr, as in the reading of Warsh ^{يُنْسِنُ} يُنْسِنُ LXV. 4.; and ^{الَّتِي} الَّتِي with a quiescent ي after the ل without a Hamza, as in the reading of Abù 'Amr and Bz (610), which, says Abù 'Amr, is the dial.

of Kuraish; and ^{أَلْوَا}, by elision of the ^ت and ^ي together; and ^{أَلْوَاتٍ}, like ^{أَلْعَاتٍ}, having the ^ت pronounced with Kasr, or infl. like ^{أَلْمُسَلَمَاتِ}; and ^{أَلَايَ}, a heteromorphous pl. of ^{أَلَتِي} also, ^{أَلَايَ} and ^{أَلَايِي} being common to ^{أَلَتِي} and ^{أَلَتِي}, except that ^{أَلَايَ} is better known in the pl. of the masc., while ^{أَلَايِي} is the reverse of it (R): (2) [common to all genders and numbers (R, IA, Sh),] (a) ^{أَل}, [denoting the rational and irrational (IA), prefixed to the act. and pass. parts. (R, Sh), as ^{أَلْضَارِبُ} and ^{أَلْمُضْرُوبُ} (177) (Sh), and held by Z to be a defective form of ^{أَلَتِي}, etc. (178), but properly not the ^ل of ^{أَلَتِي}, because the ^ل of ^{أَلَتِي} is red., contrary to the conjunct ^ل (R)]: (b) ^{مَا} [180]: (c) ^{مَنْ} [182]: (d) ^{أَيَ}, [pre. to a det. (116), in order that it may be det. (262) (R), as XIX. 70. (184) (Sh), the prefixion being either expressed or constructive: (a) ^{أَيَ}, when the fem. is meant by it, may have the ^ة affixed to it, whether it be conjunct, interrog., or otherwise, as ^{لَقِيتُ أَيَّهَنَ لَقِيتُ} or ^{أَيَّهَنَ} I met her of them that thou didst meet; though An says that feminization is anomalous in it, as it is in ^{كَلَّتِهِنَّ} {fem. of ^{كُلُّ} (K, B on XXXI. 34.)}, ^{خَيْرَةٌ}

النَّاسِ , and شَرَّةُ النَّاسِ (b) some of the Arabs dualize and pluralize it also, in interrogation and elsewhere, as أَيَاهُمْ ^{أَيَاهُم} Which two of them are thy two brothers? and أَخَوَاكُ ^{أَيُوهُمْ} Which of them are thy brothers?; which are more anomalous than the femininization, but are made allowable by its plasticity in inflection (R)]: (e) the Tā'i , نُو , [denoting the rational and irrational (IA), as لَنْ لَمْ تَغَيِّرْ بَعْضُ مَا قَدْ صَنَعْتُمْ * لَأَنْتَحِينَ لِلْعَظْمِ نُو أَنَا عَارِقَةٌ by 'Arik (M) at Tā'i, (I swear,) if thou alter not some of what you have done, assuredly I will have recourse to breaking the bone, the flesh of which I am gnawing (T), which in their {best known (R, IA)} dial. is invariable in gender and number, {as

فَإِنَّ الْمَاءَ مَا أْبَىٰ وَجَدِي * وَبِئْرِي نُو حَفْرَتِ وَنُو طَوَيْتِ

(IY, R), by Sinān Ibn AlFahl of the Banū Umm AlKahf of Tayyi, For verily the water is the water of my father and my grandfather, and my well, which I dug, and which I cased (T), i. e. الَّتِي حَفَرْتُهَا (R),} and uninfl. also (IY, R, IA), as

فَمَا كَرَامَ مَوْسِرُونَ أَتَيْتَهُمْ * فَحَسْبِي مِنْ نُو عِنْدَهُمْ مَا كَفَانِيَا

(below) (IY, IA); while the 2nd dial., transmitted by Jz, has نُو for the masc. and نَات for the fem., in the sing., du., and pl.; the 3rd, also transmitted by him, has the same as the 2nd, except that ذُرَاتٌ is said for the fem. pl. in the three cases; and in the 4th, transmitted by IDn, it is variable, like ذُرُ i. q. صَاحِبٌ, and infl. with the inflection of all its variations (16) (R)]: (f) ذَا [186] (M, R, IA, Sh). The conjuncts [except الَّذَانِ (171), اَللَّتَانِ, and اَيُّ (184) (Sh)] are uninfl. (R, Sh), upon quiescence, like اَلَّذِي, اَلَّتِي, مَنْ, and مَا; Fath, like اَلَّذِي; Kasr, like اَلْوَلَا with prolongation, a dial. var. of اَلْوَلَى i. q. اَلَّذِي, as

أَبَى اللّٰهُ لِلشِّمِّ الْاَوَّلَاءِ كَانَهُمْ * سَيُوفُ اَجَادِ الْقِيْنِ يَوْمًا صَقَالَهَا

[by Kuthayyir, God has refused to the highminded, who are as though they were swords whose furbishing the smith has done excellently one day (FA)]; and Damm, like ذَاتُ i. q. اَلَّتِي in the dial. of some of Tayyi, as Fr relates that he heard a beggar say in the congregational mosque بِالْفَضْلِ ذُو فَضْلِكُمُ اللّٰهُ بِهِ وَالْكَرَامَةُ ذَاتُ اَكْرَمِكُمُ اللّٰهُ بِهِ By the excellence that God has made you to excel with, and the honor that God has honored you with, & with Fath of the ب being orig. بِهَا (Sh): either because some of them are constituted like ps., vid. مَا, مَنْ, and the ل, while the remainder are made to accord with them for the sake of uniformity ; or because they need a conj. and rel. [177] in their completeness as a part [of the prop.], as the p. needs something else in its quality of part [497]. The inflection ought to rest upon the conjunct [177], because it is the [word] intended by the speech, the conj. being put only to explain it ; and the proof is the appearance of the inflection in the conjunct ^{أَيُّ}أَيُّ, and similarly in ^{الَّذَانِ}الَّذَانِ and ^{الَّتَانِ}الَّتَانِ according to those who say that they are infl. [171]. And some say that the conj. is infl. with the inflection of the conjunct, because they believe it to be the ep. of the conjunct, by reason of its explaining the latter, like the props. occurring as eps. of indets. [1, 144]: but this of no account, because the conjuncts are dets. [262] by common consent, and props. do not occur as eps. of dets. ; and the majority hold that the conj. has no place in inflection [1], since it is not replaceable by the single term, like [the prop. that occurs in the place of] the ep., enunc., d. s., and post. [n.] (R). It has reached me that one grammarian used to instruct his pupils to say that the conjunct and its conj. were in such and such a position, arguing that they were like one word ; but the truth is what I have premised, [vid. that the conj. has no place, and the conjunct has a place, but that their aggregate is not said to have, or not to have a place (DM),] as is proved by the appearance of the inflection in the conjunct itself, as in XLI. 29. [above], the reading ^{أَشَدُّ}أَشَدُّ ^{أَيُّ}أَيُّ XIX. 70. [184] and version ^{أَشَدُّ}أَشَدُّ

عَلَىٰ أَيِّهِمُ النَّعْمُ [184], the saying of the Tā'ī [poet (DM), Manzūr Ibn Suhaim (T, DM) alFak'asī (DM),]

فَمَا كِرَامٌ مُوسِرُونَ أَتَيْتَهُمْ * فَحَسْبِيَ مِنْ ذِي عِنْدِهِمْ مَا كَفَانِيَا
[And, if wealthy nobles (be repaired to, if) I come to them, my sufficiency of what is with them is what suffices me (T)], نَحْنُ الَّذِينَ أَلْفُ [above], and the saying of the Hudhailī

هُمْ اللَّائِي فَكَّرُوا الْغُلَّ عَنِّي * بِمَرِّ الشَّاهِجَانِ وَهُمْ جُنَاحِي
(ML) They are those who loosed the yoke from off me in Marv AshShāhijān; and they are my strength (Jsh).
The conjuncts are vague [262], because they are applicable to every thing, animate, inanimate, etc.; as هَذَا , هَؤُلَاءِ , and the like dems. [175] are applicable to every thing (IY).

§. 177. The conjunct is what does not become complete as a part [of the prop. (R), i. e. inch., enunc., ag.
(R, Jm), obj., etc. (Jm),] except by means of a conj.
and rel. [176]. Its conj. [except the conj. of اَلْ (R)] is an enunciatory prop.; [but the place of the prop. is sometimes supplied by an adv. or prep. meant to be understood as accompanied by a v. and ag., the latter of which is the rel. or the belonging of the rel. (R), as عَلَى السَّطْحِ غَلَامَةٌ or رَأَيْتُ الَّذِي عَلَى السَّطْحِ
I saw him that, or whose manservant, was on the flat roof (MAR)]:

and the rel. is a pron. [in the conj. (R)] belonging to the conjunct (IH); but the place of the rel. is sometimes, though rarely, supplied by the explicit n. (R).

The conj. is one of four things, (1) the v. and ag., as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى قَامَ He that stood came to me : (2) the inch. and enunc., in which case you may put the rel. with (a)

the inch. alone, as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى أَبُوهُ قَائِمٌ He whose father is standing came to me; (b) the enunc. alone, as الَّذِى

أَخُوهُ غُلَامٌ زَيْدٌ He that thy brother is the manservant of is Zaid; (c) both of them, as الَّذِى أَبُوهُ أَخُوهُ زَيْدٌ He whose father is his brother is Zaid : (3) the prot.

and apod., in which case you may put the rel. in (α) the 1st prop., as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى إِنْ تَأْتَيْتَ عَمْرُوً He that is such that, if thou come to him, 'Amr will come to thee, came to me; (b) the 2nd prop., as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى إِنْ تَكْرَمَ زَيْدًا He that, if thou honor Zaid, will thank thee, came to me; (c) both of them, as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى إِنْ تَزُرَّهُ يَحْسِنَ إِلَيْكَ He that, if thou visit him, will do good to thee, came to me, the 1st rel. being the acc. ۛ in تَزُرُّهُ, and the 2nd the nom. pron. in يَحْسِنُ : (4) the adv. or prep. and gen., as جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى عِنْدَكَ زَيْدٌ He that is with thee is Zaid and جَاؤَنِى الَّذِى فِي الدَّارِ خَالِدٌ He that is in the house is Khālid, in which case the adv. [or prep. and gen.] depends upon a suppressed v., as اِحْتَقَرَّ, حَلَّ, and the like, not upon an act. part., because the conj. is not a single term, but only a prop. [67,498] (IY). The conj. must be an enunciatory prop., because the purport of the conj. must be a predicament whose occurrence is known to the person addressed before the state of address [178], whereas the purport of the originative and requisitive props. is not known except after the expression of their formulas; while the saying of the poet

وَأَنِّي لَرَاجٍ نَظْرَةً قَبْلَ آتِي * لَعَلِّي رَأَيْتُ شَطَاتِ نَوَاهِ أَزْوَْرَهَا

[And verily I am hoping for one look at her that, (I say,) perhaps I, even if her destination be far, shall visit, where لَعَلِّي أَزْوَْرَهَا is an originative prop. (Jsh),] is like الَّتِي أَقُولُ لَعَلِّي أَزْوَْرَهَا [144], i. e. جَاءُوا بِمَدَنِيٍّ الْخ but the juratory prop. sometimes occurs as a conj., as IV.

74. [149], i. e. لَمَنْ وَاللَّهِ لَيَبْطِئَنَّ; and IKh allows the admirative to occur as a conj. without subaudition of saying, as جَاءَنِي النَّبِيُّ مَا أَحْسَنُهُ, while IBdh and the rest of the moderns disallow it, which is the right view, because it is originative (R). The prop. that ns. are conjoined with needs a cop., which is (1) mostly a pron., (a) mentioned, as الَّذِينَ يُؤْمِنُونَ II. 2. Who believe, XXXVI. 35. [63], XLIII. 71. [498], [where Nāfi', Ibn

'Amir and Hafs read ^{أَشْتَهِيهِ} تَشْتَهِيهِ (B, DM) according to the o. f. (B), and the rest of the Seven ^{أَشْتَهِي} تَشْتَهِي (DM),] and ^{يَأْكُلُ مِمَّا تَأْكُلُونَ مِنْهُ} XXIII. 34. 35. He eateth of what ye eat of; (b) supplied, as XIX. 70. [184], ^{وَمَا عَمِلْتُ} وَمَا عَمِلْتُ, and XXXVI. 35. [in the reading of the KK (K, B) except Hafs (B)], XLIII. 71., and XXIII. 35. [507], suppression from the conj. being of stronger authority than from the ep., and from the ep. than from the enunc. [63, 138]: (2) sometimes an explicit n., as

فَيَا رَبَّ لَيْلَى أَنْتَ فِي كُلِّ مَوْطِنٍ
وَأَنْتَ الَّذِي فِي رَحْمَةِ اللَّهِ أَطْمَعُ

[by the Majnūn of Lailā al'Amiriya, Then, O Lord of Lailā, Thou art in every place; and Thou art He Whose mercy I long for (Jsh)], which is rare, constructively, say they, ^{فِي رَحْمَتِهِ} فِي رَحْمَتِهِ, though they might construe it to be ^{فِي رَحْمَتِكَ} فِي رَحْمَتِكَ, like

وَأَنْتَ الَّذِي أَخْلَفْتَنِي مَا وَعَدْتَنِي

[And thou art he that disappointed me of what thou promisedst me (Jsh)]; and, according to this, the saying of Z that in VI. 1. [540] the coupling by ^{ثُمَّ} ثُمَّ may be to the verbal prop. [^{خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ} خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ (K)] is weak, because it involves the text's being an instance of this rare [construction], the o. f. being بِ, since the coupled to the conj., being a conj., must have a cop. (ML). When the conjunct or its qualified is an enunc. to a 1st pers., the rel. may be of the 3rd pers., which is more frequent, because explicit ns. are all of the 3rd pers., as أَنَا الَّذِي قَالَ كَذَا; or of the 1st pers. by syllepsis, as says 'Alī

أَنَا الَّذِي سَمَّيْتَنِي أُمِّي حَيْدَرًا * ضَرْغَامَ أَجَامٍ وَلَيْثُ قَسُورَةٍ

[I am he that my mother named Haidar (with the ة of silence for pause), a lion of thickets, and a mighty lion! (Jsh)]: and similarly when the conjunct or its qualified is an enunc. to a 2nd pers., as أَنْتَ الرَّجُلُ الَّذِي

قُلْتَ كَذَا, which is more frequent, or قُلْتَ كَذَا by syllepsis.

All of this is when it does not denote comparison, with which only the 3rd pers. is allowable, as أَنَا حَاتِمُ الَّذِي وَهَبَ الْمِئَتِينَ I am (like) Hātim, who gave hundreds, i. e.

مِثْلُ حَاتِمٍ: and, if there be two prons., you may, except in comparison, make one of them accord with the letter, and the other with the sense, as أَنَا الَّذِي قُلْتُ كَذَا وَضَرَبْتُ أَنْتَ الرَّجُلُ الَّذِي قَالَ كَذَا وَضَرَبْتَ عَمْرًا وَزَيْدًا (R). The conj. of أَلِ is an act. or pass. part. (IH). The act. part. in الضَّارِبُ is in the sense of the v.; and, with the [pron. (IY)] governed in the nom. by it, is [constructively (IY)]

a prop. occurring as conj. to the ل ; while the mention [27] relates from it to the ل , as it relates to الَّذِي (M).

The o. f. of الضَّارِبُ and المَضْرُوبُ [176] is الضَّرَبُ and الضَّرِبُ ; but, disliking that the n. ل , which resembles the p. ل in letter, as is obvious, and in sense, as becoming with what it is prefixed to det., like the p. with what it is prefixed to, should be prefixed to the semblance of the v., they transform the v. into the semblance of the n., the act. v. into the semblance of the act. part., and the pass. v. into the semblance of the pass. part., because the two meanings are approximate, since the meaning of

زَيْدٌ ضَارِبٌ is زَيْدٌ ضَرَبَ or يَضْرِبُ , and that of زَيْدٌ مَضْرُوبٌ is زَيْدٌ ضَرِبَ or يَضْرِبُ : and it is because this conj. is a

v. in the semblance of a n. that it governs when in the sense of the past [345] ; whereas, if it were really an act. or pass. part., it would not govern when in the sense of the past, like the synarthrous. The inflection ought to be upon the conjunct [176] ; but, since the n. ل is in the semblance of the p. ل , its inflection is transferred to its conj., as in the case of أَلَا when it becomes ي. q. غَيْرَ

[90], as جَاءَنِي الضَّارِبُ , رَأَيْتُ الضَّارِبَ , and مَرَرْتُ بِالضَّارِبِ (R). أَل is sometimes [anomalously (IA)] conjoined [in poetry (R)] with (1) the nominal prop. (R, IA, ML), as

*مِنَ الْقَوْمِ الرَّسُولُ اللَّهُ مِنْهُمْ * لَهُمْ دَانَتْ رِقَابُ بَنِي مَعَدٍ*

[I am of the people that the Apostle of God is of, that the necks of the children of Ma'add have submitted themselves to! (J)]: (2) the adv., [i. e., says Shm, the att. adv., in which the meaning of its op. resides, so that it becomes in the predicament of the prop. (DM),] as

مَنْ لَا يَزَالُ شَاكِرًا عَلَى الْمَعَةِ * فَهُوَ حَرٌّ بِعَيْشَةٍ ذَاتِ سَعَةٍ

(IA, ML) Whoso ceases not to be thankful to God for what is with him is worthy of a life endowed with plenty (J): (3) the [verbal prop. whose v. is an (ML)] aor. (R, IA, ML), as يَقُولُ الْخَنَىٰ وَابْغَضَ الْعَجَمُ نَاطِقًا

إِلَىٰ رَبَّنَا صَوْتُ الْحِمَارِ الَّيْجَدَعِ

(R, ML), by Dhu-l-Khirak at-Tuhawī (FA, Jsh), He speaks foul language, when the most hateful of the voices of the dumb brutes, when emitting sound, unto our Lord is the voice of the ass that is tied up (DM, Jsh), whence

مَا أَنْتَ بِالْحَكَمِ التَّرْضَىٰ حُكُومَتَهُ

وَلَا الْأَصِيلَ وَلَا ذِي الرَّأْيِ وَالْجَدَلِ

[(2), by AlFarazdaq, Thou art not the judge whose judgment is approved, nor the man of pure lineage, nor the possessor of intelligence and power of controversy, where the J of the conjunct اَلْ may be incorporated into the و or not, contrary to the J of the p. اَلْ (749) (J)];

and this, according to the majority of the BB, is peculiar to poetry, while IM elsewhere asserts that it is allowable in a case of choice (IA). That [prefixion (DM)] is a proof that ^{أَلْ} is not a p. of determination, [because the determinative is prefixed only to single terms (DM)]; but the whole is peculiar to poetry, contrary to the opinion of Akh and IM on the last (ML). And the KK hold that the prim. substantive made det. by the ^ل may be a conjunct; and say on ^{لَعُمْرِي} ^{لَأَنْتَ} ^{أَلْبَيْتُ} ^{أَلْعِ} [below] that it is constructively ^{لَأَنْتَ} ^{أَلَّذِي} ^{أَكْرَمُ} ^{أَلْعِ} assuredly thou art the House that I honor etc, but that it is not vague like the rest of the conjunct ns. [176]. The conjunct and conj. are like two parts of one n.; and, priority being due to the conjunct, because the conj. is explanatory of it, posteriority is necessary for the conj.: so that neither the conj. nor any part of it precedes the conjunct; nor does the conj. or what depends upon it govern what precedes the conjunct, because that reg. would then be part of the conj.; nor does the conj. depend upon what precedes the conjunct, through being headed by ^{لَكِنِّ}, ^{بَلْ}, the sign of the correl. of the oath [600], or anything else that would have any dependence upon what precedes the conjunct, because the conj. is part of the conjunct, but not of anything else; nor is the conjunct separated from the conj., nor part of the conj. from part, by an appos. of the conjunct, like the corrob., ep. [147], subst., synd.

expl., and coupled, or by an enunc. of, or exc. from, the conjunct, since these things come only after the completion of the word. But in poetry a conjunct occurs coupled to another before the conj.; while what follows them is a conj. either to both of them together or to the last, the conj. of the first being in the latter case suppressed, indicated by the one expressed, as will be shown below in the suppressibility of the conj. upon the existence of indication: and sometimes the conjunct is separated from the conj. by the reg. of the conj., as ^{الَّذِي} ^{أَيَّاهُ} ^{ضَرَبْتُ}, because the separation is not by an [expression] extraneous to both of them; whereas such [a separation] is not allowable when the conjunct is a p. [75], so that ^{أَعْجَبَنِي} ^{أَنْ} ^{زَيْدًا} ^{ضَرَبْتُ} is not said, because the conjunct ps. [497], being infinitival ps. [571], which with the prop. after them are renderable by the inf. n., require to be near the implier of the inf. n.; and similarly in the case of the conjunct ^{أَلْ}, since it is prefixed only to a v. in the semblance of an act. or pass. participial n., so that it and what it is prefixed to are like the p. ^{أَلْ} and what it is prefixed to, which are not separated: and part of the conj. may be separated from part by something coupled to the prop. that is a conj., as you say in the cat. of contest [22], when making the 1st govern, ^{الَّذِي} ^{ضَرَبْتُ} ^{وَضَرَبُونِي} ^{غُلَامَهُ} ^{زَيْدٌ} He whose menservants I beat (and they beat me) was Zaid, since the separation is not

by an [expression] extraneous to the conj.; and part of the conj. precedes part, as جَاوَنِي الَّذِي مُنْطَلِقُ أَبُوهُ , [where the enunc. precedes the inch.,] and جَاوَنِي الَّذِي , [where the obj. precedes the ag.,] since there is nothing to prevent it (R). Suppression of the conjunct n. [other than اَل (R)] is allowed by the KK (R, ML) and Akh (ML), contrary to the opinion of the BB: the former say that XXXVII. 164. [149] means اَلَّا مِنْ لَهْ اَلنَّجْ save (him) that hath etc; and like it is the saying of AlMutanabbi

بِئْسَ اللَّيَالِي سَهَرْتُ مِنْ طَرَبِي
شَوْقًا إِلَى مَنْ يَبِيتُ يَرْقُدُهَا

[Most evil are the nights that I have been sleepless in from my passion because of my longing for her that passes the nights sleeping through them (W), i. e. اَلَّتِي سَهَرْتُ (MAR)]; and the saying [of Abù Dhu'aib (Mb)]

لَعَمْرِي لَأَنْتَ الْبَيْتُ أَكْرَمُ أَهْلُهُ * وَاتَّعَدُ فِي أَفْيَاثِهِ بِالْأَصَابِلِ
[above] By my life, assuredly thou art the House that I honor the people of, and that I sit in the shades of in the evenings may be an instance of this (R): and IM follows them, but stipulates that it should be coupled to another conjunct; and among their proofs are اَلْمَنَا بِالَّذِي

XXIX. 45. We believe in that which hath been revealed to us and (that) which hath been revealed to you,

أَمْ يَهْجُو رَسُولَ اللَّهِ مِنْكُمْ * وَيَمْدَحُهُ وَيَنْصُرُهُ سِوَاهُ

by Ḥassān [Ibn Thābit alAnṣārī, Are he of you that satirizes the Apostle of God and (he) that praises him and helps him equal? (Jsh)], and

مَا النَّبِيُّ دَابَّةَ أَحْتِيَاظٍ وَحَزْمٍ * وَهَوَاةٍ أَطَاعَ يَسْتَتِرِيَانِ

[He whose habit is precaution and discretion and (he) that obeys his passion are not equal (Jsh)], i. e. وَالنَّبِيُّ (ML): nor is there any reason, as respects analogy, for the disallowance of that by the BB, since some of the letters of the word are sometimes suppressed, even a ف or ع, as شَيْءٌ [699] and سَةٌ [orig. سَتَهُ (MAR)], and the conjunct is not more adhesive than they (R). Suppression of the conj. [of the conjunct n. other than أَل (R), while the conjunct remains (DM),] is allowable, though rare (R, ML), when the conj. is known (R) through the indication of another conj., as

وَعِنْدَ النَّبِيِّ وَاللَّاتِ عِدْنُكَ أَحْنَةُ
عَلَيْكَ فَلَا يَغْرُرُكَ كَيْدُ الْعَوَائِدِ

[And in him (that visited thee when sick) and those women that visited thee when sick there is rancour against thee: then let not the cunning of the female visitors of the sick dupe thee (Jsh)], i. e. الَّذِي عَادَكَ ; or of something else, [like the context (DM),] as

نَحْنُ الْأَوَّلَى فَاجْمَعْ جُمُوعَهُمْ * عَكَ ثُمَّ وَجْهَهُمُ الْيَدَا

[by 'Abīd Ibn alAbrās, We are they (that have been renowned for valor): then muster thou thy hosts, and afterwards direct them towards us (Jsh)], i. e. الْأَوَّلَى عَرَفُوا ; (ML): and is invariably practised with اللَّتِيَا [293] followed by اللَّتِي coupled to it, when calamities are intended by them, in order that its suppression may import that the two calamities, the little and great, have arrived at such an inexplicable extreme of magnitude that they are left in their vagueness without any explanatory conj. (R): the poet says

بَعْدَ اللَّتِيَا وَاللَّتِيَا وَاللَّتِي * إِذَا عَلَتْهَا أَنْفُسُ تَرَدَّتْ where with each اللَّتِيَا, as some say, the counterpart of the cond. prop. mentioned, but, as others say, دُقَّتْ, because the dim. necessarily involves that, or, as others say, عَظُمَتْ, because the dim. is one of magnification, as in دَوِيهِيَّةُ الْخ [117], is to be supplied, After that calamity (which, when souls overcome it, is overthrown, or which has become little or great), and that calamity (which, when souls overcome it, is overthrown, or which has become little or great), and that calamity, which, when souls overcome it, is overthrown (ML). The rel. of أَلْ may not be suppressed, even if it be an obj., because of the obscurity of أَلْ's conjunctness, the pron. being one of the indications of its conjunctness; nor may one of two rels. when combined in the conj., as الَّذِي ضَرْبَتُهُ فِي دَارَةِ زَيْدٍ, since the remaining one would enable that suppressed one to be dispensed with, so that no indication of it would exist (R). The pron. [relating to the conjunct (IA)] may be suppressed, (1) if it be a nom., only when it is an inch. and its enunc. is [a single term (IA),] not a prop. or [att. (IA)] adv. or prep. and gen.; because, if the enunc. were one of them, the fact that some thing had been suppressed would not be known, [since the prop. and adv. with the rel. in them are suitable for being a conj. (R)]: the [prescribed (R)] inch. may be suppressed, (a) [as the BB say (R),] in the conj. of (a) أَي, [without any other condition, as XIX. 70. and فَسَلَّمَ الْغَ (184), because lengthiness is realized in the conjunct itself by means of the prefixion (R),] even if the conj. be not long; (b) something else, only when the conj. is long, [as وَهُوَ الَّذِي فِي السَّمَاءِ إِلَهٌ وَفِي الْأَرْضِ إِلَهٌ XLIII. 84. And He is the One (that) is God in heaven and God in earth (498), the conj. being long through the coupling to it (R)]: (b) as the KK allow, regularly, [in the conj. of ^{أَيُّ} أَي or anything else, with or (R)] without length [of the conj. (IA)], as in the [anomalous (R)] reading [of Yaḥyà Ibn Ya'mar (K)] ^{أَحْسَنُ} أَحْسَنُ VI. 155. To complete that (which) was a most goodly religion, [i. e. ^{أَحْسَنُ} هُوَ أَحْسَنُ: but it is allowed that ^{أَيُّ} مَا in ^{أَيُّ} لَا سَيِّمًا زَيْدٌ is conjunct (89), and ^{أَيُّ} زَيْدٌ the enunc. of a suppressed inch., i. e. ^{أَيُّ} لَا سَيِّمًا زَيْدٌ هُوَ, ^{أَيُّ} لَا سَيِّمًا زَيْدٌ, the rel., vid. the inch. ^{أَيُّ} هُوَ, being necessarily suppressed; so that this is a place where the head of the conj. is necessarily suppressed with something else than ^{أَيُّ} أَي, when the conj. is not long; and it is regular, not anomalous (IA)]: (2) if it be an acc., provided that it be not detached [after ^{أَيُّ} أَي, as ^{أَيُّ} جَاؤَنِي الَّذِي مَا ضَرَبْتُ إِلَّا, while in other cases there is no disallowance, as ^{أَيُّ} أَعْطَيْتَهُمَا أَيَّالًا, i. e. ^{أَيُّ} أَعْطَيْتَهُمَا الزَّيْدَانِ الَّذِي, and ^{أَيُّ} أَنَا ضَارِبُ زَيْدٍ (below), i. e. ^{أَيُّ} ضَارِبُ أَيَّالٍ (R)], and that it be governed by the [att. (IA)] v. [or qual. (IA)], because the pron. is then a complement (R), as ^{أَيُّ} فَرَنْبِي LXXIV. 11. Leave thou Me and him (that) I have created alone and XXV. 43. (63), i. e. ^{أَيُّ} بَعَثَهُ and ^{أَيُّ} خَلَقْتَهُ, and similarly

مَا إِلَٰهٌ مِّمَّا يَكْفُلُ فَاحْمَدُهُ ۖ
فَمَا لَدَىٰ غَيْرِهِ نَفْعٌ وَلَا ضَرَرٌ

{by Abu-lFath, What God is vouchsafing thee is bounty: then do thou praise Him for it; for profit is not with any other than Him, nor injury (J)}, i. e. مَوْلِيكَ; and its suppression from the v. above mentioned is frequent, but from the qual. is rare (IA)]: (3) if it be a gen., provided that it be governed by (a) prefixion [of an ep. constructively governing it in the acc. (R), (e. g.) of an act. part. in the sense of the present or future (IA), as اَنَا ضَارِبٌ زَيْدٍ (above), i. e. ضَارِبَةٌ (R), whence XX. 75. Then decree thou that (which) thou art about to decree, i. e. قَاضِيَةٌ (IA)]: (b) a [specified (R)] p., [because the prep., being unavoidably suppressed after suppression of the gen., since a prep. does not remain without a gen., ought to be specified, to the end that it may not be confounded after the suppression with any other, as اَنْسَجِدْ لِمَا تَامَرْنَا XXV. 61. What! shall we bow down to that (which) thou commandest us (to honor), i. e. تَامَرْنَا ۖ, i. e. بِاَكْرَامَةٍ, and فَاصْدَعْ بِمَا تُؤْمَرُ XV. 94. Then preach thou openly that (which) thou art commanded (to make manifest), i. e. تَزْمَرُ ۖ, i. e. بِاِظْهَارَةٍ, and

قُلْتُ لَهَا لَا وَالَّذِي حَمَّ حَاتِمٌ * أَخُونِكَ عَهْدًا أَنِّي غَيْرُ خَوَانٍ

Then said I to her, I will not, by that (which) Ḥatim has performed the pilgrimage (to), be unfaithful to thee in a covenant: verily I am not faithless, i. e. حَمَّ حَاتِمٌ إِلَيْهِ, the prep. being regularly specified (R)] when the conjunct [or its qualified (R, FA)] is governed in the gen. by a p. like it in [letter and (IA)] sense, and the two ops. [498] are alike [in crude-form (IA)], as مَرَرْتُ بِالَّذِي مَرَرْتُ [or أَنْتَ مَارٌ (IA)], i. e. بِهِ (R, IA); whence XXIII. 35. [507], i. e. مِنْهُ, and

وَقَدْ كُنْتُ تَخْفِي حُبَّ سَمْرَاءَ حَقْبَةً
فَبَيَّحْتُ لَأَنَّ مِنْهَا بِالَّذِي أَنْتَ بَائِعٌ

[by 'Antara, And, by God, thou hast been hiding the love of Samrā a long time: then divulge thou now (orig. الآن) of the love of her that (which) thou art about to divulge (J)], i. e. بِأَيْحُ بِهِ (IA), and as مَرَرْتُ بِزَيْدٍ الَّذِي مَرَرْتُ (R), whence

لَا تَرْكَنْنِي إِلَى الْأَمْرِ الَّذِي رَكَنْتَ أَبْنَاءَ يَعْصَرَ حِينَ اضْطَرَّهَا الْقَدَرُ

by Ka'b Ibn Zuhair, Do not thou incline to the matter (that) the sons of Ya'sur inclined (to) when destiny con- strained them, i. e. رَكَذَتْ إِلَيْهِ (FA); but sometimes the gen. governed by a p. is suppressed, though the p. is not specified, as الَّذِي مَرَرْتُ زَيْدٌ, i. e. مَرَرْتُ بِهِ, which might be مَرَرْتُ مَعَهُ or لَهُ or the like: and in case (3, b) Ks holds the suppression of the prep. and gen. to be gradual, while S and Akh hold it to be simultaneous [1, 144] (R).

§ 178. الَّذِي is constituted a connective to the qualification of dets. by props. [176]: but [the fact announced by] the prop. that it is conjoined with ought to be known to the person addressed [177], as in your saying هَذَا الَّذِي قَدِمَ مِنَ الْحَضْرَةِ This man, who has arrived from town to him whom that [fact] has reached, [because the object of the conj. prop. is to determine the mentioned by means of that state of it which is known by the person addressed, in order that it may afterwards be predicable of, the conj. being the contrary of the attribute, which ought to be unknown to the person addressed, because the object of the attribute is to communicate to the person addressed some state of him that he knows; and therefore you do not say جَاءَ الَّذِي قَامَ He that stood came except to him that knows his standing, but is ignorant of his coming, because جَاءَ is an attribute and قَامَ a conj.; nor أَقْبَلَ الَّذِي أَبْرَأَ مُنْطَلِقٌ He whose father was departing approached except to him that knows his father's departure, but is ignorant of his approach (IY)]. And, because of their deeming it too long by reason of its conj., together with frequency of usage, they lighten it without any [other (AAz)] reason, saying اَلَّذِى by elision of the ي [176], and then اَلَّذِى by elision of the vowel; and even suppress it altogether, contenting themselves with the [ا and (IY)] ل [176] in its stead: and do the like with its fem., saying اَلَّتِ [176], اَلَّتِ, and اَلْضَّارِبَةُ هُنْدُ i. q. اَلَّتِى اَلْضَّارِبَةُ هُنْدُ: and elide the ن from its du. and pl. [176], as in the saying of [AlAkhṭal (ID, Jsh), or, as is said (Jsh),] AlFarazdak

ابْنِي كَلِيبُ إِنَّ عَمِي الَّذِي قَتَلَ الْمُلُوكَ وَفَكَرَ الْأَغْلَالَ

[O Banu Kulaib, verily my two paternal uncles were the two that slew the kings and loosed the yokes (Jsh)], وَالَّذِي حَانَتْ أَلْفُ [117], and IX. 70. [571] like them that have plunged; [though الَّذِي may be sing., but indicate the pl., in which case the rel. pron., if sing., is so from regard to the letter, and, if pl., is so by syllepsis, as in the case of مَنْ (182); and similar is وَالَّذِي جَاءَ XXXIX. 34. And he that hath spoken the truth and believed it, those are the pious, while in مَثَلُهُمْ كَمَثَلِ الَّذِي اسْتَوْقَدَ نَارًا فَلَمَّا]

أَضَاءَتْ مَا حَوْلَهُ ذَهَبَ اللَّهُ بِنُورِهِمْ وَتَرَكَّهُمْ فِي ظُلُمَاتٍ لَّا

يَبْصُرُونَ II. 16. Their similitude is like the similitude of him that hath kindled a fire, and that, when it hath brightened what is round him, God taketh away (503) the light of, and that He leaveth in darkness, seeing not the rel. pron. is now sing. and now pl. (IY)].

§ 179. The range of الَّذِي in the process of enunciation is wider than that of the ل syn. with it, since الَّذِي is prefixed in the case of the nominal and verbal props., but the ل only in the case of the verbal : thus, when you make an enunc. from زَيْد in قَامَ زَيْدٌ and زَيْدٌ الَّذِي هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ زَيْدٌ قَامَ الَّذِي قَامَ زَيْدٌ مُنْطَلِقٌ, you say زَيْدٌ قَامَ الَّذِي and زَيْدٌ هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ زَيْدٌ قَامَ, but not زَيْدٌ هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ زَيْدٌ (M), because اَل is not prefixed to the inch. and enunc. [177] (IY). An enunc. is not made to اَل except from a n. in the verbal prop. exclusively, because the conj. of اَل is an act. or pass. part. [177], which with its nom. can be moulded from the verbal prop., when the v. is act. or pass. respectively, since the sense of the act. or pass. part. is akin to the sense of فَعَلَ and يَفْعَلُ or فُعِلَ and يُفْعَلُ, as زَيْدٌ ضَارِبٌ, i. e. ضَرَبَ or يُضْرَبُ, and زَيْدٌ مُضْرُوبٌ, i. e. ضُرِبَ or يُضْرَبُ ; whereas an act. or pass. part. with its nom. is not in the sense of the nominal prop., so that one of them with the nom. should be moulded from it. In such as ^{أَصَابُ} ^{الزَّيْدَانِ} and ^{مَا} ^{مَضْرُوبُ} ^{الْبَكَرَانِ} [24] indeed they with their noms. are nominal [props.]; but here they are preceded by two ps. that prevent their occurrence as *conj.*s. of the ل, as will be shown immediately. The v. that the conj. of أَل is moulded from must be plastic, since the act. or pass. part. does not come from the aplastic, like ^{نَعِمَ}, ^{لَيْسَ}, and ^{عَسَى}, ^{حَبَّنَا}, ^{بُئْسَ}; and must not be preceded by a p. whose meaning is not imported from the act. or pass. part., like the ^{سُفِّ}, neg. p., and interrog. p. (R). This process has been instituted by the GG for the [examination and (IA)] exercise of the student (R, IA) in the questions that he has learnt in some of the cats. of syntax (R). Enunciation from every n. in a [complete enunciatory (IY)] prop. is permissible, [because these props. occur as *conj.*s. (177) and eps. (144) (IY),] except when some preventive [mentioned below (IY)] prevents [it (IY)]. The method of enunciation is to put the conjunct [^{الَّذِي} or ^{أَل} (IY)] at the beginning of the prop. [in the position of an inch. (IY)], and relegate the n. [that you mean to make an enunc. from (IY)] to its end, [making it an enunc. to the conjunct, and (IY)] putting in its place a pron. relating to the conjunct: e. g., in making an enunc. (1) from ^{زَيْبٌ} and

and ^{أَلَّذِي} هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ زَيْدٌ you say ^{زَيْدٌ} مُنْطَلِقٌ in ^{مُنْطَلِقٌ} ^{أَلَّذِي} هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ زَيْدٌ ; (2) from ^{خَالِدٌ} in ^{خَالِدٌ} قَامَ غُلَامٌ خَالِدٌ ; ^{أَلَّذِي} زَيْدٌ هُوَ مُنْطَلِقٌ [you say (IY)] ^{أَلَّذِي} قَامَ غُلَامُهُ خَالِدٌ or ^{خَالِدٌ} ^{أَلَّذِي} قَامَ غُلَامُهُ خَالِدٌ ; (3) from your [pro- (IY)] n. [and ^{زَيْدًا} (IY)] in ^{ضَرَبْتُ} ^{أَلَّذِي} ضَرَبْتُ زَيْدًا or ^{أَلَّذِي} ضَرَبْتُ زَيْدًا أَنَا [you say (IY)] ^{زَيْدًا} ^{أَلَّذِي} ضَرَبْتُ زَيْدًا أَنَا [and ^{زَيْدٌ} ضَرَبْتُ زَيْدًا أَنَا (IY)]; (4) from ^{الذَّبَابُ} and ^{زَيْدٌ} in ^{يَطِيرُ} ^{الذَّبَابُ} فَيَغْضَبُ زَيْدٌ [you say (IY)] ^{أَلَّذِي} يَطِيرُ فَيَغْضَبُ زَيْدٌ ^{الذَّبَابُ} [27, 538, 540] or ^{أَلَّذِي} يَطِيرُ ^{الطَّائِرُ} فَيَغْضَبُ زَيْدٌ ^{الذَّبَابُ} [418. A.], and ^{يَطِيرُ} ^{الذَّبَابُ} فَيَغْضَبُ زَيْدٌ [where ^{يَطِيرُ} coupled to ^{الذَّبَابُ} contains a mention relating to the inch. and conjunct ^{أَلَّذِي}, while the ف binds the two props. together, and makes them like one prop., because it produces in them the sense of condition, i. e. ^{أَلَّذِي} إِنْ طَارَ ^{الذَّبَابُ} ^{يَغْضَبُ} ^{زَيْدٌ} He that, if the fly flies, becomes angry is Zaid, so that the relation of the pron. to the conjunct from one of them suffices (IY),] or ^{الطَّائِرُ} ^{الذَّبَابُ} فَيَغْضَبُ ^{زَيْدٌ} (M), where ^{الذَّبَابُ} is governed in the nom. by [the act. part. in] ^{الطَّائِرُ}, which does not contain a mention, because it governs an explicit n. in the nom., while ^{ضربت} ^{الزیدین} coupled to it contains a mention relating to the conjunct, and completes the conj. (IY). The conjunct must agree in number and gender with the n. made an enunc. to it ; so that, when told to make an enunc. from ^{ضربت} ^{الزیدین}, ^{ضربت} ^{الزیدین}, and ^{هَذَا} in ^{الَّذَانِ} ^{ضربتهما}, you say ^{الَّتِي} ^{ضربتهما} ^{هَذَا}. If the qual. occurring as conj. of ^{أَلْ} govern a pron. in the nom., the pron., if it relate to ^{أَلْ}, is latent; but, if it relate to something else, is detached : so that, when you say ^{الْمَبْلَغُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{الزیدین} ^{إِلَى} ^{الْعَمْرَيْنِ} ^{رِسَالَةً}, if you make an enunc. from the t in ^{بَلَّغْتُ}, you say ^{الْمَبْلَغُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{الزیدین} ^{إِلَى} ^{الْعَمْرَيْنِ} ^{رِسَالَةً} ^{أَنَا} ^{الَّذَانِ} ^{ضربتهما} ^{هَذَا}. He that conveyed a message from the two Zaid's to the 'Amrs was I, a pron. relating to ^{أَلْ} being in ^{الْمَبْلَغُ}; but, if you make an enunc. from ^{الزیدین}, you say ^{الْمَبْلَغُ} ^{أَنَا} ^{مِنْهُمَا} ^{إِلَى} ^{الْعَمْرَيْنِ} ^{رِسَالَةً} ^{الزیدانِ} ^{ضربتهما} ^{هَذَا}. The two that I conveyed a message from to the 'Amrs were the two Zaid's, ^{أَنَا} being governed in the nom. by ^{الْمَبْلَغُ}, but not relating to ^{أَلْ}, because what is meant by ^{أَلْ} here is a du., vid. the n. that the enunc. is made from ; and, if you make an enunc. from ^{الْعَمْرَيْنِ}, you say ^{الْمَبْلَغُ} ^{أَنَا} ^{إِلَى} ^{الْعَمْرَيْنِ} ^{رِسَالَةً} ^{الزیدانِ} ^{ضربتهما} ^{هَذَا}.

They that I conveyed from the two Zaid^s were the 'Amrs; and similarly when you make an enunc. from رِسَالَةٌ, because what is meant by ^{أَلْ} here is the message, whereas what is meant by the pron. that the conj. governs in the nom. is the speaker, so that you say ^{أَنَا مِنَ الزَّيْدَيْنِ} أنا من الزيدين That which I conveyed from the two Zaid^s to the 'Amrs was a message. The n. that an enunc. is made from must be (1) susceptible of (a) post-ponement, so that an enunc. is not made from what takes the head of the sentence, like the cond. and interrog. ns., as ^{مَنْ} مَنْ and ^{مَا} مَا; (b) determination, so that an enunc. is not made from the d. s. and sp.: (2) replaceable by (a) an extraneous [word], so that an enunc. is not made from the pronominal cop. of the prop. occurring as an enunc., like the ^{زَيْدٌ ضَرْبَتُهُ} زيد ضربته [below]: (b) a pron., so that an enunc. is not made from the qualified without its ep., nor from the pre. without the post., as from ^{رَجُلًا} رجلاً alone in ^{ضَرَبْتُ غُلَامًا} ضربت غلاماً, or ^{رَجُلًا ظَرِيفًا} رجلاً ظريفاً, because, if you did make an enunc. from it, you would put a pron. in its place, whereas the pron. is not qualified [147] nor pre. [112]: but you may make an enunc. from the qualified together with its ep., or from the pre. together with the post., because this objection does not exist, as ^{ضربتہ رجل طریف} or ^{غلام زید} (IA). Enunciation is disallowed in the case of (1) the pron. of the case [167], because it is entitled to the 1st place in the sentence, [does not relate to an explicit n., and is expounded only by the prop. after it; whereas, if you made it an enunc., it would become posterior, would relate to the conjunct before it, and would not be expounded by a prop. (IY)]: (2) the pron. in ^{زید منطلق} in ^{منطلق} [26], the ض in ^{زید ضربتہ} [27], or [the ض in (IY)] ^{منہ} in ^{السمی منوائ منہ بدرہم} [25, 27], because, if it [were replaced by a pron. that (IY)] related to the conjunct, the inch. [^{زید} or ^{السمی} (IY)] would remain without a rel.: (3) the inf. n. or d. s. in such as ^{ضربی زیدا قائما} [29], because, (a) if you said ^{الذی ہو زیدا قائما ضربی}, you would make the pron. [^{هو} (IY)] govern [^{زیدا قائما}] in the acc., whereas the inf. n., when expressed by a pron., does not govern, so that ^{مردری بزید حسن وهو} is not allowable, because the inf. n. governs only through the letters of the v. contained in it, and through its being renderable by ^{ان} and the v., while after the metonymy the letters of the v. quit it, and it is not renderable by ^{ان} and the v. (IY)]; (b) if you said الَّتِي ضُرِّي زَيْدًا أَيَّةَ قَائِمٍ, you would express the d. s. by a pron., whereas only what may be made det. [78] may be expressed by a pron. [262] (M).

§ 180. مَا is (1) a det., (a) incomplete [44], which is the conjunct, as XVI. 98. [2]: (b) complete [520], (a) general, i. e. renderable by الشَّيْءُ, which is the one that is not preceded by a n. whereof it and its op. are an ep. in sense, as II. 273. [419], i. e. فَنِعْمَ الشَّيْءُ هِيَ most excellent will be the thing, they!, [where هِيَ (DM),] orig. اِبْدَأُوهَا the display of them!, because the discourse is about the display, not about the alms, [is particularized by praise (DM)]; (b) particular, which is the one that is preceded by that [n. whereof it and its op. are an ep. in sense, the restriction in sense being added because the ep. in grammar is a suppressed word governing the prop. of مَا (DM)], and that is rendered from the letter of that n., as غَسَلْتَهُ غَسْلًا نَعْمًا I washed him with a washing, whereof it is said, Most excellent is the washing!, i. e. نَعْمَ الغَسْلُ, [this غَسْلًا being the n., and نَعْمَ and مَا an ep. of it in sense, orig. غَسْلًا مَقُولًا فِيهِ نَعْمَ, because the originative prop. is not used as an ep., as they say on جَاؤُوا بِمُنْقٍ آخِ (144) (DM)]: most GG do not authorize the occurrence of مَا as a complete det.; but some authorize it, among them IKh, who transmits it from S: (2) an indet., (a) bare of the sense of the p., (a) incomplete, which is the qualified, and is rendered by ^{شئ} , as ^{مررت بما معجب لك} I passed by a thing pleasing to thee [147], i. e. ^{بشيء معجب لك} ,

^{لما نافع يسعى اللبيب فلا تكن * لشيء بعيد نفعه الدهر ساعيا}
 [For a profitable thing strives the sagacious: then be not thou striving for a thing whose profit is for ever distant (Jsh)], and

^{ربما تكره النفوس من الالم—د له فرجة كحل العقال}
 [by Umayya Ibn Abi -sSalt, Many a thing (that) souls dislike of the matter has a relief like the unfastening of the rope that fastens together the foreshank and arms of the camel (AAz)], i. e. ^{رب شيء تكرهه النفوس} , while S says that ^{هذا ما لدى عتيد} L. 22. means This [unbeliever (DM)] is a thing in my power, made ready (for Hell by my misleading him): (b) complete, which occurs in three cats., (a) wonder, as ^{ما أحسن زيدا} How goodly is Zaid! [25, 479], i. e. ^{شيء حسن زيدا} Something has made Zaid goodly!, as all the BB decide, except Akh, who allows it, and allows ^{ما} to be a conjunct det. or a qualified indet.; (β) the cat. of ^{نعم} and ^{بئس} , as in ^{غسلته الخ} [above], i. e. ^{ما نعم شيئا} Most excellent is it as a thing, being governed in the acc. as a sp. [of the vague pron. (DM)], according to many of the moderns, among them Z [471]; (γ) their saying, when they mean to exaggerate in predicating of any one the frequent performance of an act, like writing, ^{أَن} ^{زَيْدًا} ^{مِمَّا} ^{أَن} ^{يَكْتُبُ}, i. e. ^{مِنْ}, ^{أَمْرٍ} ^{كُتَابَةٍ}, meaning Verily Zaid is (created) of a matter, (namely) writing, ^{مَا} being i. q. ^{شَيْءٍ}, and ^{أَن} and its conj. in the position of a gen. as a subst. for it, and the sense being the same as in ^{خَلَقَ} ^{الْإِنْسَانَ} ^{مِنْ} ^{عَجَلٍ} XXI. 38. Man was created of hastiness, where man, because of the frequency of his hastiness, is declared to have been as it were created of it: (b) made to imply the sense of the p., being (a) interrog., the meaning of which is ^{أَيُّ} ^{شَيْءٍ}, as ^{يُبَيِّنُ} ^{لَنَا} ^{مَا} ^{هِيَ} II. 63. He will explain to us what she is, ^{يُبَيِّنُ} ^{لَنَا} ^{مَا} ^{لَوْنُهَا} II. 64. He will explain to us what her color is, and ^{وَمَا} ^{تِلْكَ} ^{بِيَمِينِكَ} XX. 18. And what is that [186] in thy right hand? (ML): the interrog. ^{مَا} sometimes implies the meaning of (α) contempt, as ^{يَا} ^{زِبْرِقَانَ} ^{أَخَا} ^{بَنِي} ^{خَلْفٍ} * ^{مَا} ^{أَنْتَ} ^{وَيْبٌ} ^{إِيَّاكَ} ^{وَالْفُضْرُ} [by AlMukhabbal asSa'dī, O Zibriḳān, brother of the Banū Khalaf, what thing art thou (woe to thy father!) and glory? (AAz)]; (β) magnification, as ^{يَا} ^{سَيِّدَا} ^{الْعَ} ^{فِيمَ} ^{أَنْتَ} [85] and LXIX. 1. 2. [27]; (γ) disapproval, as LXXIX. 43. What [181] hast thou to do with the mention of the time of it?, i. e. Do not thou mention it according to one of the interpretations (R): (b) cond., (α) not temporal, as II. 193. [419], II. 100. [499], and, as allowed by some, -XVI. 55. And whatever prosperity (is) with you etc. [32], orig. مَا يَكُنْ بِكُمْ, the v. of the condition being afterwards suppressed, as in إِنِ الْعَقْلُ فِي أَمْوَالِنَا لَا نَضِقُ بِهَا

ذِرَاعًا وَإِنْ صَبْرًا فَنَصْبِرُ لِلصَّبْرِ

[by Hudba Ibn AlKhashram al'Udhri, If the price of blood (be) among our goods, we shall not be too straitened to pay it (the دَيْتَة), and, if (we be confined) with confinement, we shall be patient of the confinement (Jsh), i. e. إِنْ يَكُنِ الْعَقْلُ نَضِيقًا, like V. 96. (419) (DM), i. e. وَإِنْ صَبْرًا, [an exposition of نَضِيقًا, and because الصَّبْرُ means الْحَبْسُ (DM)]; (β) temporal, which is authorized by F, AB, ASh, IBr, and IM, and is obvious in IX. 7. Then, whenever they are upright towards you as touching the covenant, be ye upright towards them as touching the fulfilment, i. e. Be ye upright towards them during the period of their uprightness towards you, and is admissible in IV. 28. [Then

whatever time ye enjoy them in, give ye them their dowers, بَ being i. q. فَيُعْ , and the مِنْ in مِنْهُنَّ i. q. the ب (DM)], except that this مَا is an inch., not adverbial, [contrary to the one preceding (DM),] and in وَمَا تَكُ يَا ابْنُ عَبْدِ اللَّهِ فِينَا * فَلَا ظُلْمًا نَخَافُ وَلَا أَفْتَقَارًا (ML), by AlFarazdaq, And, whenever thou art, O son of 'Abd Allāh, among us, neither wrong shall we fear, nor want (Dw). The مَا that follows the indet. to import vagueness and corroboration of indeterminateness is said by some to be a n.; so that II. 24. [565] means مَثَلًا أَيْ مَثَلٌ A parable, what a parable! : and the import of this مَا is (1) contempt, as هَلْ أُعْطِيتَ إِلَّا عَطِيَّةً مَا Hast thou given aught save some paltry gift? ; (b) magnification, as لَأَمْرٌ مَا جَدَعُ قَصِيرٌ أَنْفَهُ To some purpose did Kaṣīr cut off his nose and لَأَمْرٌ مَا يُسَوِّدُ الْخَ [122]; (c) modification, as اُضْرِبْهُ ضَرْبًا مَا Beat thou him with some beating, i. e. with one of its modes, whichever of them it be : and these meanings are all combined in vagueness and corroboration of indeterminateness, i. e. a gift that is not known from its paltriness and a purpose that is not known from its greatness and an unknown, unspecified beating (R). مَا denotes (1) [mostly (R, IA)] the irrational (R, IA, Sh), as XVI. 98. [2] (Sh); (2) sometimes the rational, as لَنَّا سُبْحَانَ مَا سَخَّرَكُنَّ Extolled be the perfection of Him

Who hath subjected you unto us! and سُبْحَانَ مَا سُبْحَانَ Extolled be the perfection of Him in praise of Whom [the hearer of (K on XIII. 14.)] the thunder exclaims "Extolled be God's perfection"! (R, IA), both transmitted by AZ (R), and فَاتَّكَحُوا مَا طَلَبَ لَكُمْ مِنْ قَاتِلِ النَّسَاءِ مِثْنَى وَثَلَاثَ وَرَبَاعَ IV. 3. Marry ye what women please you, two each, and three each, and four each (IA); (3) often also the qualities of the rational, as زَيْدٌ مَا هُوَ Zaid, what is he?, which is a question as to his quality, the reply being عَلِيمٌ Learned or something else [556]; (4) sometimes the unknown in quiddity and essence, as مَا هَذَا أَفَرَسٌ أَمْ بَقْرٌ أَمْ إِنْسَانٌ What is this, a horse, or an ox, or a man?: and the saying of Pharoah وَمَا رَبُّ الْعَالَمِينَ XXVI. 22. And what is the Lord of the worlds? may be a question as to the quality, for which reason Moses says رَبُّ السَّمَوَاتِ XXVI. 23. The Lord of the heavens; or as to the quiddity, but Moses answers by explaining the qualities, not the quiddity, as a warning to Pharoah that He is not known save by His qualities, His quiddity being unknown to man: and their sayings سُبْحَانَ الْخِ and سُبْحَانَ الْخِ [above] may be because God is unknown in quiddity (R).

§ 181. Its ! is subject to conversion and elision. The conversion is in (1) the interrog., as in the tradition of Abù Dhu'aib "I arrived at AlMadina, when its inhabitants were making an outcry through weeping, like the outcry of the pilgrims when they shout لَبَّيْكَ at entering the Sacred Territory: so I said مَهْ What?, [meaning مَا الْخَبْرُ or الْأَمْرُ What (is the news or the matter)? (IY)]; and it was said, The Apostle of God has perished," [and in قَدْ وَرَدَتْ آلِفٌ (175, 690), i. e. فَمَا قُدْرَتِي or فَمَا أَصْنَعُ What (is my power)? (IY)]: (2) the cond., when the red. مَا is affixed to it, [so that they say مَهْمَا (IY),] as VII. 129. [419] (M). مَهْمَا is a n., because the pron. relates to it in VII. 129: but Suh asserts that it occurs as a p. on the evidence of مَهْمَا وَتَكُنْ آلِفٌ And, if any disposition be in a man, though etc [499], where, says he, it is a p. i. q. إِنْ If; and he is followed by IYn, who cites مَهْمَا تُصَبُّ آلِفٌ [22]. Some say that مَهْمَا is an adv. of time, [i. q. مَتِيماً Whenever (K on VII. 129.),] and that the sense is أَيْ وَقْتُ تَصَبُّ بَارِقًا أَيَّ وَاقْتُ تَصَبُّ بَارِقًا in whatever time they find a cloud charged with lightning from a border of the horizon, the sentence being transposed; or فِي آفُقٍ بَارِقًا in a border of the horizon a cloud etc, مَهْمَا being red. and آفُقًا used as an adv.: but it will be shown that مَهْمَا is not used as an adv. (ML).

It is, (1) according to Khl, orig. [the cond.] مَا ; while, [the red.] مَا being sometimes added to cond. words [565], as مَا مَتَى and مَا أَيْنَ , they add مَا to مَا , as they add مَا to مَتَى , so that it becomes مَا مَا ; and then, deeming this expression inelegant because of the repetition of the 2 words, they substitute a ڤ for the 1st ا , saying مَهْمَا , since the ا and ڤ are from one outlet [732]: (2) as others say, compounded of مة i. q. أَكْفَ [187] and the cond. مَا , the sense, according to them, being Abstain thou (from everything): whatever (thou dost I will do): (3) as others say, a simple n., whose meaning is generality, because, say they, the o.f. is absence of composition. The 1st saying is confirmed by the pron.'s relating to مَهْمَا , as it relates to مَا , as in VII. 129.; and the 2nd by the saying of the poet

أَمَارِي مَهْمَنْ يَسْتَمِعْ فِي صَدِيقَةٍ
أَقَارِيلَ هَذَا النَّاسِ مَارِيَّ يَنْدَمُ

O Māwiya, whoso hearkens to the speeches of this people about his friend, Māwiya, will repent, since he compounds مة with مَنْ , as you compound it with مَا (IY).

It is simple, not compounded of مة and the cond. مَا , [as though مَا كَفَّ were said (K), though the sense of مة would not necessarily remain, because another meaning might be produced by the composition (DM)] ; nor of the cond. مَا and red. مَا , the ڤ being afterwards substituted for the 1st ل to avoid the repetition. And it has three meanings, (1) what is irrational, other than time, together with the implied sense of condition, whence the text [VII. 129. (DM)], for which reason it is expounded by مِنْ آيَةٍ [499]: here it is either an inch. or an acc. by distraction ; and in the latter case a trans. op. is supplied for it, as in زَيْدًا مَرَّتْ بِهِ [62], posterior to it, because it takes the head [of the sentence], i. e. مَهْمَا تَحْضُرُنَا نَأْتِيَا بِهِ Whatsoever sign (thou present to us), thou bring it unto us: (2) time and condition, in which case it is an adv. to the v. of the condition: this is mentioned by IM, who asserts that the GG neglect it, and cites

وَأَنْتَ مَهْمَا تَعْطَى بِطَنِكَ سُوءًا
وَفَرْجُكَ نَالًا مِنْتَهَى النَّفْسِ أَجْمَعَا

by Hātim [at-Tā'ī, And verily, whenever thou givest thy belly its craving, and thy penis, they will get the extreme of blame, all of it (DM)], and other verses ; but there is no evidence in that, because it may denote the inf. n., [in which case it is of the 1st kind, because the inf. n. belongs to what is irrational, other than time (DM),] in the sense of [however, i. e.] with whatever giving, much or little: and in this saying [that مَهْمَا denotes time and condition (DM)] IM has been anticipated by others; but Z [in the K on VII. 129.] severely reprobrates those who say it, and it is impossible in the text, even if it were correctly affirmable elsewhere, because مَهْمَا is expounded by مِنْ آيَةٍ : (3) interrogation: this is mentioned by many, IM being among them, who cite مَهْمَا لِي اللَّيْلَةِ الْخ [503]; but there is no evidence in the verse, because مَهْمَا may be a verbal n.i. q. أَكْفَافٌ, [in which case its conjunction in writing is for the sake of puzzling (DM),] and مَا alone an inceptive interrogation, Hold! what etc? (ML). The elision is in the interrog. when the preps. are prefixed to it (M). The ʃ of the interrog. مَا is [necessarily (ML)] elided when it is governed in the gen. (R, ML) by a prep. or pre. n. [615]; though sometimes the ʃ occurs expressed, as

عَلَى مَا قَامَ يَشْتَمُنِي لَتَيْمٌ * كَخَنْزِيرٍ تَوَرَّعَ فِي دَمَانٍ

[below] (R), by Ḥassān Ibn AlMundhir, For what has a low fellow stood up reviling me, like a hog that has wallowed in ashes? (Jsh): and the Fatha [is necessarily (DM)] retained as an indication of it, as

فَتِلْكَ وَلَاَةُ السُّورِ قَدْ طَالَ مَكْتُهُمْ
فَحَتَّامٌ حَتَّامٌ الْعَذَاءُ الْمَطْوَلُ

[by AlKumait Ibn Zaid alAsadī, Then those are the rulers of evil. Their abiding (amongst us) has become long: then until what (time), until what (time) shall the lengthened weariness (of them) be ? (Jsh) ; though sometimes the Fatha follows it in elision, which is peculiar to poetry, as

يَا أَبَا الْأَسْوَدِ لِمَ خَلَفْتَنِي * لِهَمُومٍ طَارِقَاتٍ وَذِكْرٍ

[O Abu-lAswad, wherefore hast thou left me behind thee to nightly-haunting griefs and memories? (Jsh)].

The l, being elided to distinguish between interrogation and enunciation, is elided in such as LXXIX. 43. [180], فَنَظَرْتُ بِمَ يَرْجِعُ الْمُرْسَلُونَ XXVII. 35. And shall see with what the messengers will return, and لِمَ تَقُولُونَ مَا لَا تَفْعَلُونَ

LXI. 2. Wherefore say ye what ye do not?; but expressed in لِمَسَّكُمْ فِيمَا أَفْضَيْتُمْ فِيهِ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ XXIV. 14. A great chastisement would have befallen you for that slander which ye plunged into, يَرْمَنُونَ بِمَا أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكَ II. 3.

[Who] believe in what hath been revealed unto thee, and مَا مَنَعَكَ أَنْ تَسْجُدَ لِمَا خَلَقْتُ بِإِيْدِي XXXVIII. 75.

What hindered thee from doing obeisance unto what I created with My two hands? : and, as the l is not elided in enunciation, so is it not expressed in interrogation, the reading of [Abū 'Abd Allāh (Nw, IKhn, DM)] 'Ikrima

[Ibn 'Abd Allāh (IKhn) alHāshimī alMadanī (Nw),

the freedman of {'Abd Allāh (IKhn)} Ibn 'Abbās (Nw, IKhn, DM)] and 'Isā [Ibn 'Umar (K, DM) alAsadī, the

Kūfī Reader, known as AlHamdānī (DM),] عَمَّا يَتَسَاءَلُونَ

LXXVIII. 1. [below] being extraordinary, and the saying of Ḥassān عَلَى مَا قَامَ الْخُ [above] being a poetic license, as likewise is the saying

إِنَّا قَتَلْنَا بِقَتْلَانَا سُرَاتِكُمْ * أَهْلَ الْوَادِ فَفِيمَا يَكْثُرُ الْقَتْلُ

[Verily we have slain for our slain your chiefs, (O) people of the standard: then for what (thing) does slaughter abound (among the common people)? (DM)] ;

while the ordinary reading may not be attributed to that, because of its weakness, for which reason Ks refutes the saying of the commentators that مَا in يَا لَيْتَ قَوْمِي

XXXVI. 25. 26. O would that my people knew for what my Lord hath forgiven me!

is interrog., whereas it is infinitival [571], that my Lord hath etc!; and the wonder is that Z should allow it to be interrog. [in this text] notwithstanding his refutation of the saying that in فِيمَا أَغْوَيْتَنِي VII. 15. Then forasmuch as Thou hast made me to err the sense is Then wherefore hast Thou made etc? by the argument that expression of the ! [when the prep. is prefixed to the interrog. مَا (K)] is rare, anomalous. When, however, the interrog. مَا is compounded with ذَا, its ! is not elided, as لَمَّا ذَا جِئْتَ For what camest thou? [186], because its ! then becomes medial (ML). كَلَّمَا [117, 204, 571]

ought to be written conjoined when it is i. q. كُلَّ وَقْتٍ , follow either of them except after their conjunction with مَا : but نَعَمًا and بُشًى [180, 471] are allowed to be written disjoined and conjoined, except that conjunction is preferable in نَعَمًا, because of the concurrence of two similar letters, contrary to بُشًى : and, when مَا is affixed to فِى, then, if it be interrog., its l is elided, and فِيمَ رَغِبْتَ For what wishedst thou? is written [conjoined]; whereas, if it be i. q. الَّذِى, you conjoin, but express its l, writing رَغِبْتَ فِيمَا رَغِبْتَ I wished for what thou wishedst: and you write عَمَا conjoined, as in XXIII. 42. [508, 565]; unless it be interrog., as in عَمَّ يَتَسَاءَلُونَ LXXVIII. 1. Of what question they among themselves? [above], in which case it is written [conjoined, but] with elision of the l (D).

§ 182. مَنْ is (1) cond., as IV. 122. [419] : (2) interrog., as مَنْ بَعَثَنَا مِنْ مَرْقَدِنَا XXXVI. 52. Who hath roused us from our sleep? and فَمَنْ رَبُّكُمْ يَا مُوسَى and XX. 51. Then who is your Lord, O Moses? : (a) when مَنْ يَفْعَلُ هَذَا إِلَّا زَيْدٌ Who does this save Zaid? is said, it is the interrog. مَنْ imbued with the sense of negation, whence وَمَنْ يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ III. 129. And who

forgiveth sins save God ? ; nor is the allowability of that [imbuing of the interrog. with negation (DM)] restricted to its being preceded by the و , contrary to the opinion of IM, [whose language in the Tashil, however, only imports that it is often preceded by the و (DM),] as is proved by مَنْ ذَا الَّذِي يَشْفَعُ عِنْدَهُ إِلَّا بِإِذْنِهِ II. 256.

Who is he that shall intercede with Him save by His permission ?: (b) when مَنْ ذَا لَقِيتَ Who is he (that) thou didst, or Whom didst thou, meet ? is said, مَنْ is an inch., and ذَا an enunc., a conjunct [186], the rel. being suppressed, [i.e. لَقِيتَهُ (DM)] ; or, according to the saying of the KK on the redundancy of ns., ذَا may be red., and مَنْ an obj.; while many appear to say that مَنْ and ذَا may be compounded [into one interrog. n., either (a) an inch., the prop. لَقِيتَ, i.e. لَقِيتَهُ, being an enunc., or (b) a prepos. obj. to لَقِيتَ (DM)], as in مَا ذَا صَنَعْتَ [186]:

(3) conjunct, as اَلَمْ تَرَ اَنَّ اللّٰهَ يَسْجُدُ لَهٗ مَنْ فِي السَّمٰوٰتِ وَمَنْ فِي الْاَرْضِ XXII. 18. Hast thou not considered that they that are in the heavens and they that are in the earth bow down unto God ?: (4) a qualified indet., for which reason it (a) has رَبَّ prefixed to it in

رَبِّ مَنْ اَنْصَبْتَ غِيْطًا قَلْبُهُ * قَدْ تَمَنَّى لِيْ مَوْتًا لَّمْ يَطْع

[by Suwaid Ibn Abi Kāhil alYashkurī, Many a person whose heart I made to boil with rage did wish for me death, not, i.e. without, being gratified! (Jsh)]; (b) is qualified by the indet. in such as مَرَرْتُ بِمَنْ مُعْجِبٌ لَكَ I passed by a person pleasing to thee [147], فَكَفَى بِنَا الْغَى [503], and

أَنْتِ وَأَيَّاكَ إِذَا حَلَّتْ بِأَرْحَلِنَا كَمَنْ بِوَادِيَةٍ بَعْدَ الْمَحَلِّ مُمْطَرٍ

by AlFarazdak, [Verily I and thou, when they (the she-camels) have stopped at our abodes, shall be like a person rained upon in his valley after drought (DM)], i.e. مَنْ كَشَحْطِ مُمْطَرٍ: (a) in II. 7. [499] many decide that مَنْ is qualified, which is improbable from the rarity of this usage; and others that it is conjunct: while Z says that, if أَل in النَّاسِ be construed to denote knowledge, مَنْ is conjunct, And of the men are they that say, like وَمِنْهُمْ IX. 61. And of them are they that vex the Prophet, and, if genus, مَنْ is qualified, [as though وَمِنْ النَّاسِ نَاسٌ يَقُولُونَ And of men are men that say were said (K),] like مِنْ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ رِجَالٌ صَدَقُوا XXXIII. 23. Of believers are men that have fulfilled; but this needs consideration. Two other kinds of مَنْ are added:—
(1) a complete indet., according to F, who says it of [the 2nd مِنْ in]

وَنَعْمَ مَرْكَأٌ مِّنْ ضَاكَّتْ مَذَاهِبُهُ * وَنَعْمَ مَنْ هُوَ فِي سِرٍّ وَأَعْلَانٍ

[by AlFarazdaq, And most excellent is the refuge of him whose ways to a livelihood have become strait, and most excellent is he as a person, he in privacy and publicity! (Jsh)], asserting that the ag. is latent, مَنْ a sp., and هُوَ particularized by praise [469]; while others say that مَنْ is conjunct, an ag., هُوَ an inch. whose enunc. is another هُوَ suppressed, upon the principle of وَشِعْرِي [30], [the prop. being the conj. of مَنْ (DM),] and the adv. [498] dependent upon the suppressed [هُوَ], because it contains the sense of the v., i.e. وَنَعْمَ مَنْ هُوَ الثَّابِتُ and most excellent is he that is (he, i. e. the steadfast) in etc.!, in which case I say that a 3rd هُوَ he particularized by praise must be supplied: (2) a corrob. [563], vid. [in the positions (DM)] where Ks asserts that it occurs red., like مَا, that being easy according to the rule of the KK that ns. are made red., whence فَكَفَىٰ بِنَا آلَخِ [above] over others than us, the version

يَا شَاةَ مَنْ قَنَصَ لِمَنْ حَلَّتْ لَهُ * حُرْمَتٌ عَلَىٰ رَيْثِهَا لَمْ تَحْرَمِ

[by 'Antara, O (people, behold a) wild cow (a met. for woman) of the chase for him that she has become lawful unto, (and marvel at her beauty and her comeliness)! She has become unlawful unto me, and would that she had not become unlawful! (EM)], and the saying

أَلِ الزَّيْبِ سَنَامُ الْمَجْدِ قَدْ عَلِمْتُ
ذَاكَ الْقَبَائِلُ وَالْأَثَرُونَ مِنْ عُدَا

(ML) The family of Az Zubair Ibn Al'Awwām are the summit of glory (the tribes of the Arabs have known that), and are the most multitudinous in number (Jsh).

مِنْ [mostly (IA)] denotes the rational (R, IA, Sh), as

أَفَمَنْ يَعْلَمُ إِنَّمَا أَنْزَلَ إِلَيْكَ مِنَ رَبِّكَ الْحَقَّ كَمَنْ هُوَ أَعْمَى

XIII. 19. What! then is he that knoweth that what hath been revealed to thee from thy Lord is the truth like him that is blind? (Sh); but sometimes the irra- tional, as XXIV. 44. And of them is what goeth upon four legs (R, IA), whence

أَسْرَبَ الْقَطَا هَلْ مِنْ يَعْصِرُ جَنَاحَهُ لَعَالَى إِلَى مَنْ قَدْ هَوَيْتُ أَطِيرُ

(IA), by Al'Abbās Ibn AlAḥnaf, O flock of Kātā, is he that will lend (me) his wing (present among you)?

Perhaps I shall fly (with it) to her that I have loved (J).

مِنْ [as also مَا (R)] is literally sing. masc.; but is applied to the [sing. (M), du., and pl., [masc. (M)] and fem.: and, [if the du., pl., or fem. be meant by them (R),] the letter is oftener observed (M, R) in what they are expressed by, vid. the pron., dem., and the like (R), but sometimes the sense, as ^{وَرَسُولُهُ} وَمَنْ يَقْنُتْ مِنْكُمْ لِلَّهِ XXXIII. 31. And whosoever of you is obedient to God and His Apostle, and doeth good read with masculinization of the 1st and femininization of the 2nd, X. 43. [581], and

تَعَشَّ فَإِنْ عَاهَدْتَنِي لَا تَخُونَنِي نَكُنْ مِثْلَ مَنْ يَأْذُبُ يَصْطَلِحْبَانِ

by AlFarazdak (M), Sup thou, for, if thou covenant with me that thou wilt not deal, or not dealing, treacherously with me, we shall be like the two, O wolf, that keep company together (Jsh); and hence the saying of the Arabs, as Y tells us, ^{مَنْ كَانَتْ أُمُّكَ} مَنْ كَانَتْ أُمُّكَ Who was thy mother?

[171, 449, 474], while Khl asserts that some read ^{مَنْ} وَمَنْ (S). Observance of the letter is better than observance of the sense, because the letter is nearer to that expression made to accord with ^{مَنْ} مَنْ or ^{مَا} مَا than the sense, since it is a means to the sense; but, if the expression made to accord with ^{مَنْ} مَنْ or ^{مَا} مَا be preceded by what aids the sense, observance of the sense is preferred: and therefore the Readers do not differ in the masculinization of ^{مَنْ} وَمَنْ يَقْنُتْ and ^{مَنْ} وَمَنْ يَقْنُتْ XXXIII. 30. Whosoever of you committeth; contrary to ^{وَتَعْمَلُ} وَمَنْ يَقْنُتْ, because the latter comes after ^{مَنْ} وَمَنْ يَقْنُتْ, which is an aid to the sense, for which reason ^{نُؤْتِيهَا أَجْرَهَا} We will give her her reward is then said : and, if ambiguity would be produced by observance of the letter, observance of the sense is necessary ; so that you do not say ^{لَقِيْتُ مِنْ أَحِبَّةٍ} when you mean a woman, unless some [explanatory] context be there. And, because observance of the letter is more frequent and better than observance of the sense, precedence of observance of the letter, when the two observances are combined, is more frequent than the reverse : the text says ^{وَمَنْ يُؤْمِنْ بِاللَّهِ وَيَعْمَلْ صَالِحًا يُدْخِلْهُ جَنَّاتٍ} And whoso believeth in God, and doeth good, him will He make to enter gardens beneath the trees of which flow streams by concord with the letter, and afterwards ^{خَالِدِينَ فِيهَا أَبَدًا} about to abide therein for ever by concord with the sense ; and, for the same reason, vid. that concord with the letter is better, it reverts after ^{خَالِدِينَ أَلَيْسَ} to concord with the letter, saying ^{قَدْ أَحْسَنَ اللَّهُ لَهُ رِزْقًا} God hath made goodly provision for him! (R). ^{مِنْ}, when attached to ^{كُلِّ} or ^{مَعَ}, is written disjoined ; and is written conjoined only in ^{عَمِنْ} and ^{مَمِنْ}, on account of the incorporation of the ^ن into the ^م, as in ^{عَمَّا} [181] and ^{أَمَّا} [589] (D).

§ 183. When you interrogate with مَنْ about a mentioned rational [185] indet., and pause upon مَنْ [185], (1) you may imitate in مَنْ the inflection of that mentioned [indet.] and the signs of its du., pl., and fem.: thus you say مَنْو [497], مَنْا, and مَنْى when جَاءَنِى رَجُلٌ, رَأَيْتُ رَجُلًا, and مَرَرْتُ بِرَجُلٍ are said; مَنْان and مَنْين when مَرَرْتُ بِرَجُلَيْنِ, رَأَيْتُ رَجُلَيْنِ, and جَاءَنِى رَجُلَانِ are said; مَنْون when جَاءَنِى مُسْلِمُونَ or رَجَالٌ or قَوْمٌ is said, and مَنْين in the acc. and gen.; مَنْه when جَاءَتْنِى ضَارِبَةٌ or طَالِقٌ [268] is said, and likewise in the acc. and gen.; مَنْتين when جَاءَتْنِى ضَارِبَتَانِ or طَالِقَانِ is said, and مَنْتين in the acc. and gen.; and مَنْات when جَاءَتْنِى مُسْلِمَاتٌ or ضَوَارِبٌ is said, and likewise in the acc. and gen.: (a) they add in the sing. masc. the و, ا, and ي instead of the vowels, because, if they imitated the vowels of the indet. as they are, the word would be vocalized in pause, which is not allowable; so that instead of the vowels they express quiescent consonants resembling them, and put before the consonants vowels akin to them: this is the opinion of Mb; but Sf says that they express the vowels in مَنْ for imitation of the inflection, as in اِى [185], and that, since the state is that of pause, and the final of the word paused upon is quiescent, they then implete the vowels, so that the consonants are engendered : and both the sayings are possible : (b) expression of the letters of prolongation indicative of the inflection not being possible in ^{أَ}مَنْتَ, since the ʾ of feminization in pause is only quiescent, they content themselves with imitating the sign of the fem., and omit to imitate the inflection ; and they treat ^{أَ}مَنْتَ like its sing. in omitting to imitate its inflection, although it would be possible by putting the letters of prolongation : (c) the quiescence of the [1st] ن in ^{أَ}مَنْتَ and ^{أَ}مَنْتِي is a warning that the ت denotes feminization not of the word that it is affixed to, but of another word ; for which reason in what precedes it they do not keep to the mobility inseparable from what precedes the ʾ of feminization : and the ن in the sing. is sometimes made quiescent, as ^{أَ}مَنْتَ ; though it is oftener mobilized, because they add the ʾ to indicate that the question is about a fem., and the fact that the ʾ is preceded by Fatḥ and converted into ʾ in pause is more indicative of its denoting feminization, such as ^{أَ}بْنَتٌ and ^{أَ}اِخْتٌ and such as

مَا بَالُ عَيْنِي عَنْ كَرَاهَا قَدْ جَفَتْ
 مُسْبِلَةٌ تَسْتَنِي لَمَّا عَرَفَتْ

دَارًا لَسَلَمَى بَعْدَ حَوْلٍ قَدْ عَفَتْ
بَلْ جَوَزَ تَيْهَاءَ كَظْهَرِ الدَّجَفَتْ

[What is the state of mine eye ? From its drowsiness it has started, shedding tears, pouring forth water, since it has recognized after a year a dwelling of Salma's that has become effaced : nay, a middle of a desert like the back of the buckler (in its ascent and descent) !, or Nay, (many) a middle etc (does mine eye weep when it sees, because of its having been an abode of Salma's in by-gone days and past nights) ! (AAz)] being rare : but such as ^{مَنْتَانِ} sometimes occurs with the ^{نِ} that is before the ^{مِ} mobilized : (2) you may add to ^{مِنْ} the letters of prolongation and softness, as we mentioned in the 1st method in the sing. masc., imitating the inflection only, and not the signs of the du., pl., and fem., even though you question about them, by treating ^{مِنْ} according to its general rule of being uniformly applicable to all [numbers and genders] : thus, when ^{جَاءَنِي رَجُلٌ} or ^{رَجُلَانِ} or ^{رِجَالٌ} or ^{أَمْرَأَةٌ} or ^{أَمْرَأَتَانِ} or ^{نِسْوَةٌ} is said, you say ^{مِنْو} ; and analogously in the acc. and gen. : (3) you may put ^{مِنْ} alone in every state without imitation of the inflection or other signs, as in the state of continuity. Y allows imitation with ^{مِنْ} in continuity by analogy to ^{أَيُّ} [185], saying ^{مِنْ يَا فَتَى}, ^{مِنْ يَا فَتَى}, and ^{مِنْ يَا فَتَى} ; and attributes to it the saying of the poet [AlFarazdak, or, as some say (N), Sumair Ibn AlHārith adDabbī (AAz, N),]

أَتُوا نَارِي فَقُلْتُ مَذُونُ أَنْتُمْ * فَقَالُوا الْجِنُّ قُلْتُ عَمُوا ظُلَامًا

[They came to my fire, and I said, Who are ye? And they said, The Jinn. I said, May your life be pleasant in darkness! (AAz, N)]. And Y relates that ضَرْبُ مَنْ

مَنْ Who beat whom? has been heard in interrogation about the beater and beaten : but this, as S says, is improbable ; and, as Y also says, is not accepted by every one, because the v. precedes the interrog. word : and, as for the inflection of the interrog., it is said to be an imitation, as though the speaker had heard a man say ضَرْبُ رَجُلٍ رَجُلًا ; whereas the fact appears to be that it is not an imitation, but that in some dials. مَنْ may be infl. not by way of imitation, as you see in مَذُونُ أَنْتُمْ , which is not imitated as Y asserts, since there is no indet. mentioned before it. The signs mentioned are not affixed to مَنْ except at the end of the sentence, because they are in the state of pause ; so that, when رَأَيْتُ رَجُلًا وَامْرَأَةً or رَجُلًا وَامْرَأَةً and جَاءَنِي رَجُلٌ وَامْرَأَتَانِ are said, you say مَنْ وَمَنْذَ or مَنْ وَمَنْتَانِ and so on. When the rational and irrational are combined, you put the question about the rational with مَنْ , and about the irrational with أَيُّ , as ^{لَقِيتُ رَجُلًا} ^{مِنْ} ^{وَأَيُّهَا} Whom and which two? when ^{لَقِيتُ رَجُلًا} is said. Dets. after ^{مِنْ} are (1) not proper names, in which case there are three methods:—(a) most commonly there is no imitation in them, nor in ^{مِنْ} after their suppression; (b) Mb transmits from Y that they are mentioned after ^{مِنْ} imitated, like proper names [below], so that, when a man says ^{رَأَيْتُ أَخَا زَيْدٍ}, you say ^{مِنْ} ^{أَخَا زَيْدٍ}, which S allows, though not as matter of choice, but like ^{دَعْنَا مِنْ} ^{تَمْرَتَانِ} [1, 185] and ^{لَيْسَ بِقُرْشِيَا}; (c) they are suppressed, while the signs of imitation are expressed in ^{مِنْ}, as in the case of indets., because the det. mentioned is unknown to the hearer, like the indet., as S relates that, when ^{مَعَ مَنِينٍ} ^{قَدْ رَأَيْتَهُ} and ^{زَهَبَتْ مَعَهُمْ} are said, ^{مَعَ مَنِينٍ} and ^{مَنَا} are said: (2) proper names, in which case there are two methods:—(a) the people of AlHijāz imitate the proper name after ^{مِنْ} upon certain conditions: (a) the [proper name] questioned about must not be qualified, corroborated, or followed by a subst. or synd. expl., because the repetition of these ants. with their apposs. enables the imitation of their inflection to be dispensed with, since the person addressed knows that the person questioned about is the one mentioned, being guided to him by the repetition of the identical apposs. men- tioned ; so that, when رَايْتُ زَيْدًا الطَّرِيفُ or زَيْدًا نَفْسَهُ or زَيْدٌ مِنْ زَيْدٍ الطَّرِيفُ is said, you say زَيْدٌ أَبُو مُحَمَّدٍ or نَفْسُهُ with the nom. : though, if it be qualified by ابْنِ , and its Tanwīn be dropped, imitation of it is not disallowed according to the people of AlḤijāz, because this qualified with this qual. is treated like one n., as is proved by the elision of the Tanwīn from the qualified [609] and by the qualified's being governed in the acc. in the roc. [50] ; so that, when رَايْتُ زَيْدَ بْنَ عَمْرٍو is said, you say زَيْدٌ بْنُ عَمْرٍو with the acc. ; whereas, if رَايْتُ زَيْدًا ابْنَ أَخِي عَمْرٍو be said, you say زَيْدٌ ابْنِ أَخِي عَمْرٍو with the nom. : (b) the coupled without repetition of مِنْ is like the rest of the appos., according to Y, as respects disallowance of imitation with it, whether both be proper names or one of them : but S transmits from some people (and approves of it) that imitation is allowable when the ant. is a proper name, whether the coupled be a proper name or not, as زَيْدًا وَعَمْرًا or زَيْدًا وَلَاحَا عَمْرٍو when لَقِيتُ زَيْدًا وَعَمْرًا or زَيْدًا وَلَاحَا عَمْرٍو is said, the question being put with the single [ant.] n., which is then coupled to after the imitation ; whereas, if the ant. be not a proper name, as when مَرَرْتُ بِأَخِيكَ وَزَيْدٍ is said, imitation is not allowable in the question by common consent, but the nom. is necessary, because the ant. may not be imitated, and similarly therefore the appos. :

(c) if ^{اَ}مِنْ be repeated in the coupled, as ^{اَ}مِنْ ^{اَ}زَيْدًا ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}مِنْ, imi-^{اَ}مِنْ ^{اَ}اِخْوَةَ ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}زَيْدًا ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}اِخْوَةَ ^{اَ}عَمْرًا or ^{اَ}مِنْ ^{اَ}اِخْوَةَ ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}زَيْدًا ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}اِخْوَةَ ^{اَ}عَمْرًا, imitation is allowable in the proper name, but not in what is not a proper name, because, the 2nd being plainly disconnected from the 1st, each of the ant. and coupled has its own predicament, as though it were alone : (d) a con. must not be prefixed to ^{اَ}مِنْ, as in ^{اَ}مِنْ ^{اَ}زَيْدًا or ^{اَ}مِنْ ^{اَ}زَيْدًا ^{اَ}وَمِنْ ^{اَ}مِنْ, where imitation is not allowable by common consent, because of the cessation of ambiguity, since the coupling to the sentence of the person addressed notifies that the question is only about the person mentioned by him : (e) the cognomen may be imitated by common consent; but there is a dispute about the surname, which properly may be imitated, because it also is a proper name [4] ; and similarly the imitation of the du. and
pl. of the proper name is disputed, the allowers looking to its sing., and the disallowers to the cessation of the quality of proper name on account of the dualization and pluralization [171]: (f) when what follows ^{اَ}مِنْ is imitated, ^{اَ}مِنْ is in the position of a nom. by inchoation :
and what follows it, if a nom., is so by imitation, not as an enunc., the sign of the nom. due to the quality of enunc.
being supplied in it ; and, if an acc. or gen., is in the position of a nom. as an enunc. ; so that each is an infl. [n.]

in the position of a nom., whose inflection [as an enunc.] is impossible through the preoccupation of its place by a vowel imported for imitation [185]: (g) suppression of the proper name after مَنْ and expression of the sign of imitation in the latter sometimes occur: thus, خَافَ

دَارِ عَبْدِ اللَّهِ Behind the door of 'Abd Allah having been said, the hearer said دَارِ مَنْ The house of whom?:

(b) the Banū Tamīm treat the proper name in interrogation about it with مَنْ like other ns., putting it in the nom. in every case by inchoation. When you question with مَنْ about a rel. ep. of a proper name, then, (1) if the ep. relate to what is rational, whether the related proper name be rational or not, as when رَكِبْتُ زَيْدًا or رَكِبْتُ

أَعْوَجَ [6] is said, you may say أَلْمَنِ, meaning, e. g.,

The Bakrī or the Kurashī?: (a) you put مَنْ in place of the rel. ep.; and prefix أَلْ to مَنْ, because it would be so in the rel. ep. questioned about,

e. g. الْبَكْرِي, since the rel. ep. of the proper name must contain أَل; and affix the ي of relation at the end of مَنْ, as it would be at the end of the rel. ep. questioned about; and most commonly prefix the interrog.

Hamza to أَل saying أَلْمَنِ with prolongation, because it would be so in the rel. ep. questioned about, since you say الْقُرَشِيُّ أَوْ الْهَاشِمِيُّ The Kurashī or the Hāshimī? , and also because مَنْ's implication of the sense of the [interrog.] p. is weakened by the prefixion of the ل of determination, and affixion of the ي of relation, to it ; while some do not put the Hamza, saying الْمَنِيَّ abbreviated, because they content themselves with the interrog.

sense in مَنْ : (b) the inflection of the proper name whose relationship is questioned about is imitated in الْمَنِىِّ , whether the questioner continue or pause, just like the imitation in اَي [185] ; so that, when جَاءَ زَيْدٌ is said, you say الْمَنِىُّ يَا فَتَى The clansman of whom, O youth? , and similarly الْمَنِىِّ , الْمَنِىَّ , الْمَنِىَّةُ , and المَنِيتِيبِ , المَنِيتَانِ , المَنِيةُ , المَنِيينِ , المَنِيونَ
(c) the person questioned gives the answer according to the inflection of الْمَنِىَّ : so that, when you say رَأَيْتَ زَيْدًا , the questioner says الْمَنِىَّ , and you then say الْقُرَشِيُّ as ep. of the زَيْدًا mentioned at first in your sentence ; though the nom. is allowable in all cases by sub-audition of an inch., i. e. هُوَ الْقُرَشِيُّ (He is) the Kurashī, because it is separated from the qualified by the intervention of the interrogation : (2) if the ep. relate to what is irrational, like ^{المَكِّي} The Meccan and ^{البَصْرِي} The Basrī, ^{الْمَنِي} is not allowable by common consent (R).

§ 184. ^{أَي} is (1) cond., as XVII. 110. [116, 565]
 and ^{أَيُّمَا} ^{الْأَجْلَيْنِ} ^{قَضَيْتُ} ^{فَلَا} ^{عُدَوَانٍ} ^{عَلَيَّ} XXVIII. 28.
Whichever [181, 565] of the two terms I fulfil, no in- justice shall be done upon me, [which is also read ^{أَيُّمَا} {with quiescence of the ^ي (K)}, like ^{تَنْظَرْتُ} ^{أَلَخ} (below) (K, B)]: (2) interrog., as ^{أَيُّمَا} ^{زَادَتْ} ^{هَذِهِ} ^{أَيُّمَا} IX. 125.
Which of you is such that this Chapter hath increased him in belief? and ^{فَبِأَيِّ} ^{حَدِيثٍ} ^{بَعْدَهُ} ^{يُؤْمِنُونَ} VII. 184.
Then in what story after it will they believe?; which is sometimes abbreviated, as ^{تَنْظَرْتُ} ^{نَصْرًا} ^{وَالسَّمَائَيْنِ} ^{أَيُّمَا}

^{عَلَى} ^{مِنَ} ^{الْغَيْثِ} ^{أَسْتَهْلَتْ} ^{مَوَاطِرَهُ}

[by AlFarazdaq, I gazed at Naṣr and the two stars named Simāk that I might know which of them two was such that his showers of rain poured plentifully upon me (N)]:

(3) conjunct, as ^{ثُمَّ} ^{لَنَنْزِعَنَّ} ^{مِنْ} ^{كُلِّ} ^{شَيْعَةٍ} ^{أَيُّهَا} ^{أَشَدُّ} ^{عَلَى} ^{الرَّحْمَنِ} ^{عَتِيَا} XIX. 70. Then We will surely drag forth from every sect him of them (that) is most hardened in rebellion against the Compassionate [176, 177], i. e. ^{الَّذِي} ^{هُوَ}

أَشَدُّ, says S: (4) indicative of the sense of perfection, in which case it occurs as (a) an ep. of the indet., as زَيْدٌ رَجُلٌ أَيْ رَجُلٌ Zaid is a man, what a man!, i. e. perfect in the qualities of men; (b) a d. s. to the det., as مَرَرْتُ بِعَبْدِ اللَّهِ أَيْ رَجُلٍ I passed by 'Abd Allāh, what a man!; (5) a connective to the vocation of what contains آل, as يَا أَيُّهَا الرَّجُلُ [48, 51, 552]. And Akh adds a [6th (DM)] kind, vid. a qualified indet., as مَرَرْتُ بِأَيٍّ [I passed by a person pleasing to thee (DM)], like بَيْنَ مُعْجِبٍ لَكَ [182]; but this [kind (DM)] is unheard [147]. أَی is not decidedly [i. e. literally and constructively (DM)] aprothetic [116, 176] except in vocation [51] and imitation [185] (ML). أَی is infl., alone among conjuncts, subject to the dispute on الذَّائِبِ [176], اللَّتَّائِبِ, and the تَائِبِ, and alone among interrogs. and conds., because of its inseparability from prothesis, which makes the quality of n. preponderate: so that, when the post. n. is suppressed, then, if it be not supplied, أَی is not infl., as in vocation; but, if it be supplied, أَی remains infl., as in XVII. 110. [116]; except in كَائِبٍ [226], where it is cut off from prothesis notwithstanding its inflection, because it is like the uninfl. (R). The interrog. or cond. اِي is infl. unrestrictedly, by common consent, as IX. 125. [above], XXVI. 228. [445], and فَسْتَبْصِرُ وَيَصِيرُونَ بَايَكُمْ الْمُفْتُونَ LXVIII. 5. 6. Then thou shalt see, and they shall see, which of you is the demented, the ب being red. [503], orig. اِيَكُمُ الْمُفْتُونَ, and the prop. being [in the place of] an acc. by تَبْصِرُ or يَبْصِرُونَ [1], because they contest it [22], but are suspended from government by the interrog. [445] (Sh). The conjunct اِي has four states:—(1) it is pre., and the head of its conj. is mentioned, as يَعْجِبُنِي اِيَهُمْ هُوَ قَائِمٌ; (2) it is not pre., and the head of its conj. is not mentioned, as يَعْجِبُنِي اِي قَائِمٌ; (3) it is not pre., and the head of its conj. is mentioned, as يَعْجِبُنِي اِي هُوَ قَائِمٌ; (4) it is pre., and the head of the conj. is suppressed, as يَعْجِبُنِي اِيَهُمْ قَائِمٌ (IA). The conjunct اِي is infl. [with the three vowels (IA) in all its states (Sh)] except when it is pre. and the head of its conj. is a suppressed pron., [in which state it is uninfl. upon Damm, as XIX. 70. (IA, Sh), i. e. اِيَهُمْ هُوَ اَشَدُّ (Sh), and

اِذَا مَا لَقَيْتَ بَنِي مَالِكٍ * فَسَلِّمْ عَلٰى اِيِهِمْ اَفْضَلُ

(IA), by Ghassān Ibn 'Ula, Whenever thou meetest the Banū Mālik, salute him of them (that) is most excellent,

i. e. ^{أَفْضَلُ} ^{أَيُّهُمُ} ^{هُوَ} ^{أَفْضَلُ} (FA)]: but some of the Arabs inflect ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} in all its states (IM, Sh), ^{أَشْفَ} ^{أَيُّهُمُ} being read with the acc. [176] (IA, Sh) by Hārūn, [Ṭalḥa Ibn Muṣarrif (K),] Mu'ādh [Ibn Muslim alHarrá (K)], and Ya'kūb (Sh), and ^{أَفْضَلُ} ^{أَيُّهُمُ} ^{عَلَى} related with the gen. [176] (IA); and this, says S, is an excellent dial. (Sh). Ks says that the op. of the conjunct ^{أَيُّ} must be future; and, according to the KK, its op. must also precede it: but the BB disagree with them in both cases, from the lack of proof in both assertions.

§ 185. When you interrogate with ^{أَيُّ} about a mentioned indet., (1) you may imitate in ^{أَيُّ} the inflection [of that indet.] and the signs of the du., pl., and fem., as in ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} [183], except that you do not affix the letters of prolongation to the sing. masc., but in continuity inflect it with the vowels, as ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ}, ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ}, and ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ} ^{أَيُّ}, and in pause make its ^{أَيُّ} quiescent in the nom. and gen., and convert the Tanwīn into ^{أَيُّ} in the acc. [640], because ^{أَيُّ} is infl.: (a) thus two conditions of imitation with ^{أَيُّ} are dropped in the case of ^{أَيُّ}, vid. reason and pause, reason because ^{أَيُّ} is in its original constitution applicable to the rational and irrational, contrary to ^{أَيُّ} [182]; and pause because, ^{أَيُّ} being infl., the imitation of the inflection is not disap-

proved upon it either in continuity or in pause, whereas, ^{أَ}مِنْ being uninfl., they try to keep it away from inflection, and therefore express the signs only in a state where there is mostly no inflection or Tanwīn of declinability upon the word, vid. the state of pause, where the word is divested of the sign of the nom. and gen. and of the Tanwīn: (2) you may restrict yourself in continuity to inflecting ^{أَ}أَي in the sing., saying ^{أَ}أَي, ^{أَ}أَيَا, and ^{أَ}أَي in the sing., du., and pl., masc. and fem. The vowels affixed to ^{أَ}أَي in the state of imitation are explained as being its inflection, in which case it is an inch. whose enunc. is suppressed, an obj. whose v. is suppressed, or a gen. whose prep. is understood: but this is weak, because subaudition of the prep. is rare, extraordinary [515], while dualization and pluralization of ^{أَ}أَي without imitation are also of weak authority [176]; and it should rather be said, as in the case of ^{أَ}مِنْ [183], that these signs are imitative alliterations to the speaker's expression, and that the place of both [^{أَ}أَي and ^{أَ}مِنْ] is that of a nom. by inchoation, the full phrase being ^{أَ}مَنْ هُوَ Who (is he)? and ^{أَ}أَي رَجُلٌ هُوَ, i. e. ^{أَ}أَي رَجُلٌ هُوَ What (man is he)? When you question with ^{أَ}أَي about dets., there is no dispute that what follows it is not imitated; so that, when ^{أَ}رَأَيْتَ زَيْدًا and ^{أَ}مَرَرْتُ بِزَيْدٍ are said, you say

أَيُّ زَيْدٍ Who is Zaid? with the nom. only, because, the inflection appearing in أَيُّ, they dislike the 2nd to differ from it, contrary to مَنْ زَيْدًا and مَنْ زَيْدٌ [183]. Some of the Arabs, however, sometimes imitate the n., whether a proper name or not, even without a question, as لَيْسَ بِقُرَشِيًّا دَعْنَا مِنْ تَحْرَتَانِ [1, 183]; and therefore, according to this dial., imitation is allowable when you question with مَنْ or أَيُّ, even without a proper name, as transmitted [by Mb] from Y [183].

§ 186. The KK allow ذَا and the whole of the dems. to be conjunct, whether they be after the interrog. مَا [or مَنْ] or not, citing as evidence II. 79. [56], i. e. ye are they that slay yourselves, عَدَسُ الْخِ [83], i. e. and he (that) thou carriest is freed, and XX. 18. [180], i. e. what is that (which) is in thy right hand?; but the BB allow that only in the case of ذَا after the interrog. مَا or مَنْ, when ذَا is not red., as it is in II. 246. [411], i. e. مَنْ الَّذِي, and in مَاذَا الَّذِي صَنَعَ, i. e. مَا الَّذِي What is that (which) he has done?, ذَا being red. in both positions, since it is followed by a conjunct (R). ذَا is used as a conjunct upon two conditions, (1) that it be preceded by the interrog. مَا or مَنْ, [as مَاذَا أَنْزَلَ رَبُّكُمْ XVI. 26.

What is that which your Lord hath revealed? مَنْ ذَا لَقِيتَ (182), and

وَقَصِيدَةٌ تَأْتِي الْمُلُوكَ غَرِيبَةً * قَدْ قُلَّتْهَا لِيُقَالَ مَنْ ذَا قَالَهَا
(Sh) And many an ode, that comes to kings, marvellous, have I composed, that it might be said, Who is he that composed it? (Jsh)] : (2) that ذَا be not made otiose by being compounded with مَا [or مَنْ (IA)] into one [interrog. (IA)] n. (IA, Sh), as مَا ذَا صَنَعْتَ What hast thou done? [182], مَا ذَا being treated as equivalent to أَي شَيْءٍ, so that it is a prepos. obj.; whereas, if you construe مَا to be an inch., and ذَا an enunc., ذَا is conjunct, What is that which thou hast done? because it is not made otiose (Sh). مَا ذَا occurs in [6 (DM)] several ways:—(1) مَا is interrog., and ذَا a dem., as in

مَا ذَا الْوَقُوفُ عَلَى نَارٍ وَقَدْ خَمِدَتْ
يَا طَالَمَا أَوْقَدْتَ فِي الْحَرْبِ نِيرَانُ

[What is this standing by a fire of war when it has sunk low? O long have fires been kindled in war! (Jsh)] : (2) مَا is interrog., and ذَا conjunct, as in

أَلَا تَسْأَلَنِ الْمَرْءَ مَا ذَا يُحَاوِلُ أَنْتَحِبُ فَيَقْضَى أَمْ ضَلَالٌ وَبَاطِلٌ

by Labid, [Will not ye two ask man what is that (which) he is seeking? A vow, so that it may be fulfilled, or error and vanity? i. e. ^{يَحَاوِلُهُ} (Jsh)]; and preferably in the reading [of Abù 'Amr (B)] ^{وَيَسْأَلُونَكَ مَاذَا يُنْفِقُونَ قُلْ} II. 216. 217. And they will ask thee what is that (which) they shall expend. Say thou, (That which they shall expend is) the superfluous, i. e. ^{الَّذِي يُنْفِقُونَهُ الْعَفْوُ}, since the general rule is that the nominal [prop. (DM)] should be answered by the nominal, and the verbal by the verbal: (3) ^{مَاذَا} is all of it a comp. interrog., as in ^{لِمَاذَا جِئْتُ} [181] and ^{يَا خُزْرُ تَغْلِبُ مَاذَا بَالُ نِسْوَتِكُمْ}

^{لَا يَسْتَفِقْنَ إِلَى الدَّيْرَيْنِ تَحْنَانًا}

[by Jarîr, O small-eyed ones of Taghlib, what is the case of your women? They recover not from longing for the two Convents of the Christians (Jsh)]; and preferably in the reading of others than Abù 'Amr ^{قُلْ الْعَفْوُ} II. 217. what they shall expend. Say thou, (They shall expend) the superfluous, [because then the answer agrees with the question in being verbal (DM),] i. e. ^{يُنْفِقُونَ} of genus, (4) ^{مَاذَا} is all of it a n. [indicative (DM)] of genus, i. q. ^{شَيْءٌ}, or a conjunct [n. (DM)], i. q. ^{الَّذِي}, according to different opinions upon the explanation of

دَعِيَ مَا ذَا عَلِمْتُ سَاتِقِيَةً * وَلَكِنْ بِالْمَغِيبِ نَبِّئِنِي

[by AlMuthakḳib al'Abdi, Leave thou alone a thing (that), or that (which), I have known—I shall guard against it—but acquaint thou me with the hidden, i. e. عَلِمْتُ (Jsh)], where the majority hold that مَا ذَا is all of it the obj. of دَعِيَ, but afterwards differ, Sf and IKh saying that it is a conjunct, i. q. الَّذِي; and F that it is a [qualified (DM)] indet., i. q. شَيْءٌ : (5) مَا is red., and ذَا a dem., as in أَنْوَرَا النَّحْ [565], orig. سُرْعَ, where F says that ذَا may be ag. of سُرْعَ, and مَا red.; or that مَا ذَا may be all of it a n., as in دَعِيَ النَّحْ, [though here it is a dem., and there a conjunct (DM) or indet.]: (6) مَا is interrog., and ذَا red., allowed by many, among them IM, in such as مَا ذَا صَنَعْتَ What hast thou done? [above]; but upon this supposition the ى ought to be necessarily elided in such as لَمْ ذَا جِئْتَ [181], and the truth is that ns. are not made red. (ML). And [there is a 7th way, for] ذَا sometimes occurs red. after the conjunct مَا, as دَعِيَ مَا ذَا النَّحْ [above] that (which) I have known (R).

THE VERBAL NOUNS AND EJACULATIONS.

§ 187. The verbal n. is that [n. (Jm)] which is in the sense of the imp. or pret. (IH). It is that [expression (IA)] which acts as a substitute for the v. (IM, Fk) in [sense and (IA)] government (IA, A), but which is not impressible by the ops. [159], nor superfluous (A, Fk). The 1st restriction excludes the inf. n. occurring as a substitute for expression of the v., [as in ضَرْبًا زَيْدًا (41) (Sn),] the act. part., [as in أَقَاتِمُ الزَّيْدَانِ (24) (Sn),] and the like; and the 2nd excludes the ps. (A), like اِنْ and its sisters [516] (Sn). The verbal n. is [of 3 sorts (Sh),] (1) i. q. the imp., most often, [like دَع i. q. بَلَّ as الزَّمَّةُ i. q. عَلَيْكَ (192) in the version with the acc., as V. 104. (44), دُونَكُمْ i. q. خَذَ، and رَوَيْدَةً or تَيْدَةً i. q. امْهَلْ (Sh)]: (2) i. q. the pret., [more often than the aor. (Sh),] like هَيَّاهُ i. q. بَعْدَ، [as فَهَيَّاهُ هَيَّاهُ الْعَقِيقُ وَمِنْ بِهِ

وَهَيَّاهُ خُلُّ بِالْعَقِيقِ نَوَاصِلُهُ

(Sh), by Jarīr, Then far, far off (22) are Al'Ākik (a place) and he that is therein! And far off is a friend that in Al'Ākik we shall be united with! (Jsh),] and اِفْتَرَقَ i. q. شَتَانِ، [as

شَتَانُ هَذَا وَالْعَنَاقُ وَالنَّوْمُ

وَالْمَشْرَبُ الْبَارِدُ فِي ظِلِّ الدَّوْمِ

(Sh), by AlA'shà, Different are this and embracing and sleeping and the cool drinking-place in the shade of the fan-palm! (AAz)]: (3) i. q. the aor., like اَرَا i. q. اَتُوجَعُ (IA, Sh), اَعْجَبُ i. q. اَفْ (IA), and اَتَضَجَّرُ i. q. اَفْ; but some drop this division (Sh). The verbal ns. are [all (IA)] uninfl. (R, IA, Sh) upon quiescence, like صَدَّ and مَدَّ; Fatḥ, like آمِنُ; Kasr, like اَيَّ; or Damm, like هَيْتُ (Sh): (1) because of their resemblance [in sense] to the orig. uninfl., vid. the pret. and imp. v. [159]; and [accordingly] we do not say that صَدَّ is i. q. لَا تَتَكَلَّمْ Speak not and مَدَّ i. q. لَا تَفْعَلْ Do not, since, if so, they would be infl., but that they are i. q. اسْكُتْ Be silent and اكْفُ Forbear; nor that اَفْ is i. q. اَتَضَجَّرُ I am disgusted and اَرَا i. q. اَتُوجَعُ I am pained, since, if so, they would be infl., but that they are i. q. the originative تَضَجَّرْتُ and تَوَجَّعْتُ: (2) as may be said, because they are ns. denoting what is orig. uninfl., vid. the unrestricted v. [159], whether it remain in that o. f., like the pret. and imp., or become excluded from it, like the aor. [402, 404]; and, according to this, the excuse mentioned [for the rendering of صَدَّ, etc.] is not needed (R): (3) as before said [159], because of their resemblance to the p. in acting as a substitute for the v. and not being impressible [by the op.] (IA). According to the correct opinion (Fk), the meaning of the term "verbal ns." is that (IY) they are applied to indicate verbal expressions (IY, Fk), as ns. indicate their denominates; so that هَيْهَاتْ is a n. indicating the expression بَعْدُ, and similarly the rest. The object of using them is abbreviation and abridgment and a sort of intensiveness; and, were it not for that, the vs. denoted by these ns. would be more fit for their position. The manner of the abridgment in them is that they occur uniform for all genders and numbers, as زَيْدٌ or هُنْدٌ or زَيْدَانِ or هُنْدَانِ or زَيْدُونَ or هُنْدَاتُ; and, as for the intensiveness, صَهْ Hush! is more intensive in meaning than اَسْكُتْ Be silent, and similarly the rest. As for their indicating what vs. indicate, vid. command, prohibition, and the particular time, this meaning is imported only from what is indicated by them, not from themselves (IY): so that صَهْ [is a n. which (YS)] indicates [the expression (YS)] اَسْكُتْ (IY, YS), while the command is understood from the denominate, vid. اَسْكُتْ; and هَيْهَاتْ is a n., the denominate of which is another expression, vid. بَعْدُ, so that the time is known from the denominate, not from the n. (IY). But R says [below] that this is of no account: and the verbal n. is variously said (1) to indicate the inf. n., in which case a distinction between the verbal n. and inf. n. is needed, since the verbal n. is uninfl., and the inf. n. infl. ; (2) to indicate the accident and time that the v. indicates [402], except that the v. indicates time by the form, and the verbal n. by application ; (3) to be really a v. (YS). What induces the GG to say that these words and their likes are not vs., notwithstanding that they convey the sense of vs., is a lit. matter, vid. that their forms are different from those of vs., that they are not conjugable like vs., that the ج [2] is prefixed to some of them [200] and the Tanwīn affixed to others [198], and that some of them are obviously adv. and others preps. and gens. [199]. As for their o. fs., and what they are transferred from, (1) some of them are obviously transferred from inf. ns. and adv. [or preps and gens.], as فِدَاءٌ لَكَ الْاَقْوَامُ [198], بَلَّةٌ زَيْدًا [192], رَوَيْدٌ زَيْدًا [188], اَمَامَكَ زَيْدًا Take Zaid [but see § 199], orig. زَيْدٌ اَمَامَكَ فَخَذَهُ فَقَدْ اَمْكَنَكَ Before thee is Zaid: then take him, for it has become in thy power [to do so], and عَلَيْكَ عَمْرًا [199], since these words are often used according to their original construction, as رَوَيْدٌ زَيْدٌ and بَلَّةٌ زَيْدٌ with prothesis, فِدَاءٌ لَكَ with the nom. [as a prepos. enunc. (IY)] or acc. [as an inf. n. (IY)], and اَمَامَكَ زَيْدٌ with the nom. : (2) some of them seem to have been orig. inf. ns., though they are not actually used as inf. ns., as وَشَكَانَ, سُرْعَانَ, بُطْلَانَ, and شَتَانَ, like لَيَّانَ, هَيْهَاتَ like قُرْقَاتَ, فَجَارَ like نَزَالَ, and ضُرِبَ like تَيْدَ : (3) some of them are apparently ejs. transferred to [the cat. of] inf. ns., and thence to [that of] verbal ns., the ejs. transferred to the cat. of inf. ns. being of two kinds, (a) permanent inf. ns., which do not become verbal ns., as دُعَا, لَعَا, وَاهَا, وَبَاهَا, ابَاهَا, وَيْلَكَ, وَيْسَكَ, وَيْحَكَ, and وَيَ لِعَمْرٍو ; (b) transferred from the cat. of inf. ns. to that of verbal ns., as صَا, هَيْكَ, هَيْكَ, اِيه, حَى, هَلَا, هَيَا, دُعَا, هَا, مَهْ, بَخَ, اَرَا, اِفَ, كِنَ, اَنَ : whereas هَيْتَ : not used as inf. ns. by being either governed in the acc., as اَفَا [198], or explained by the p., as اَفَ لَكَ [200], are more properly said to remain ejs., and not to become inf. ns. or verbal ns., from the absence of indication of it ; just as فَرَطَكَ Advance, or Be on thy guard from thy front, بَعْدَكَ Be on thy guard from thy back, دَنْزَكَ Beware of ' Amr, and الذَّجَاكَ Make haste ! [560], are more properly said to retain the quality of inf. n., since there is no indication of their transfer to the cat. of verbal ns. Thus the verbal ns. are proved to be all transferred from original inf. ns., from inf. ns. orig. ejs., from advs., or from preps. and gens. As for

أَمِينُ, it is said to be Syriac, of foreign measure, like قَائِلُ Cain and هَائِلُ Abel, meaning كَذَا, and then made a verbal n. i. q. لِيَكُنْ كَذَا So be it!, and uninfl. upon Fath; and to be sometimes lightened by elision of the ا, as أَمِينُ upon the measure of كَرِيم : but there is nothing to prevent its being said to be orig. abbreviated and afterwards prolonged; and in that case it is Arabic, orig. an inf. n., like نَذِير and نَكِير, and afterwards made a verbal n. (R). You say أَمِينُ, as says the poet

تَبَاعَدَ عَنِّي فَطَاحِلُ رَاحِلِ عَمَّةٍ * أَمِينُ فَرَادَ اللَّهُ مَا بَيْنَنَا بَعْدًا

[Fathal and the son of his paternal uncle have held aloof from me. So be it! Then God increase what is between us in distance! (N)]; and, if you please, أَمِينُ, as says the poet [AlMajnūn (N)]

يَا رَبِّ لَا تُسَلِّبْنِي حُبَّهَا أَبَدًا * وَيَرْحَمُ اللَّهُ عَبْدًا قَالَ آمِينًا

[O my Lord, do not Thou ever deprive me of her love: and God have mercy upon a servant that has said "Amen!" (N)]: but do not double the م for it is wrong (Th). By analogy the verbal n. that is orig. a prep. and gen., as إِلَيْكَ and عَلَيْكَ, should not be called a verbal n., because we call an expression like صَمٌ and رَوْدٌ a n. from regard to its o. f., whereas the prep. and gen. are not a n. ; but they apply this name universally to every expression occasionally transferred to the meaning of the v., so that كَذَبَ in such as كَذَبَ الْعَتِيقُ [below] may be called a verbal n. (R). The correct opinion is that the verbal n. has no place in inflection [159, 199] (Fk). Some assert that the verbal ns. are nom. in place, as inchs. having no enunc., as in أَقَامَ الزَّيْدَانِ [24] : but this is of no account, because قَامَ, though it resembles the v., has the meaning of the n., i. e. ذُرِّيَّةٌ, so that it may be an inch., contrary to the verbal n., in which the quality of n. has no meaning ; and no regard is paid to the letter, since تَسْمَعُ آخُ in تَسْمَعُ آخُ, though literally a v., is an inch., because it has the meaning of the n. [2]. The verbal n. then is like the ك of ذَكَ [172], and like the distinctive [166] according to those who say that it is a p. : each of these two had a place in inflection, because of their being ns. ; but, since they have been transferred to the meaning of the p., they do not retain that [place], because the p. has no inflection : and similarly the verbal n. had orig. a place in inflection ; but, since it has been transferred to the meaning of the v., and the v. has orig. no place in inflection, it also does not retain a place in inflection. Nor is what some mention, vid. that the verbal ns. are acc. in position as inf. ns., of any account, since, if they were so, the vs. would be supplied before them [41], so that they would not act as substitutes for the v., and therefore would not be uninfl.: nor do we say that ^{أَمَّا}أَمَّاكَ i. q. ^{تَقْدَمُ}تَقْدَمُ [199] is governed in the acc. by a supplied v. [498], but the sign of the acc. in it becomes like the Fath of the ^فف in ^{جَعْفَرُ}جَعْفَرُ; nor that ^{أَلَيْكَ}أَلَيْكَ and ^{أَلَيْكَ}أَلَيْكَ, when verbal ns., are preps. dependent upon a supplied [v.]; but the pre. and post. in the 1st, and the prep. and gen. in the 2nd, become like one word. Thus the inf. n. and ej., when verbal ns., become like ^{أَفْضَلُ}أَفْضَلُ and ^{بَبَّةٌ}بَبَّةٌ [4] when proper names of a person; and the pre. and post. and the prep. and gen., when verbal ns., become like ^{عَبْدُ اللَّهِ}عَبْدُ اللَّهِ and ^{تَابِعًا}تَابِعًا شَرًّا when proper names: so that they are transferred from their original meanings to the meaning of the v. in the same way as proper names are transferred. And what some say [above], vid. that ^{صَة}صَة e. g. is a n. denoting the expression ^{أَسْكُتَ}أَسْكُتَ, which is indicative of the meaning of the v., so that ^{صَة}صَة is a proper name for the expression of the v., not for its meaning, is of no account, since the pure Arab sometimes says ^{صَة}صَة notwithstanding that the expression ^{أَسْكُتَ}أَسْكُتَ does not occur to his mind, and perhaps has never been heard by him at all; while, if you said that it was a n. denoting ^{أَصْمَتَ}أَصْمَتَ or ^{أَمْتَنَعَ مِنَ الْكَلَامِ}أَمْتَنَعَ مِنَ الْكَلَامِ or anything else that conveyed this meaning, it would be correct: so that we know that what is intended is the meaning, not the expression. And sometimes the v. becomes a verbal n., as in the saying of 'Antara

كُذِبَ الْعَتِيقُ وَمَاءٌ شَرِبَ بَارِدًا إِنْ كُذِبَ سَأَلْتَنِي غُبُوقًا فَانْهَبِي

Take wine and cold water of a waterskin : if thou be asking me for an evening-draught of milk, get thee gone, when related with الْعَتِيقُ in the acc.; and similarly in the saying of him who on looking at an emaciated he-camel said to its owner كُذِبَ عَلَيْكَ الْبِزْرُ وَالنَّوَى Keep to, and Take, seeds and date-stones with الْبِزْرُ in the acc.: IS says that Muḍar make it govern the acc., and AlYaman the nom.; for كُذِبَ عَلَيْكَ الْبِزْرُ means الزِّمَّةُ and خَذَا, because, lying being held by them to be extremely disgraceful, and an act whose author the person lied against is instigated to keep to and seize, كُذِبَ فَلَانٍ Such a one has lied comes to mean an instigation to keep to him, i. e. Keep to, and Seize, him, for he is a liar; and, when conjoined with عَلَيْكَ, it becomes more intensive in instigation, as though you said He has forged against thee; therefore seize him; and afterwards it is used in instigating to keep to every thing, even if it be not such as lying proceeds from, as in the saying [of 'Umar to 'Amr Ibn Ma'dikarib, when the latter complained to him of pain in the sinews from walking (D),] عَلَيْكَ بِالْعَسَلِ keep to trotting, i. e. عَلَيْكَ الْعَسَلُ , and in the saying of the poet .

وَذُبْيَانِيَّةٌ أَرْضَتْ بَنِيهَا * بَانَ كَذَبَ الْقَرَّاطِقُ وَالْقَرْدُفُ

[And (many) a Dhubyānī (woman was there) that enjoined her sons to keep to, i. e. take care of, the coats and leathern cases (N)], i. e. عَلَيْكُمْ بِهَا , and in كَذَبَ الْحَجَّ Keep to the pilgrimage, i. e. عَلَيْكَ بِهْ ; so that, as عَلَيْكَ and إِلَيْكَ , becoming i. q. the imp. v. [199], may govern the acc., so كَذَبَ and عَلَيْكَ , becoming i. q. the imp., may govern the acc., as أَلْزَمَ does (R). The verbal ns. have the same government as the vs. that they act as substitutes for : so that, if that v. govern the nom. only, the verbal n. does so too, as صَدَّ i. q.
بَعْدَ زَيْدٍ i. q. هَيْهَاتَ زَيْدٍ , and أَكْفَفَ i. q. مَدَّ , أَكْفَفَ a latent [165] pron. being in صَدَّ and مَدَّ , as in اسْكَنْتَ and أَكْفَفَ , and زَيْدٌ being governed in the nom. by هَيْهَاتَ [20], as by بَعْدَ ; and, if that v. govern the nom.
and acc., the verbal n. does so too, as فَرَّأَكَ زَيْدًا i. q.
أَضْرَبَكَ i. q. ضَرَبَ عَمْرًا and أَدْرَكَكَ , a latent pron. being in فَرَّأَكَ and ضَرَبَ , and زَيْدًا and عَمْرًا being governed in the acc. by them [44] (IA). The بَ is often red. in their obj., as عَلَيْكَ بِهِ, because, being weak in government, they are supported by a p. accustomed to conduct the intrans. to the obj. [433, 503]. According to the BB, they are not preceded by their accs., from regard to the o. f., because they are mostly inf. ns., which may not be preceded by their regs. [342]; or ejs. aplastic in themselves, transferred to the cat. of inf. ns. and thence to that of the verbal n.; or adv. or preps. and gens., which also are weak before the transfer, since their government is [merely] because of their implying the sense of the v.: but the KK allow that, citing as evidence يَا أَيُّهَا الْمَائِدَةُ اخْذِي [my bucket take thou (Jsh)]; whereas, according to the BB, دُونِكَ here is not a verbal n., but an adv., enunc. of دَلَوِي [1], i. e. my bucket is before thee: (then take it) (R). The verbal n., like the v., is not pre.: and therefore they say that بَلِّغْ and رَوِّدْ in بَلِّغْ زَيْدٌ [192] and رَوِّدْ زَيْدٌ [188] are inf. ns., the Fatha being a Fatha of inflection; and in بَلِّغْ زَيْدًا and رَوِّدْ زَيْدًا verbal ns., the Fatha being then known to be a Fatha of uninflectedness, because of the absence of Tanwin. The aor. is not governed in the subj. in the correl. of the requisitive verbal n.: you do not say مَهْ فَاحْدِثِيكَ with the subj., contrary to the opinion of Ks [411]; but the aor. is governed in the apoc. in its correl., as مَكَانِكَ [420, 421] (Sh). Most of the verbal ns. are i. q.

the imp., since in command one often contents oneself with making a sign instead of articulating its expression, and much more therefore may one content oneself with an expression acting as a substitute for it; whereas enunciation is not like that: and the meanings of the verbal ns., whether imp. or otherwise, are more intensive and corrob. than those of the vs. that they are said to be in the sense of; while all that are enunciatory contain the sense of wonder, so that هَيْهَاتْ means How far!, شَتَّىْ How different!, سَرْمَانْ and شَكَّانْ How quick!, and بَطَّانْ How slow!, the wonder being the corroboration mentioned. All of them are without any sign for the [attached] pron. governed by them in the nom. [161, 163, 165], the prominence of which in any of them proves it to be a v., and not one of them, like هَلَمْ [189] and هَاتْ [below]. The affixion of the ك of allocution [163, 560] and of the Tanwīn [198, 608] is not regular in all these ns., but is restricted to hearsay. When the ك is attached to these ns., then, (1) if it be attached to what is orig. an adv. or prep., it is a n. governed in the gen. from regard to its o.f., as in إِلَيْكَ and أَمَامَكَ [199]; (2) if it be attached to what occurs both as a pre. inf. n. and as a verbal n., as رَوَيْدٌ زَيْدٌ and زَيْدًا [188], it may be either a n. governed in the gen. from regard to the n.'s being an inf. n. pre. to its ag., or a p. of allocution from regard to the n.'s being a verbal n., as in ^{رَوَيْدَكَ زَيْدًا} [161, 188, 560]; (3) if it may not be post., it is a p. of allocution, as in ^{هَآك} [190], since ^{زَيْدٌ هَآ} does not occur (R). As R says (Sn), according to the majority (R), the Tanwīn affixed to some of these ns. denotes indeterminateness [608], not of the v. signified by that n. pronounced with Tanwīn, since the v. is neither det. nor indet., but of the inf. n. signified by that n. before it became a verbal n., [because the verbal n. pronounced with Tanwīn is either an inf. n. or an ej. firstly substituted for the inf. n. and secondly transferred to the cat. of the verbal n., so that ^{صَة} means ^{سَكْرَتًا مَا} : and therefore the verbal n. divested of Tanwīn, out of those that Tanwīn is affixed to, is like the det. (R),] so that ^{صَة} means ^{أَسْكَبَ السَّكْرَتَ الْمَعْرُودَ الْمَعِيْنَ} Be silent with the known, specified silence; [and, specification of the inf. n. being by specification of its reg., i. e. the story that silence is kept from, this means ^{أَفْعَلَ السَّكْرَتَ} Keep silence from this specified story (R)]; and accordingly it is allowable for the person addressed not to keep silence from something else than the story indicated; [and similarly ^{مَة} means Abstain from this thing, and ^{أَيَّةَ} means Tell the known story, the determination in the inf. n. being reducible to determination of its reg. (R):] and [the indeterminateness is similar, so that (R)] ^{صَ} means ^{أَسْكُتْ سَكُوتًا}, i. e. Keep unrestricted silence, [applicable to every silence supposable (R),] from whatever story it be (R, Sn), since there is no specification in it (Sn): and, according to them, omission of the Tanwīn is not evidence of determination in all the verbal ns. [198], but only in such as the Tanwīn of indeterminateness is affixed to (R). From this it follows that the verbal ns. in the state of determination belong to the class of n. made det. by the ^{أَلْ} denoting knowledge [599], which is plainer than the saying of some that they then belong to the class of n. made det. by the ^{أَلْ} denoting genus, and than the saying of others that they then belong to the class of generic proper name [198] (Sn). But, according to ISk and Jh, its affixion to such of them as it is affixed to is evidence of their being continuous with what follows them, and its suppression is evidence of pause upon them: you say ^{صَ صَ} and ^{مَ مَ} with Tanwīn in the 1st and quiescence of the δ in the 2nd; and the saying of Dhu-r Rumma

وَقَفْنَا فَقُلْنَا إِيذَةً عَنْ أُمِّ سَالِمٍ * وَمَا بَالُ تَكْلِيمِ الدِّيَارِ الْبَلَّاعِ

[198] We stopped, and said, Tell us more about Umm Sālim! And what is the good of speaking to the empty dwellings? occurs, say they, without Tanwīn, though he does continue, because pause is meant to be understood: so that, according to them, the Tanwīn is orig

the Tanwīn of declinability indicating that what it is affixed to is continuous with what follows it, not paused upon [609, 640], being divested of the meaning of declinability in these ns., and put to indicate the meaning mentioned (R). The verbal ns. are of two kinds, (1) imp., which has the prevalence, (a) trans., as (a) ^{زَيْدًا} Deal gently with Zaid, and Give him time [188], i. e. ^{أَرْوَدُهُ} *أَرْوَدُهُ and ^{أَمْلَهُ} أَمْلَهُ, [orig. the inf. n. ^{أَرْوَدُ}, and made a curt dim. by elision of the aug. (291) ; or, as Fr says, dim. of ^{رَوْدٌ} gentleness (IY)] : (b) ^{زَيْدًا} زَيْدًا i. q. ^{رَوْدٌ} رَوْدٌ, [and ^{زَيْدًا} زَيْدًا transmitted by the Bdd, most probably derived from ^{تَوَدُّةٌ} slowness, the ف being a و, permanently changed into ت, as in ^{تَوَدُّةٌ} (689), and the ع being a Hamza irregularly changed into ي for a kind of alleviation, as in ^{قَرَأْتُ} for ^{قَرَأْتُ} (685) (IY)] : (c) ^{زَيْدًا} هَلِّمْ زَيْدًا Bring Zaid near, and Present him, i. e. ^{قَرَبَهُ} قَرَبَهُ and ^{أَحْضَرَهُ} [189] : (d) ^{هَاتِ الشَّيْءَ} هَاتِ الشَّيْءَ Give me the thing [428], i. e. ^{أَعْطَنِيهِ} أَعْطَنِيهِ, [which has the pron. of the du. and pl. affixed to it, because of its strong resemblance to the v. (IY),] whence II. 105. [and in tradition ^{هَاتُوا رُبْعَ عَشْرٍ} هَاتُوا رُبْعَ عَشْرٍ Give ye the fourth of the tenths of your goods, like ^{هَلِّمْ} (189) and ^{هَاءٌ} (190) (IY)] : (e) ^{هَاءٌ زَيْدًا} هَاءٌ زَيْدًا Take Zaid, i. e. ^{خَذَهُ} [190] : (f) ^{حَيْهَلُ الْتَرِيدِ} حَيْهَلُ الْتَرِيدِ, i. e. ^{أَيْتَهُ} [191] :*

(g) ^{أَٔ}بَلِّغْ ^{أَٔ}زَيْدًا ^{أَٔ}Let alone Zaid, i. e. ^{أَٔ}دَعَا [192]: (h) ^{أَٔ}تَرَاكِبُهَا ^{أَٔ}Leave them, i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَتْرَكُهَا [193]: (i) ^{أَٔ}عَلَيْكَ ^{أَٔ}زَيْدًا ^{أَٔ}Keep to Zaid, i. e. ^{أَٔ}الزَّيْمَةُ; and ^{أَٔ}عَلَى ^{أَٔ}زَيْدًا ^{أَٔ}Present Zaid to me and ^{أَٔ}قَرِّبْهُ ^{أَٔ}مَنِّي [199], i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَرْلِنِيهِ [and ^{أَٔ}قَرِّبْهُ ^{أَٔ}مَنِّي (AAz)]: (b) intrans., as (a) ^{أَٔ}صَمَّ ^{أَٔ}Hush, i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَسْكَتَ: (b) ^{أَٔ}مُمْ ^{أَٔ}Hold, i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَكْفَفَ: (c) ^{أَٔ}أَيُّهُ ^{أَٔ}Tell, or Add more, i. e. ^{أَٔ}حَدَّثَ [or ^{أَٔ}زَدَ, which is mentioned with the intrans. from regard to usage, since they hardly ever say ^{أَٔ}أَيُّهُ ^{أَٔ}الْحَدِيثَ, though analogy does not forbid it, but rather requires it, because ^{أَٔ}أَيُّهُ acts as a substitute for a trans. v. ^{أَٔ}حَدَّثَ or ^{أَٔ}زَدَ (IY)]: (d) ^{أَٔ}هَيِّتْ ^{أَٔ}Make haste, i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَسْرِعْ, [which is said in calling, as says the poet

أَبْلِغْ أَمِيرَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ أَخَا الْعِرَاقِ إِذَا أَتَيْتَا
أَنْ الْعِرَاقَ وَاهْلَهُ * سَلِّمْ إِلَيْكَ فَهَيِّتْ هَيِّتَا

Convey thou to the Commander of the Believers, brother of Al-'Irāk, when thou comest, that Al-'Irāk and its people are devoted to thee, then make haste, make haste, meaning 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib; and has three dial. vars. هَيِّتْ (IY)]: (e) [هَلْ or (AAz)] هَلْ [or هَلْ (191) (IY)] Make haste and Come, i. e. ^{أَٔ}أَسْرِعْ [and ^{أَٔ}تَعَالُ, orig. a chiding for the horse (191, 200), and afterwards made a verbal n.

(IY): (f) هَيَّك Make haste in what thou art about, [the n. being هَيَّ, and the k a p. of allocution (IY),] and هَيَّك [lightened by elision of one ي (IY)], and هَيَّا, [the l being put for pause when the k is not affixed (IY),] i. e. اَسْرِعْ فِيمَا اَنْتَ فِيْهِ, as

لَتَقْرِبَنَّ قَرَبًا جُلْدِيًّا * مَا دَامَ فِيْهِمْ فَصِيلٌ حَيًّا
فَقَدْ دَجَا اللَّيْلُ فَهَيَّا هَيَّا

[by Ibn Mayyāda (IY, AAz), addressing his she-camel (IY), Assuredly thou shalt make a rapid journey by night to the watering-place of the morning, so long as a young weaned camel continues to be among them. (If thou resolve upon journeying, the ف being the correl. of the prop.,) the night has grown dark: then make haste, make haste (AAz): (g) نَزَالِ Alight, i. e. اَنْزِلْ [193]: (h) قَدْكَ and قَطُّكَ Be satisfied and Desist, i. e. اَكْتَفْ and قَطًّا and قَدْ, [the k being a p. of allocution, and قَدْ and قَطُّ contracted from قَدْ and قَطُّ, because they are derived from قَدَدْتُ الشَّيْءَ and قَطَّطْتُ I cut the thing along and across, as though being satisfied were a cutting off from everything else (IY): (i) اَلَيْكَ Be off, i. e. تَنَمَّ, [as in the verse {of 'Abīd Ibn Al'Abras (SR)} cited by Th.

اَذْهَبْ اِلَيْكَ فَاَنْتَ مِنْ بَنِي اَسَدٍ
اَهْلُ الْقَبَابِ وَاَهْلُ الْخَيْلِ وَالنَّادَى

Go, be off, for verily I am of the Banu Asad, the people of the tents made of skins, and the people of the horses and the assembly, as though the poet said اَذْهَبْ تَنْمَ (IY)]; and اَلْتَّ I will be off, heard by Akh from a man when اَلَيْكَ was said to him, as though تَنْمَ had been said to him, and he said اَتَنْحَى [199]: (j) دَعْ Recover thyself, i. e. اَنْتَعْشِ, [said to the stumbler or to him that is afflicted by a calamity, as

لَحَى اللّٰهَ قَرَمًا لَمْ يَقْرُلُوا لِعَاثِرٍ وَلَا لِابْنِ عَمٍّ نَالَ الدَّهْرُ دُعْدَا

God shame a people that say not to a stumbler, nor to a son of a paternal uncle that fortune has afflicted, "Recover thyself!" (IY)]; and دُعْدَا or دَعَاكَ, [which is, however, an infl. inf. n., like سَقِيَا لَكَ (IY), because it is explained by the p.]: (k) اَمِيْنُ and اَمِيْنُ Answer Thou, [said in prayer (IY),] i. q. اَسْتَجِبْ (2) enunciatory, [which is rare (IY),] as (a) هَيْهَاتَ ذَاكَ Very, or Wholly, far is that! [195], i. e. [جَدًا (IY)] بَعْدَ [or هَيْهَاتَ الْبَعْدَ, which requires an ag., like the v., as هَيْهَاتَ

هَيْهَاتَ الْعَقِيقِ الْخ (above): while in XXIII. 38. (504) some say that the ل is red., and مَا the ag., i. e. هَيْهَاتَ Far, far off, is what etc; some that the ag. is suppressed, i. e. الْخ بَعْدَ الصَّدَقِ أَمَا الْخ Far, far off is (the fulfilment) of what etc.; and some that the ag. is a pron. in هَيْهَاتَ بَعْثُكُمْ, i. e. هَيْهَاتَ Far, far off is your resurrection or your being brought forth, because the أَخْرَاج is previously mentioned (IY): (b) شَتَّانَ زَيْدٍ وَعَمْرُو [196], i. e. أَفْتَرَقَا and تَبَايَنَا, [the ن of which is sometimes pronounced with Kasr (IY)]: (c) سَرَّعَانَ ذَا إِهَالَةٍ, i. e. سَرَّعَ, [a prov., meaning How quick is this as melted fat], إِهَالَةٌ being in the acc. as a sp. (IY): (d) شَتَّانَ ذَا قُرْبٍ [and رَشْتِكْ (IY)], i. e. رَشْتِكْ [and قُرْبٍ, How quick, and soon, is this in coming forth, خُرُوجًا being in the acc. as a sp. (IY)]: (e) أَفَّ I am disgusted, i. q. أَنْضَجِرَ [197]: (f) أَوْهَ I am pained, i. q. أَوْجَعُ (M), which has several dial. vars., أَوْهَ مِنْ كَذَا, as

فَاوَهَ لِنُكْرَاهَا إِذَا مَا ذَكَرْتُهَا * وَمِنْ بَعْدِ أَرْضِي بَيْنَنَا وَسَمَاءِ
[Then alas for the remembrance of her, whenever I remember her, and for the distance of earth between us and sky! (N)], أَوْهَ, أَوْهَ, and أَوْهَ (IY). The chastest is ^كاوة with Kasr, Damm, or Fath of the ^اا, Kasr being the most prevalent, as ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة (D). ^ااوة is (1) a n. syn. with ^ااوة ^ااوة, (a) mostly uninfl., because of its resemblance to the p. ^ااوة [575] in its letter, and to many ps. in its [bil. (DM)] constitution, as ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة Zaid's sufficiency is a dirham and ^ااوة ^ااوة My sufficiency; (b) seldom infl., as ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة with [^ااوة in (DM)] the nom., like ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة, and ^ااوة ^ااوة, like ^ااوة ^ااوة : (2) a verbal n., [always uninfl. (DM),] syn. with ^ااوة ^ااوة, as ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة A dirham suffices Zaid and ^ااوة ^ااوة suffices me, like ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة and ^ااوة ^ااوة [170]. ^ااوة is (1) [a n. (DM)] syn. with ^ااوة ^ااوة, as ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة My sufficiency is a dirham and ^ااوة ^ااوة Thy sufficiency and ^ااوة ^ااوة Zaid's sufficiency, like ^ااوة ^ااوة ^ااوة and ^ااوة ^ااوة and ^ااوة ^ااوة, except that it is uninfl., because it is constituted of two letters, whereas ^ااوة ^ااوة is infl.: (2) a verbal n. syn. with ^ااوة ^ااوة, as ^ااوة ^ااوة Suffices me, like ^ااوة ^ااوة; and the ^ااوة of protection is allowable in the 1st case also, [where it is syn. with ^ااوة ^ااوة (DM),] for preservation of the uninflectedness upon quiescence. ^ااوة is (1) a verbal n. syn. with يَكْفِي, as بَجَلْنِي Suffices me, [like يَكْفِينِي (DM).] which [usage (DM)] is rare: (2) a n. syn. with حَسَب, as بَجَلِي My sufficiency, whence

أَلَا أَنَّنِي شَرِبْتُ أَسْوَدَ حَالِكًا
أَلَا بَجَلِي مِنْ ذَا الشَّرَابِ أَلَا بَجَلُ

[by Tarafa, Now, verily I have drunk a dark, black (poison): now, I have had enough of this draught, now, enough! (Jsh); and in this case expression of the ن is rare (170) (DM)]. وَأ is a [verbal (DM)] n. i. q. اعْجَب, as

وَأَبَايَ أَنْتِ وَتَوَكِّي الْأَشْذَبُ * كَانَمَا نَرَّ عَلَيْهِ الزَّرْنَبُ
أَوْ زَنْجَبِيلٌ وَهُوَ عِنْدِي أَطِيبُ

[by a Rājiz of Taim (FA), I marvel at thy beauty (with my father be thou ransomed!); and thy cool sweet mouth is as though saffron had been sprinkled upon it, or ginger, which to my mind is nicer (FA), (DM)]: and sometimes وَأُهَا [198] is said, as

وَأُهَا لَسَلَمَى ثُمَّ وَأُهَا وَأُهَا * هِيَ الْأَمْنَى لَوْ أَنَّنَا نَلْمَاهَا

[by Abu-nNajm al'Ijāī, I marvel at the niceness of Salma, again I marvel, I marvel! She is (the object of) desires—would that we had got them! (Jsh)]; and وَى [200], as

وَيَ كَانَ مِنْ يَكُنْ لَهْ نَشَبٌ يَحْسَبُ بِبِ وَمِنْ يَفْتَقِرُ يَعِشُ عَيْشُ ضَرٍ

[by Sa'īd Ibn Zaid asṢaḥābī, I wonder! Verily he that has wealth is beloved, and he that is needy lives a life of hardship (Jsh)]. And sometimes the ك of allocution is affixed to this [^{اَعْجَبُ} ^{i. q.} وَيَ (DM)], as

وَلَقَدْ شَفَى نَفْسِي وَابْرَأَ سَقَمَهَا * قِيلَ الْفَوَارِسُ وَيَكُ عَنْتَرُ أَقْدِمِ

[by 'Antara, And assuredly the saying of the horsemen "I wonder {at thee (Jsh)}, 'Antara, advance!" did heal my mind, and cure its distemper (FA, Jsh)]; but Ks says that وَيَكُ is orig. وَيَلِكُ, in which case the ك is a pron.

governed in the gen. [by prothesis (FA)]: and, as for وَيَ XXVIII. 82. [200], Akh says that وَيَ is a verbal n., the ك a p. of allocution [affixed to وَيَ, as in وَيَكُ عَنْتَرُ الْخَ (K)], and أَيْ [in the position of a gen.] by subaudition of the ل, the sense being I marvel

because God; but Khl says that وَيَ is separate [from وَيَ (K)], as in وَيَ كَانَ مِنْ الْخَ [above], in which case وَيَ denotes verification [531], as in

كَانَنِي حِينَ امْسَى لَا تُكَلِّمْنِي * مَتِيمَ يَشْتَهِي مَا لَيْسَ مَوْجُودًا

[by Sulaimān Ibn 'Abd AlMalik, or, as is said (Jsh), by 'Umar Ibn Abī Rabr'a (KA, Jsh) alMakbuzūnī, Verily I, when I enter upon the evening while she speaks not to me, am a thrall that longs for what is not to be found (Jsh)],

i. e. ^{انذى} _ء, [the sense being I marvel! Verily God] (ML).

§ 188. ^{رويد} is (1) [uninfl. (M),] a verbal n. (M, R), transferred from the inf. n. [187], through frequency of usage, by the v.'s not being supplied before it, but the inf. n.'s being made to act as a substitute for the v., and pronounced with Fath only because it is uninfl. upon the vowel appropriate in inflection [199] (R), trans. to a [single (IY) direct (R)] obj., as ^{رويد زيداً} (IY, R): the poet [Mālik Ibn Khālīd alKhunā'ī (DH)] says

^{رويد علياً جد ما ثدى أمهم * إلينا ولكن بغضهم متمائناً}
[Let 'Alī alone for a while: their relationship to us has been cut off, but their hatred is old, remote (DH)], 'Alī being a tribe [of Kināna (ISk), ^{ما} red. (DH)], and ^{ثدى} a met. for ^{قربة} (IY); and [sometimes ^{ما} is redundantly added to ^{رويد} when a verbal n., as (R)] an Arab said [to his fellow (R)] ^{والله لو أردت الدراهم لأعطيتك} ^{رويد ما الشعر} (M, R), i. e. By God, if thou hadst desired dirhams, I would have given to thee: [then (IY)] let poetry alone, [thou hast no need of it (IY)]; and [sometimes the ك of allocution is affixed to it, so that (IY)] ^{رويدك زيدا} [161, 187, 560] is said (IY, R), where it may be either a verbal n., the ی being a p., or an inf. n. pre. to the ag. (R): (2) infl. (M), (a) an inf. n. (IY, R) i. q. the act. part. (R), used as (a) an ep. [of an inf. n. (R)], as سَارُوا رَوِيْدًا They journeyed with gentle journeying, [i. e. (R)]; (b) a d. s., as سَارُوا رَوِيْدًا They journeyed gently (M, R), i. e. مَرُوْدِيْن (IY, R): it is an ep. of the inf. n. when you mention the latter, and a d. s. when you do not, because of the weakness of suppressing the qualified and putting the ep. into its place [149]; but what is meant may be سَارُوا سَيْرًا رَوِيْدًا, the qualified being suppressed, and the ep. put into its place, though this construction is weak (IY): (b) an inf. n. (M, R.) i. q. اَرُوَادًا (M), which is the origin of the two other kinds, [vid. 1 and 2 (a), and is sometimes] (a) trans. to the direct obj. (R), as اَرُوَادَ زَيْدًا (IY, R), i. e. اَرُوَادَ زَيْدًا رَوِيْدًا, the v. being suppressed, and the inf. n. made to act as a substitute for it (IY), like ضَرْبًا زَيْدًا [41] (R); (b) pre. [to the obj. (IY, R)], as رَوِيْدَ زَيْدٍ, like نَضْرَبُ الرِّقَابَ XLVII. 4. Smite ye the necks (M, R). In نَهْلُ الْكَافِرِيْنَ اَمْهَالًا رَوِيْدًا LXXXVI. 17. Then let the unbelievers alone, let them alone quietly it may be an inf. n. [i. q. اَمْهَالًا (MAd), a corrob. upon a corrob. (Sh on the corrob.)]; or an ep. of a [suppressed] inf. n., [i. e. اَمْهَالًا يَسِيْرًا (K, B)]; or a d. s. (R): the poet says رَوَيْدًا بَنَى شَيْبَانَ آخَ [156], which is also related رَوَيْدٌ (IY), Leave off, Banū Shaibān, some of your threatening, وَعَيْدُكُمْ being the obj. of [the inf. n. رَوَيْدًا or verbal n.] رَوَيْدٌ (FA, Jsh): the Hudhali says رَوَيْدٌ عَلَيَّ جَدَّ آخَ [above] (ISk): and the prov. says رَوَيْدُكَ الشَّعْرُ يَغْبُتُ Leave the poetry alone. It will remain a night, [like زَيْدًا زَيْدُكَ] (T).

§ 189. هَلَمْ is compounded, (1) according to our school, from the premonitory p. [هَ (IY)] together with لَمْ, [its o. f., says Khl, being هَ لَمْ, from the saying لَمْ اللّٰهُ شَعَثَهُ God unite his disunion!, i. e. جَمَعَهُ, as though the speaker meant لَمْ نَفْسُكَ اَيْنَا Unite (thyself to us), i. e. اقْرُبْ Draw near; and (IY)] the هَ being elided from هَ [for alleviation, because of frequency of usage, and because the ل after it, though mobile, is in the predicament of the quiescent, since the o. f. and the stronger of the two dial. vars., vid. the Hījāzī, is هَ اَلَمْ (731), so that the هَ of هَ is elided because of the concurrence of two quiescents (IY)]: (2) according to the KK, from هَلْ together with لَمْ, [its o. f., says Fr, being هَلْ اَم, i. e. اقْصِدْ and (IY)] the Hamza being [alleviated

by having its vowel thrown upon the ل, and being (IY)] elided, [so that the word becomes هَلَمْ; and the هَلْ compounded with اَم being the one denotative not of interrogation, but of chiding and urging, from the saying

وَلَقَدْ يَسْمَعُ قَوْلِي حَىٰ هَلْ

(191) (IY)]. The Hījāzīs make it uniform in all numbers and genders, [like صَةٌ, مَةٌ, etc.; which form is in accordance with analogy (187), and occurs in the Revelation, as وَالْقَاتِلِينَ لِأَخْوَانِهِمْ هَلُمَّ إِلَيْنَا XXXIII. 18. And the sayers to their brethren, Come hither to us (IY)]: but the Banū Tamīm, [having regard to the v. لَمْ, and giving predominance to its side (IY),] say هَلِّمُوا, هَلِّمِي, and [according to the BB and most of the KK (IY)] هَلِّمْنِي, [because the ل of the word becomes quiescent upon attachment of this نِ to it, as ضَرْبِنِ, and, when the letter before the نِ becomes quiescent, the incorporation is annulled, and the word becomes like اَرَدْتُ (731); while Fr asserts that هَلِّمْنِي ought to be said, because, this نِ being always preceded by a quiescent, they add a 2nd نِ before it for the quiescence to fall upon, in order that the Fatha of the م in هَلَمْ may be preserved, as they say عَنِّي and مَنِّي, adding a

2nd ن in order that the ن of مِنْ and عَنْ may be preserved from Kasr (170); and هَلُمِّنْ also has been transmitted from some of the Arabs, the letter added for protection being made a ي, which is anomalous (IY). It is trans., [as هَلُمَّ زَيْدًا, i. q. قَرَبَةً and أَحْضَرَةً (IY),] like هَلَّتْ; and intrans., [as هَلُمَّ يَا زَيْد (IY),] i. q. تَعَالُ and أَقْبِلْ: e. g. هَلُمَّ شُهَدَاءَكُمْ VI. 151. Bring forward your witnesses and XXXIII. 18. (M). And sometimes هَلُمَّ لَكَ is said, هَلُمَّ being explained by the ل, because, though not orig. an inf. n., it is treated like the verbal ns. that are explained by the prep. from regard to their o. f. when they were inf. ns., as XXIII. 38. [187, 504], i. e. بَعْدًا (R). And As relates that, when [هَلُمَّ كَذَا (IY, R)] [or هَلُمَّ كَذَا (IY, R)] is said to a man, he says [لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ (IY, R)] لَا أَهْلَمُ (M, R) or لَا أَهْلَمُهُ, orig. لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ (IY, R), like لَا أَرَدُ (IY), the ذ pronounced with Fath being aug. (R), as though he restored it to its o. f. before the composition (IY); or لَا أَرْؤَمُ according to the other opinion, the ذ and ل not being altered in the reply from regard to the form of the address (R): but this is anomalous (IY).

§ 190. هَآ is i. q. خُذْ (M, R), تَنَازَلْ, and the like (IY). It has 8 dial. vars.:—(1) you say هَآ with a single quiescent ه for the sing., du., and pl., masc. or fem. (R): (2) you affix [to this single ه (R)] the [p. (IY, R)] ك [of allocution (IY, R)]; and vary it [according to the states of the person addressed (M) in gender and number (IY)], as هَآك, [هَآكُمَا, هَآكُم, and هَآكُنَّ (IY, R)]: (3) you affix [to the ه (IY, R)] a Hamza in place of the ك; and vary it like the ك, as هَآء (M, R), هَآؤُمَا, هَآؤُم, [whence LXIX. 19. (22) (IY),] and هَآؤُنَّ (IY, R): this is the best dial. var. (IY, B on LXIX. 19.), and is the one that occurs in the Scripture; but هَآؤُم is strange, because the م is found in the pron. of the 2nd pers. only when it is not in the imp., as قَمَتُم and قَمَتُمَا (IY): (4) you combine the Hamza and the ك, [as هَآكْ (M), to corroborate the allocution (IY),] pronouncing the Hamza with Fath, and varying the ك (M, R): (5) you say هَآ with a quiescent Hamza after the ذ for all [numbers and genders]: (6) you conjugate this 5th like دَع (R); [for] some say هَآ upon the measure of هَبْ, and conjugate it like the latter (M), as هَآ, هَآي, هَآا, هَآؤُوا, and هَآن (IY): (7) you conjugate it like خَف (IY, R), as هَآ, هَآء or هَآءِ , هَآءِ , هَآءُ , and هَآءِ , making it a v. [below], which is corroborated by the saying مِمَّنْ أَهَأْ From whom shall I take? transmitted by Ks as said in reply to هَآءِ , like مِمَّنْ أَخَافُ ; and, according to this opinion, it is on the measure of يَفْعَلُ فَعْلٌ , like إِخَالُ خَلْتُ , for which reason the Hamza of its initial may be pronounced with Kasr [404] (IY): (8) you [affix a Hamza to the ا , and (R)] conjugate it like (M, R) نَادَ (R) [or] دَامَ (M), as هَآءِ , هَآءِ , هَآءِ , هَآءُ , and هَآءِ ; and the saying of 'Alī

أَفَاطِلُ هَآءِ السَّيْفِ غَيْرُ مُذَمِّمٍ * فَلَسْتُ بِرَعْدِي وَلَا بِلَيْتِي

[O Fāṭima, take the sword not blamed; for I am not dastardly, nor base (DA)] may be of the 3rd dial. or of this, the ي being elided in the latter case because of the quiescence of the ل after it (IY). The last three are aplastic vs. [above], having neither pret. nor aor., not verbal ns. [187] (R).

§ 191. حَيْهَلْ is compounded of حَى and [هَلْ or (AAz)] هَلْ , [two ejs. meaning urging and hastening (IY)]. It is uninfl. upon Fath, [as حَيْهَلْ , whence إِذَا حَيْهَلْ (below) (IY)]; and حَيْهَلًا with Tanwīn [198] is said, [whence ^{بَحِيهَلًا} يَزْجُرُونَ ^{أَلْع} (below), according to the usual version (AAz)]; and ^{حِيهَلًا} with the ʾ: S mentions these dial. vars.; and others add ^{حِيهَل}, [whence ^{يَتَمَارَى} ^{أَلْع} (below) (IY),] and ^{حِيهَل}, and ^{حِيهَلًا} (M). When you pause upon ^{حِيهَلًا} and ^{حِيهَلًا}, you convert their ^ن into ʾ [615]; but in continuity expression of the ʾ in them is a vicious dial.: and LabId in his saying

^{يَتَمَارَى} فِي الَّذِي قُلْتُ لَهُ * وَلَقَدْ يَسْمَعُ قَوْلِي حِيهَلًا

[mentioning a fellow-traveller whom he was bidding to start, He doubts about what I have said to him; and assuredly he does hear my saying "Come along" (MAR),] makes the ^ل quiescent for the sake of the rhyme; but this is not allowable except in pause: and the KSh gives ^{حِيهَل} [187] with [Fath of the ^س and (AAz)] Kasr and Tanwīn of the ^ل (R). It is (1) [i. q. ^{أَيْت}, and therefore (R)] trans. by itself, [as ^{حِيهَل} ^{الْثَرِيدُ} Come to the crumbled bread moistened with broth (R)]: (2) [i. q. ^{أَسْرَعَ}, and therefore (R)] trans. by (a) the ب, as [in the speech of 'Abd Allāh Ibn Mas'ud (AAz) in tradition (M)] ^{إِذَا} ^{ذَكَرَ} ^{الصَّالِحُونَ} ^{فَحِيهَلًا} ^{بِعَمْرٍ} [When the righteous are men- tioned, hasten (the mention of) ‘Umar, i. e. اُسْرِعْ بِنِزْكَةٍ , the ب denoting making trans. (R)]; (b) اِلَى , [as حَيْهَلُ اِلَى التَّيْرِيدِ Haste to the etc. (R)]: (3) [i. q. اَقْبِلْ , and therefore (R)] trans. by عَلَى (M, R), as حَيْهَلُ عَلَى زَيْدٍ Approach Zaid. According to F, the two members of the comp., as regards assumption of the pron., are in the same state as حُلُوٌ حَامِضٌ [31], i. e. each of them contains a pron., as before the composition, while the aggregate after the composition contains a 3rd pron., which is agr.

 of the aggregate, because the aggregate is i. q. اَيُّتْ , اَسْرِعْ , or اَقْبِلْ ; but, according to others, they contain a single pron., and not each of them a pron., because the predicament of independence is obliterated from each of them by the composition : and, as for the saying

وَهَيَّجَ الْحَيَّ مِنْ دَارٍ فَظَلَّ لَهُمْ * يَوْمَ كَثِيرٍ تَنَادَوْا وَحِيلَهُ

[mentioned by S as being by a man of the Banu Bakr Ibn Wā'il, And he (the camel-driver in the preceding verse) roused the tribe from an abode; and a day, whose calling of one to another and "make haste" were many, was spent by them (AAz)], the Damma of the ج is a vowel of inflection, and the aggregate is a single term without a pron., because every expression other than a prop., to whose form a predicament is attributed [194];

may be imitated, as ضَرَبَ فَعَلَ مَاضِي Daraba is a preterite verb and

بَحِيْهًا يَزْجُوْنَ كُلَّ مَطِيَّةٍ * اِمَامَ الْمَطَايَا سِيْرَهَا الْمَتَقَاذِفُ

[by Muzāḥim al'Uḡailī, or, as is said (AAz), by An Nābigha alJa'dī, With "Make haste" they drive on every riding-beast whose incessant journeying is before the riding-beasts (IY, AAz)]; or may be declined with the cases of inflection [206], as

لَيْتَ شَعْرِيْ رَاَيْتُ مِنْيْ لَيْتَ * اِنْ لَرَا دَاِنْ لَيْتَا عَنَاوُ

[by Abū Zubaid (H),] Would that I knew—and where on my part is "Would that"? Verily "If" and verily "Would that" are a weariness [200] and تَنَادِيَةٌ وَحِيْهَةٌ [above]. And sometimes حِيْهْلُ [560] is said (R). حَى and هَلْ are combined only for the sake of intensiveness; and, when you mean the original call without intensiveness (IY), حَى is used [alone (M)] in the sense of اَقْبَلْ, [made trans. by عَلَى (R),] as in [the saying of the Mu'adhhdhin (M),] حَى عَلَى الصَّلَاةِ Come to prayer (M, R), which is only a call to prayer (IY): but, according to Akh, some of the Arabs say حِيْهَلْ الصَّلَاةِ Come to prayer; and حَى occurs trans. in the sense of اَيْتَ (R), whence

أَنشَأْتُ أَسْأَلَهُ مَا بَالُ رَفِيقَتِهِ
حَتَّى التَّحْمُولِ فَإِنَّ الرُّكْبَ قَدْ ذَهَبَا

(IY, R), by Ibn Aḥmar (IY, MAR), I commenced asking him what was the case of his fellow-travellers. "Come to the camels laden with litters: for verily the riders have gone" (MAR): and [sometimes (IY)] هَلَا [is used (AAz)] alone [in the sense of أَقْبَلَ and أَصْرَعَ (AAz)], as

أَلَا أِبْلَغَا لَيْلَى وَقُولَا لَهَا هَلَا * لَقَدْ رَكِبْتَ أَمْرًا أَعْرَ مَصْحَبًا
(M), by AnNābigħa alJa'dī (IY, AAz), satirizing Lailā al-Akhyaliya, Now convey ye two (my message) to Lailā, and say to her, "Come up". (By God,) she has perpetrated a glaring, notorious matter, where هَلَا contains a reproach and rebuke to her (AAz), i. e. أَقْبَلَى and أَصْرَعَى; but the use of حَتَّى alone is more frequent than that of هَلْ alone (IY).

§ 192. بَلَّةٌ is (1) a [verbal (M, R, DM)] n., [i. q. دَعُ (IY, R, ML), i. e. أَتَرَكُ (DM), as بَلَّةٌ زَيْدًا (IY, R), like دَعُ زَيْدًا (R)]: (2) an inf. n. (M, R, ML), i. q. التَّرَكُّ (M, ML), pre. (M) to what follows it (IY), as بَلَّةٌ زَيْدٌ [with prefixion to the obj. (R)], like تَرَكُ زَيْدٌ (M, R), of the cat. of XLVII. 4. [188] (IY); and AZ relates that it is transposed, when it is an inf. n., as ^{زَيْدٌ} ^{يَهْلُ} (M): (3) as transmitted by F from Akh (R), a n. (ML) i. q. ^{كَيْفُ} : (a) what follows it is governed in [the acc. according to the 1st, the gen. according to the 2nd, and (ML)] the nom. according to the 3rd (R, ML): (b) its Fatḥ is uninflectional according to the 1st and 3rd, and inflectional according to the 2nd (ML): (c) the saying [of Ka'b Ibn Mālik asṢaḥābī on the day of the Ditch (Jsh)]

تَذَرُ الْجَمَاجِمَ ضَاحِيًا هَامَاتَهَا * بَلَاءُ الْأَكْفِ كَانَهَا لَمْ تُخْلَقِ

[They (the swords mentioned in the preceding verse) leave the skulls with their crowns laid bare, let alone the hands—or how then are the hands?—as though they had not been created (Jsh)] is related with [^{الْأَكْفِ} in

(IY, R] the acc. and gen. (M, R, ML) and nom. (R, ML) :

(d) when it is i. q. ^{كَيْفُ}, [says R (Dm),] ^{مِنْ} may be prefixed to it [499] (R, Dm) : AZ transmits ^{أَنْ} ^{فَلَأَنْ} ^{لَا}

^{يُطِيقُ} ^{أَنْ} ^{يَحْمِلَ} ^{الْفِهْرَ} ^{فَمِنْ} ^{بَلَاءُ} ^{أَنْ} ^{يَأْتِي} ^{بِالصَّخْرَةِ} Verily such a one is not able to carry the stone : then how shall he be able to bring the rock ?, i. e. ^{كَيْفُ} (IY, R, Dm) and ^{مِنْ} ^{أَيْنَ} whence ? (R, Dm) ; and another version is

^{مِنْ} ^{يَهْلُ} by transposition (IY, R) : (e) a strange circumstance is that the SB in the exposition of the ^{آلَمِ} of [the 32nd Chapter of the Ḳur named] ^{السَّجْدَةِ} contains [the following words], “ God says, ^{أَعَدَدْتُ لِعِبَادِي الصَّالِحِينَ} أَعَدَدْتُ لِعِبَادِي الصَّالِحِينَ ^{مَا لَا عَيْنٌ رَأَتْ وَلَا أُذُنٌ سَمِعَتْ وَلَا خَطَرَ عَلَى قَلْبِ بَشَرٍ} مَا لَا عَيْنٌ رَأَتْ وَلَا أُذُنٌ سَمِعَتْ وَلَا خَطَرَ عَلَى قَلْبِ بَشَرٍ ^{ذَخَرًا مِّنْ بَلَدٍ مَا أَطَّلَعْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ} ذَخَرًا مِّنْ بَلَدٍ مَا أَطَّلَعْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ I have made ready for My servants the righteous that which neither eye hath seen, nor ear heard, and which hath not occurred to the mind of man, as a treasure, other than, or not, what ye have become acquainted with”, so that it is used infl., governed in the gen. by ^{مِّنْ}, and excluded from the three meanings [above mentioned] : but some expound it by ^{غَيْرِ}, which is plain ; and this corroborates those [vid. the KK and Bdd (DM)] who reckon it among the exceptive expressions (ML) : (f) this tradition is related with Fatḥ or the sign of the gen. in ^{بَلَدٍ}, and in both cases with ^{مِّنْ} : the version with the gen. has been explained by IHsh ; and in the version with Fatḥ ^{بَلَدٍ} is [uninfl.,] i. q. ^{كَيْفَ}, and ^{مَا} infinitival, the pron. in ^{عَلَيْهِ} relating to the treasure, i. e. How, and Whence, shall be your becoming acquainted with it? (Dm) : (4) as held by Akh, [and transmitted from him by IUK (Dm),] a prep. (IY, R, Dm), like ^{عَدَا} [512] (IY, R), ^{خَلَا} (R), and ^{حَاشَى} [511] (IY), i. q. ^{سَرَى} [89] ; and hence, as is said, the saying of the Prophet ^{بَلَدٍ مَا أَطَّلَعْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ} بَلَدٍ مَا أَطَّلَعْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ besides what I have acquainted them with (R).

§ 193. فَعَالٌ [uninfl. upon Kasr (Mb)] is [commonly held to be] always fem., det., and made to deviate from its proper form (Mb, IY). It is of 4 kinds, (1) [a verbal n. (Mb, IY, R), i. q. the imp. (M),] like نَزَالٌ Alight (Mb, M, R), i. q. أَنْزَلَ [187] (Mb, IY, R), دَرَاكٌ Overtake, [i. q. أَدْرَكَ (IY),] and [بَدَادٌ (IY)] بَدَادٌ [said in battle (IY)], i. e. Let each of you take his adversary (M) : (a) according to S, it is universal in the tril. [below] (M, R), because of its frequency : but it is said [by Mb (R)] to be confined to hearsay, since no one may invent a form not spoken by the Arabs (IY, R), nor may we act upon analogy in the intensive forms ; while An says that Mb's disallowance is strong ; and therefore it is better to interpret what S says by supposing that by universality he means frequency, so that فَعَالٌ is quasi-regular because of its frequency (R) : فَعَالٌ as an imp. does not occur in the Revelation, except in the reading of AlHasan لَا مَسَاسَ XX. 97. Touch me not [below], which in the prefixion of لَا to the verbal n. is like their saying to the stumbler, when they imprecate upon him that he may not recover his footing, [لَا نَعَا (MAd)] Mayst thou not recover thy footing ! (Sh) : (c) it is rare in the quad. (M) ; and is then فَعَالٌ, not فَعَالٌ (IY) : they are agreed that (R) only two words of it occur in the quad., vid. قَرَقَرٌ (IY, R), i. e. قَرَقَرٌ (IY), as

قَالَتْ لَهُ رِيحُ الصَّبَا قَرَقَرٌ * وَاخْتَلَطَ الْمَعْرُوفُ بِالْإِنْكَارِ

[The breeze of the east wind said to it (the cloud) "Rumble (with thunder)" : and the ground wet with rain became bleuded with the dry (AAz)]; and [عَرَعَارٌ (IY, R), i. e. Play at العرعة, which is a game of theirs (R)], as

مَتَكَنَّفِي جَنْبِي عَكَظَ كِلَيْهِمَا * يَدْعُو بِهَا وَلَدَانَهُم عَرَعَارٌ

(M, R), by AnNābigħa adhDhubyānī, Surrounding the two sides of 'Ukāz, both of them, while their lads call out in it, Play at العرعة (ABk): Mb says that deviation

[from the imp. v. to the imp. verbal n.] does not occur in the quad. at all, قَرَقَرٌ being only an imitation of the sound of thunder, and عَرَعَارٌ an imitation of the cries of boys, as غَايَ غَايَ [200] is said; but Sf replies that what

S says is better, because in imitation of sound the 1st does not differ from the 2nd, as غَايَ غَايَ, so that, if they meat imitation, they would say قَارِ قَارِ and عَارِ عَارِ; while, according to Akh [in the Book of Etymology (AAz)], فَعَالٌ as an imp. [verbal n.] from the quad. is regular,

[because intensiveness is not peculiar to the tril. (AAz)]:

(d) the GG hold that this فَعَالٌ is made to deviate from the verbal imp. for the sake of intensiveness, this intensive form for the imp. being like the intensive فَعَّالٌ and فَعُولٌ for فَاعِلٌ : Jj says “ the o. f. of نَزَّالٍ is أَنْزَلَ أَنْزَلَ “ أَنْزَلَ, 3 or more ; and, 3 or more being pl., and the pl. “ being fem., أَنْزَلِي is said : they affix the ي, which is the “ pron. of the fem., to the v. as an indication of the triple “ repetition, as they affix the ل in الْقِيَا فِي جَهَنَّمَ L. 23. “ Cast, cast thou into Hell [233] as an indication of the “ double repetition, its o. f. being أَلْقَى أَلْقَى, [like يَا “ حَرَسَى (607) (K)] ; and what is meant by the “ repetition is intensiveness : and afterwards they make “ نَزَّالٍ deviate from أَنْزَلِي, so that نَزَّالٍ is then fem., like “ أَنْزَلِي ; and the evidence of the femininization of the “ imp. فَعَّالٌ is the saying [of Zuhair (Ahl)]

وَلَا نْتَ أَشْجَعُ مِنْ أَسَاطِئِهِ أَنْ * دُعِيتَ نَزَالٍ وَلَجَّ فِي الذَّعْرِ

“And assuredly thou art braver than the lion when Alight” “has been called out, and fright has been excited”: but, in my opinion, the verbal n.'s being made to deviate from the form of the v. is a thing that they have no evidence of ; and, the general rule being that every [expression] made to deviate from some thing does not pass out of the species to which that thing belongs, the v. cannot by deviation pass from the quality of v. to that of n. : and,

as for the intensiveness, it exists in all the verbal ns., as we explained before [187]. not in the manner asserted by Jj; and the feminization of the v. in دُعِيَتْ نَزَالٌ does not prove the o. f. of نَزَالٌ to be an imp. v. repeated, but is due to the paraphrase of نَزَالٌ by the كَلِمَة or لَفْظَة or دُعْوَة : (e) similarly the 2 kinds of the inf. n. and ep. are not devoid of the sense of intensiveness [194], so that حَمَادٌ and لَكَاعٌ are more intensive than الْحَمْدُ and لَكَاءٌ (R): (2) made to deviate from (Mb), [and therefore] in the sense of (M), a [det. (M) fem. (IY)] inf. n. (Mb, M, R), being a proper name for it (IY), like فَجَارٌ Wickedness [a proper name (IY)] for الْفَجْرَة [8], جَمَادٌ for الْجُمُودُ [below], and حَمَادٌ for المَحْمُودَة (M), as

إِنَّا اِمْتَسَمْنَا خَطِيئَتَيْنَا بَيْنَنَا * فَحَمَلْتُ بَرَّةً وَاحْتَمَلْتُ فَجَارَ
 by AnNābigha [adhDhubyānī (Mb, ABk), Verily we have divided our qualities between us; and I have borne off goodness, and thou hast carried away wickedness (ABk), i. e. الْفَجْرَة (IY)], and

جَمَادٍ لَهَا جَمَادٌ وَلَا تَقُولِي * طَوَالَ الدَّهْرِ مَا ذُكِرْتَ حَمَادٌ
 [by AlMutalammis (Akh, IY), blaming wine (Akh),] “Stagnation” (say thou) to it, “stagnation”; and say thou not (to it), throughout the length of time, so long as it is mentioned, "Praise," i. e. قَوْلِي لَهَا جُمُودًا وَلَا تَقُولِي لَهَا حَمْدًا (Mb, IY), this being the sense, though it is made to deviate as a [det.] fem. [above] (Mb): and hence بَدَّادٌ , as in

وَذَكَرْتُ مِنْ لَبَنِي الْمُحَلَّقِي شُرْبَةً * وَالْخَيْلُ تَعْدُو فِي الصَّعِيدِ بَدَّادٍ
[below], by 'Auf [Ibn 'Atīya (KF)] Ibn AlKhari' ['Amr Ibn 'Abs (KF)], And thou rememberedst a draught of the milk of the herd of camels branded with a mark like a ring, when the horses were running on the surface of the ground dispersed, i. e. بَدَّادٌ i. q. مُتَبَدِّدَةٌ , an inf. n. i. q.
the act. part., like عَدِلُ i. q. عَادِلٌ [76, 143], being really a [generic proper] name for a det. fem. inf. n., like الْبَدَّةُ , even if such an inf. n. has not been spoken, as though it were an abandoned o. f.; and similarly in كُنَّا ثَمَانِيَةً وَكَانُوا جَحْفَلًا * لَجَبًا فَشَكُوا بِالرِّمَاحِ بَدَّادٍ

by Ḥassān [Ibn Thābit, describing the day of Dhū Karad (SR)], *We were eight, and they were a noisy host:
and they were pierced with the spears, when dispersed*,

i. e. مُتَبَدِّدِينَ; for the d. s. may occur det. when it is an inf. n., as فَعَلَتْهُ جَهْدُكَ and طَاقَتْكَ and اِرْسَلَهَا الْعِرَاقُ

[78] (IY): (a) they say "[made to deviate from (AAz)] a det. fem. inf. n."; but to me no decisive evidence of its determination or feminization has yet presented itself : they hold, however, that it is [det. as being] one of the [generic] proper names for id. objects, like [^{بَرَّةٌ} , ^{زَوِيرٌ} [8], and ^{سُبْحَانُ} , ^{بَرَّةٌ} being a proper name for all goodness, and ^{فُجَّارٌ} for all wicked- ness (Akh)] ; and sometimes the femininization of the verbal n. and inf. n. is argued, upon the ground of uniformity, from the femininization of the ep. and personal proper name, which are fem., as will be seen ; but this argument is wonderful : (b) ^{فُجَّارٌ} is said to be det. in ^{إِنَّا اقْتَسَمْنَاهَا} [above] because of the determination of its companion, vid. ^{بَرَّةٌ} ; but this argument is like the 1st in strangeness, since assimilation of one word to another in determination or femininization notwithstanding that the word assimilated is not used det. or fem.

is a novelty : if indeed qualification of such as ^{فُجَّارٌ} by the det. fem., as ^{فُجَّارِ الْقَيْبِ حَتَّى} , were authentic, it would be a good argument for both matters, determination and femininization : (c) even if we admit [that ^{فُجَّارٌ} is det.], there is no evidence of the determinateness of its sisters ; and in their saying about the gazelles ^{إِنَّا دَرَرْنَاهُ الْمَاءَ فَلَا} ^{عَبَابٌ} ^{وَإِنَّا لَمْ تَرِدْ فَلَا أُبَابٌ} When they come down to the water, there is no drinking deeply ; and, when they come not down, there is no yearning (for it), i. e. ^{فَلَا} and ^{عَبَابٌ}

meaning ^{أَب} لَا نَزَاعَ إِلَيْهِ, and the saying of AlMutalammis قُولِي لَهَا جُمُودًا آخِ [above], i. e. قُولِي لَهَا جُمُودًا آخِ [as above], and the saying of the Arabs لَا مَسَاسِي No touching!
 [above], i. e. لَا مَسَّ, the indeterminateness is obvious :
 (d) according to those who hold that all the measures of فَعَال, imp., inf. n., ep., and proper name, are fem., they must, when used as [proper] names for a masc. [194], be diptote, like عَنَّا; whereas, according to the GG, they may be triptote, like صَبَاح; and this shows how the GG vacillate about their being fem. (R): (3) made to deviate from (M) a [fem. (IY, R) prevalent (Mb, IY)] ep., [which occupies the place of a substantive (149)
 (Mb) : this ep. does not occur in the masc., is always used without a qualified, and is moreover of two kinds (R),] (a) used [(a) in most cases (IY) only (IY, R)] in the voc., [according to hearsay (R),] as يَا فَسَّاق [56. A], يَا خَبِيثَةً, يَا فَاسِقَةً (Mb, M, R), i. e. يَا خَبِيثَةً, and يَا لَكَأَمْرٍ (Mb, R), because in the voc. it is in the position of a det. (Mb), since the voc. becomes det. by specific intention, like يَا رَجُلٌ in رَجُلٌ [48] ; (b) sometimes in the non-voc., by poetic license, as أَطْرَفُ [497] (IY) : (a) this فَعَال and the imp. فَعَال may be formed with universal regularity from every tril. [above] att.

[completely (MKh) plastic (MKh, MAd)] v., as نَزَالٌ, نَهَابٌ, and كَتَبٌ from نَزَلَ, ذَهَبَ, and كَتَبَ, and as زَنَى, فَجَرَ, and فَسَقَ from يَا زَنَّا, يَا فَجَارِ, and يَا فَسَاقِ : but not from such as اللُّصُوصِيَّةُ, because it has no v.; nor from such as دَحْرَجَ, اسْتَخْرَجَ, and انْطَلَقَ, because they exceed three letters, [such as ادْرَكَ from دَرَاكَ being confined to hearsay (MKh)]; nor from such as ظَلَّ, كَانَ, بَاتَ, and صَارَ, because they are non-att. (Sh); nor from such as نَعِمَ and بُئِسَ, [because they are aplastic] (MAd); nor from such as يَذُرُّ and يَدْعُ [482], because they are not completely plastic (MKh): (β) this kind, which is used only in the voc., does not occur as a generic proper name [7], i. e. does not, by prevalence of application to a [particular] qualified, become a proper name for it (R): (b) used in the non-voc., [which is of two kinds, (a) what by prevalence of application becomes a generic proper name, like اَسَامَةُ (7), which is the more numerous (R),] as حَلَاقٍ [and جَبَانٌ (M, R)] for Fate (Mb, M, R), made to deviate from حَالِقَةٌ and جَابِئَةٌ (AAz), orig. general eps. for all that shears and drags away, and afterwards, by prevalence of application, peculiar to the genus of The Fates

(R) ; and [similarly (R)] حَنَانٌ and بَرَّاحٌ for The sun [from الحَنْنُ roasting and البرَّاحُ setting (R)]; and سَبَابُ for Fever, [because of its spreading through the body, from الشَّعْرُ السَّيْبُ Lank hair (R)]; and [many others, like (R)] كَرَارٌ for The bead that the woman charms her husband with !, [which is named كَرَارٌ because by their assertion it restores the husband (R),] whence their saying يَا كَرَارُ كَرِّبْهُ اِنْ اَدْبَرَ فَرْدِيهِ وَاِنْ اَقْبَلَ فَسَرِّبْهُ O charm, restore him : if he depart, bring him back ; and, if he approach, make him glad ; and كَوَيْتُهُ وَقَاعٌ I branded him with the وَقَاعُ, which is [the proper name of (R)] a [particular (AAz)] brand upon the two haunches (M, R), or along the head from its front to its back (M), in the acc. as an inf. n. to كَرَيْتُهُ, i. e. كَيْتُهُ وَقَاعَةً meaning لَازِمَةٌ (R), whence

وَكُنْتُ اِذَا مَنِيتُ بِخَصْمٍ سَوْدٍ * فَلَقْتُ لَهٗ فَكْرِيهٖ وَقَاعِ
 (M), by 'Auf Ibn AlAhwas (IY, AAz), And I was wont, when I was tried by a foe of evil, to stalk up to him, and brand him indelibly (AAz); and فَشَّاحٌ, قَتَّامٌ, جَعَارٌ (R)] for the she-hyena [below] (Mb, R): these [expressions (IY), and their likes (R), (among which IY includes those given below under (b) except بَدَادٌ, which he places above among the inf. ns.), though orig. eps.

(IY),] are [used as (IY) generic (R)] proper names (IY, R); and are therefore det. (IY), as is proved by their qualification by the det., as حَنَازُ الصَّالِعَةِ The rising sun (R): and [(b) what remains an ep. (R),] as قَطَاط, [i. e. قَاطَةُ كَانِيَةِ (R),] whence

أَطَلْتُ فِرَاطَهُمْ حَتَّىٰ إِذَا مَا * قَتَلْتُ سَرَائِهِمْ كَانَتْ قَطَاطُ

[by 'Amr Ibn Ma'dikarib, when his mother had been killed by a tribe of the Arabs, I prolonged the period of my forbearance with their hasty deed, until, when I had slain their chiefs, it (the قَتْلُهُ slaughter) was sufficient for me (AAz)]; and سَبَبْتُ سَبَّةً تُكُونُ لِرَّامٍ I reproached him with a reproach that will be indelible, i. e. لَا زِمَةٌ; and لَا تَبِلُ فُلَانًا عِنْدِي بِلَالٍ, i. e. بَالَةٌ (M, R), meaning A bounty shall not light upon such an one near me, nor a benefit reach him from me; and وَالضَّيْلُ تَعْدُو النَّفْسَ [above], i. e. مُتَبَدِّدَةٌ مُتَفَرِّقَةٌ, so that it is a d. s. [78, 140] (R): (4) made to deviate from فَاعِلَةٌ in (M) a [personal (R) proper (M, R)] name [of a woman or fem. thing (Mb)], as حَنَاز [194], قَطَاط (Mb, M, R), دَقَاشِي (Mb), سَجَاج (R), and the like, made to deviate from حَاذِمَةٌ, قَاوِمَةٌ, etc., when used as names (Mb) for [certain (R)] women (M, R), سَجَاج

being for the woman [of the Banù Yarbū' (IY)] who set up for a Prophetess (M) in the time of Musailima (IY); كَسَاب [6] and خَطَاف for 2 bitches (M, R); قَتَام , جَعَار , and فَشَاف for the she-hyena [above]; سَكَاب and خَصَاف for 2 horses (M), خَصَاف for a stallion, as in the prov. اجرا Bolder than the gelder of Khaṣāf, because one of the kings [AlMundhir Ibn Imra alKais (KF)] demanded him for covering from his owner [a man of Bāhila, said by Abu-nNadā to have been Ḥamal Ibn Yazīd Ibn Dhuhl Ibn Tha'laba (Md)], who refused and castrated him [in the presence of that king (Md)], and سَكَاب for a mare (R); عَرَار for a cow (M, R), as in the prov. [applied to every pair of equals (Md, IY)] بَكَحَلْ عَرَارٍ بَكَحَلْ 'Arāri was slain for Kahl (M), they being 2 cows that gored each other to death (Md, IY); وَبَار and شَرَاف for 2 countries; and لَصَاف (M, R) for a mountain (M), an abode of the Banū Tamīm (IY, R), as قَدْ كُنْتُ النَّغْ [below]: (a) this kind [of proper name] is coined [4,194] because it is not made to deviate before its use as a proper name corresponding to an object, and afterwards transferred to the cat. of proper name; and the difference between this kind and the preceding one [3, b, a] is that in this kind the sense of qualificativity is lost sight of, whereas in the preceding one qualificativity is meant [194] (IY): (b) all (R) these expressions are fem. (Mb, R), even if the [person or thing] named by them be masc.; and in the saying

قَدْ كُنْتُ أَحْسِبُكُمْ اسْرَدَ خَفِيَّةً * فَإِذَا لَصَافٍ تَبْيَضُ فِيهِ الْحَمَرُ

I have been wont to account you to be lions of a thicket ; and lo ! in Laṣāf the larks lay eggs ! the pron. of لَصَافٍ is made masc. because it is renderable by the مَوْضِع ; and there is another version فِيهَا , [as in the Bk and IY] :

(c) sometimes such fems. as these are used as names for a man, like سَعَادٌ and زَيْنَبٌ (R).

§ 194. IM says in the Tashīl “ They are agreed “ that [the ل of] فَعَالٌ , when an imp., inf. n., d. s., or “ ep. used as a proper name or only as a voc., is pronounced with Kasr ; and each of them is made to deviate “ from a fem.: so that, if one of them be used as a [proper] name for a masc. [193], it is like عَنَّاقٌ ”, i. e. diptote ; “ but is sometimes made like صَبَاحٌ ”, i. e. triptote: “ and, if it be used as a [proper] name for a fem., “ it is like رَقَاشِي [193] ” (YS). [The ل of] فَعَالٌ in the imp. is pronounced with Fath by the Banū Asad (R, Sh), for affinity to the ل and Fatha before it (Sh). The inf. ns. and eps. are uninfl. by common consent, because of their resemblance to the imp. فَعَالٌ [159] in measure and intensiveness [193]. The generic proper names ought to be infl., because the uninfl. word, when used as a [proper] name for something other than its form, must be infl., as when a person is named ^{أَبِي}أَبِي; [and may not be imitated, as when it is used as a (proper) name for the form (191), because in the former case you do not observe its original meaning, on account of which it is orig. uninfl., but totally exclude it therefrom, whereas, when you make it a (proper) name for the form, you do observe its meaning in some respect, since the meaning of ^{أَبِي}أَبِي ^{أَبِي}أَبِي ^{أَبِي}أَبِي is ^{أَبِي}أَبِي, whose meaning is verification, governs the nom. and acc. (R on the proper name)] : but they are uninfl. because the generic proper names [7] are [only] lit. proper names, [which have the predicament of proper names in letter, such as diptote declension, anarthrousness, and prefixion of ^{أَب}أَب and ^{أُم}أُم, as in the surnames of human beings, and occur as ss. s., and are qualified by dets., but notwithstanding all this are applicable to the indet. (R on the proper name)] ; so that the sense of qualification remains in all of them [193], since they are prevalent quals. (R). As for the [personal (R)] proper names [of fems., they have 3 dial. vars. (Sh):] (1) according to the people of AlHijāz, they are uninfl. (R, Sh) upon Kasr, unrestrictedly, [i. e. whether they end in ^{أَب}أَب or not (YS),] as

إِذَا قَالَتْ حَذَامٌ فَصَدَّقْتُهَا * فَإِنَّ الْقَوْلَ مَا قَالَتْ حَذَامٌ

(Sh), by Lujaim Ibn Ṣaʿb, When Ḥadhām (the wife of the poet) says a saying, then believe ye her: for verily the true saying is what Ḥadhām has said (Jsh): their making these names uninfl. is contrary to analogy, since qualification has no meaning in them, so that the uninflectedness belonging to them in the state of qualification might be observed; but, seeing that there is no contradiction between qualification and the quality of proper name as respects the sense, they make them uninfl. like the quals., although they are coined [193], not transferred from quals., in order to treat them like the proper name transferred from the qual., because it is more numerous than the other (R): (2) according to a few of the Banū Tamīm, they are infl. as diptotes (R, Sh), unrestrictedly (Sh), in conformity with analogy, being infl. because denuded of the sense of qualification, and diptote because of the quality of proper name and femininization in them [18] (R): (3) according to most of them [and to their chaste speakers (R)], they are uninfl. [upon Kasr (Sh), with a view to Imāla (634) (R),] if they end in ,; and diptote if they do not end in , (R, Sh): the poet says مَتَى تَرْدُنِ الْعَجَّ [64]; and AlAʿshà [Maimūn Ibn Kaïs (MAd), whose abode was in AlYamāma with the Banū Tamīm (IY),] says, combining the two Tamīm dials.,

أَلَمْ تَرَدِّي أَرْمًا وَعَادَا * أَوْدَى بِهَا اللَّيْلُ وَالنَّهَارُ
وَمَرَّ دَهْرٌ عَلَى وَبَارٍ * فَهَلَكْتَ جَهْرَةً وَبَارٍ

(Sh) Saw ye not Iram and 'Ad? The night and the day destroyed them. And a time passed over Wabār, and Wabār perished openly (AAz).

§ 195. هِيَهَات is pronounced with Fath of the ه [in the dial. of the people of AlHijāz (M)], Kasr [in the dial. of Asad and Tamīm (M)], and Damm [by some of the Arabs (M)]. Sometimes its [1st (R, AAz)] ه is changed into Hamza, [also with triple vocalization of the ه (R)]; and sometimes it is pronounced with Tanwīn (M, R) in these 6 dial. vars. (R). It is read with all 3 vowels [in XXIII. 38. (504), with and without Tanwīn (K, B) : for Fath is the general well-known reading, and with Tanwīn is transmitted from AlA'raj; Kasr without Tanwīn is the reading of Abū Ja'far athThakafi, and with Tanwīn is read by IIU; and Damm with Tanwīn is the reading of Abū Haiwa, and without Tanwīn is said to be read by Ka'nab (IY)]: the poet says

تَذَكَّرْتُ أَيَّامًا مُضِيًّا مِنْ الصَّبِيِّ
فَهِيَهَاتِ هِيَهَاتِ إِلَيْكَ رُجُوعُهَا

[Thou hast called to mind days of boyhood that have passed : then far, far off is their return to thee ! (AAz)]: and the saying of the poet [describing camels (IY)]

يُصْبِحْنَ بِالْقَفَرَاءِ نَارِيَاتٍ * هِيَهَاتِ مِنْ مُصْبِحِهَا هِيَهَاتِ

[They become in the desert wending their way : far, far off is their place, or time, of entering upon the morning !, ^أ being red. (AAz),] is related with Damm of the 1st and Kasr of the 2nd (M). Some make the ^ت quiescent [even in continuity (R), as ^أهَيْهَاتَ هَيْهَاتَ, which is read {in XXIII. 38. (K, B)} by 'Isà alHamdānī, and is a version transmitted from IAl (IY)]; some elide the ^ت, [as ^أهَيْهَاتَ (IY, R); some make it a ^ن (M), as ^أهَيْهَان (IY)]; and some say ^أهَيْهَاتَ, [^أهَيْهَاتَ with Tanwīn (R),] ^أهَيْهَاتَ [with the ^ك of allocution (IY, R)], and ^أهَيْهَان (M, R) with a Hamza and ^ن both pronounced with Fath, but, as the author of the Mughnī says, with a ^ن pronounced with Kasr (R). Sgh cites 36 dial. vars. of it, ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ, ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ, and ^أهَيْهَان and ^أهَيْهَان, each of these six pronounced with Damm, Fath, or Kasr of the final, and each [of these 18] pronounced with or without Tanwīn; and others cite ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ, ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ, and ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ (A), making the total 42; and the KF adds 13 others, ^أهَيْهَاتَ and ^أهَيْهَاتَ, and ^أهَيْهَان and ^أهَيْهَان, with Kasr of the ^ن because of the 2 quiescents, and with triple vocalization of the final, and ^أهَيْهَاتَ with charge of the two ^هs into Hamzas (Sn). According to

[some of (R)] the GG, (1) the one pronounced with Fatḥ [of the ء (IY, R)] is sing. [646], its ء denoting femininization, and its o. f. being هَيْهَيْهَ ; (2) the one pronounced with Kasr [of the ء (R)] is the [sound (IY)] pl. of the one pronounced with Fatḥ, its o. f. being هَيْهَيْهَ [234], and its ُ being then elided (M, R), because it is indecl.; (3) the one pronounced with Damm of the ء may be sing. or pl.: but this is all imagination and conjecture. The ء is pronounced with Fatḥ in most cases, from regard to its o. f. when it was an unrestricted obj. [187, 199]; with Kasr because of the two quiescents [664]; and with Damm to notify by the strength of the vowel the strength of the meaning of farness in it, since its meaning is How far (he, or it) is! [187] (R). When pronounced with Damm, it is written, according to F, with the ء; but, according to IJ, with the 8 (A).

§ 196. اِفْتَرَقَ شَتَانُ is i. q. [187] with wonder, i. e. How different!; and therefore requires two ags., like اِفْتَرَقَ شَتَانُ زَيْدٌ وَعُمَرُو as اِفْتَرَقَ شَتَانُ زَيْدٌ وَعُمَرُو How different are Zaid and Amr! (R). مَا may be redundantly inserted [after it (R), before the ag. (Sh), as اِفْتَرَقَ شَتَانُ مَا زَيْدٌ وَعُمَرُو (565) (R), whence

شَتَانُ مَا نَوْمِي عَلَى كُورِهَا * وَنَوْمُ حَيَّانٍ أَخِي جَابِرٍ

(Sh), by Al A'shà, How different are my sleep upon her saddle in the desert and the sleep of Hayyān the brother of Jābir ! (MAd)]. And شَتَانُ مَا بَيْنَ زَيْدٍ وَعَمْرٍو is said [in the less frequent and less chaste usage (R)], as

لَشَتَانُ مَا بَيْنَ الْيَزِيدِيِّ فِي النَّدَى
يَزِيدٍ سَلِيمٍ وَالْأَعْرَابِيِّ حَاتِمٍ

(R, Sh), by Rabī'a [Ibn Thābit alAsadi (IKhn)] arRakkī, [(By God,) how different are, or how far is that (distance) which is between (MKh), or how far is the separation of (MAd), the two Yazīds in munificence (MKh, MAd), Yazīd Ibn Usaīd of Sulaim and the illustrious Yazīd Ibn Hātīm (MAd) alMuhallabī ! (IY, IKhn),] this being allowable upon the ground that [مَا بَيْنَ is red., and الْيَزِيدِيُّ an ag. constructively in the nom. ; or that (MKh)] شَتَانُ is i. q. بَعْدُ , because the latter does not require two or more ags., and مَا [conjunct (MKh),] a met. for الْبَرِّ of الْمَسَافَةِ , [ag. of شَتَانُ (MKh),] i. e. How far is that (interval or distance) which is between them ! ; or that شَتَانُ is i. q. بَعْدُ ; and مَا red., as it is without بَيْنَ , and بَيْنَ ag. of شَتَانُ , in accordance with the opinion of Akh on يَفْصُلُ بَيْنَكُمْ LX. 3. Your union shall be severed, where بَيْنَكُمْ [159], says he, is the subject, but is not put into the

nom. from disapproval of its exclusion from the acc. permanently belonging to it in most of its usage (R). It is disallowed, however, by As (R, Sh), who says that the poem is post-classical, because he holds that شَتَّانُ is du. of شَتُّ separate, an enunc. of what follows it, [not a verbal n. i. q. اِفْتَرَقَ (YS, MAd),] he being misled by two things, a dial. var. with Kasr of the ن [187] and the fact that the nom. after it is only a du. or i. q. the du., not a pl., [the last three in شَتَّانُ هَذَا الْآنَ (187) being in the predicament of one, i. e. شَتَّانُ هَذَا وَذَاكَ (AAz)]; whereas, if it were i. q. اِفْتَرَقَ, the pl. might occur as ag. of it : but the chaster dial. var. with Fath of the ن falsifies his opinion ; and also, if شَتَّانُ were an enunc., it might be posterior to the inch., since there is nothing to necessitate its priority [28], whereas it has not been heard posterior (R). But, as for the saying of a post-classical poet

جَازَيْتُمُونِي بِالْوَصَالِ قُطَيْعَةً * شَتَّانَ بَيْنَ صَنِيعِكُمْ وَصَنِيعِي

[Ye have requited me for union with estrangement : how far is the separation of your dealing and my dealing !, بَيْنَ being ag. of شَتَّانُ, the construction in (MAd)] it was not used by the Arabs ; and it is sometimes explained by subaudition of مَا conjoined with بَيْنَ, [i. e.

how far is that (distance) which is between your etc. (MKh), مَ being an ag. (MAd),] according to the saying of the KK that suppression of the conjunct [n. other than اَلْ (MAd)] is allowable [177] (Sh).

§ 197. اِف has the following dial. vars., (1) اِفْ ; (2) اِفْ ; (3) اِفْ ; (4) اِفْ ; (5) اِنَا [187]; (6) اِفْ (M, R, KF); (7) اِفْ ; (8) اِفْ (M, R), sometimes followed by تَفْ, as اِفْ و تَفْ (R); (9) اِفْ (M); (10) اِفْ (R); but I do not know اِفْ [41] with the ة of feminization [as a verbal n.]; and, if it does occur, how rare it is! (IY); (11) اِفْ (KF); (12) اِفْ (IY, KF), read by Ibn 'Abbās (IY); (13) اِفْ ; (14) اِفْ ; (15) اِنَا ; (16) اِفْ ; (17) اِفْ (KF); (18) اِفْ ; (19-21) اِنِي [with the ا of feminization (IY, KF), upon the measure of فَعْلَى (IY),] pronounced [without Imāla (KF),] with [pure (KF)] Imāla (IY, R, KF), and betwixt and between (KF); (22) اِنِي (IY, KF) with Kasr (KF), said by the vulgar (IY); (23) اِفْ ; (24) اِفْ ; (25) اِفْ ; (26) اِفْ ; (27) اِفْ (KF); (28) اِفْ (R, KF); (29) اِفْ ; (30) اِفْ ; (31) اِفْ ; (32) اِفْ ; (33) اِنَا ; (34) اِنَا ; (35) اِنَا ; (36) اِفْ ; (37) اِنَا, like اِنَا ;

(38) اَفًّ with Imāla ; (39) اَفًّ with Kasr ; (40) اَفًّ ;
 (41) اَفًّ ; (42) اَفًّ ; (43) اَفًّ ; (44) اَفًّ (KF). It is uninfl. upon Kasr because of the concurrence of two quiescents ; and its Tanwīn in the reading of Nāfi' and Ḥafṣ denotes indeterminateness [198] : Ibn Kathīr, Ibn
 'Āmir, and Ya'kūb read with Faṭḥ, by way of allevia-tion ; and it is so read with Tanwīn : and it is read with Ḍamm for alliteration, like مُنْذُ [203], with and without Tanwīn (B on XVII. 24).

§ 198. IM says in the CK that, since these words are vs. as respects the sense, but ns. as respects the letter, they are made det. and indet., the sign of the det. being its divestment of Tanwīn [187], and the sign of the indet.
 being its use with Tanwīn ; and that, since pure ns. are [of three kinds,] always det., like the prons. and dems., always indet., like أَحَدٌ, عَرِيبٌ, and دِيَارٌ, and sometimes
det. and sometimes indet., like رَجُلٌ and فَرَسٌ, so (A) these ns. are [of three kinds (M),] (1) always det., like [نَزَالٌ (193) (A),] بَلَّةٌ [192], and آمِينٌ [187] : (2) always indet., like اِيْهَا in restraint (M),] وَيْهَا [in instigation
 (M),] and وَاَهَا [187] (M, A) in wonder ; and hence فِدَاءٌ لِّكَ فُلَانٌ with Kasr and Tanwīn, i. e. لِيَفْدِكَ, as

مَهْلًا فِدَاءَ لِكَ الْأَقْرَامِ كُلِّهِمْ * وَمَا أَثْمَرُ مِنْ مَالٍ وَمِنْ وَلَدٍ

(M), by AnNābigha adhDhubyānI, Gently, let the peoples, all of them, and what I muster of wealth and of children, ransom thee! (ABk), ^{أَلْقُوا} being in the nom. as ag. of ^{فَدَا}, because it is i. q. ^{أَيْفَدَكَ} (IY): (a) ^{إِيَّاهَا} may be an ej. acting as a substitute for the inf. n., infl., governed in the acc. like ^{سَقِيًّا} [41], meaning ^{كَفَا}, [in which case the Tanwīn is the Tanwīn of complete declension,] as ^{إِيَّاهَا} ^{عَنَا} Desist from troubling us; or a verbal n. uninfl., in which case the Tanwīn is [the Tanwīn of indeterminateness,] like that which is in ^{صَمَةً} [below]: and similarly every Tanwīn after such of these ns. as are pronounced with Fath [of the final] admits of the two alternatives, as ^{وَيْدَا} [188], ^{حَيْهَلَا} [191], and ^{وَيْهَلَا} (R): (b) IS says that ^{إِيَّاهَا} without Tanwīn is allowable, but rare (IY, R): (c) sometimes the Hamza of ^{إِيَّاهَا} [below] and ^{إِيَّاهَا} is changed into ʾ, as ^{هَيْهَلَا} and ^{هَيْهَلَا} (R): (d) ^{فَدَا} is uninfl. because of its occurrence in the place of the imp. v. [159], i. e. ^{أَيْفَدَكَ}; and is pronounced with Kasr because of the concurrence of two quiescents [664] (IY): (3) used in two ways (A), det. and indet. (M), being divested of Tanwīn when intended to be det., and pronounced with Tanwīn when intended to be indet. (A), like ^{صَمَةً} and ^{صَمَةً} [187, 200], ^{أَفَّ} and ^{أَفَّ} [197] (M,

A), اِيَهُ and اِيَهُ [187, 200], غَاقٍ and غَاقٍ [200] (M): (a) As asserts that the Arabs use only اِيَهُ with Tanwīn, and charges Dhu-rRumma with error in saying وَقَفْنَا [187] (IY, R); and IS says that he intends Tanwīn, since his meaning is Tell a story, whatever story it be, about Umm Sālim, but that he omits it by poetic license (R). The Tanwīn affixed to these ej̄s. only distinguishes between the det. and indet. [608], not being found in a det. at all; and only follows the vowels of uninflectedness, not being like the Tanwīn of زَيْدٍ [and رَجُلٍ], which follows the vowels of inflection in the det. and indet. (IY). What IM mentions [above] is the well-known opinion; but some hold that all the verbal ns., with or without Tanwīn, are det. with the determination of the generic proper name [187] (A).

§ 199. Among the verbal ns. are adv. and their likes, governing in the gen. a pron. mostly of the 2nd pers., anomalously and seldom of the 3rd, as in the saying عَلَيْهِ شَخْصًا لِّيسْنِي [164] and the saying of the Prophet مَنِ اشْتَهَى مِنْكُمْ الْبَاءَةَ فَعَلَيْهِ بِالصَّوْمِ فَإِنَّ لَهُ وَجْهًا Whoso of you lusteth after copulation, let him keep to fasting, for verily it hath the effect of gelding by compression of the two testicles (R). IM says in the CK that this sort is not used except conjoined with the pron. of the 2nd

pers.; and that عَلَيَّ الشَّيْءُ i. q. لَيْلِزَم [164], عَلَيْهِ رَجُلًا i. q. اَرَلَيْهِ, and اِلَيَّ i. q. اَتَنْصَحِي are anomalous: but his language in the Tashil implies that these are not anomalous (A). لَدَيْكَ, عِنْدَكَ, and نُونَكَ mean Take. The o. f. is عِنْدَكَ زَيْدٌ فَخُذْهُ Beside thee is Zaid: then take him, and similarly لَدَيْكَ زَيْدٌ and نُونَكَ زَيْدٌ, what follows them being put into the nom. as an inch.; but afterwards it is abridged from the nominal and subsequent verbal prop. to the adv., which is then so often used that it becomes i. q. خُذْ, and therefore governs with its government: while the *adv.*s. are uninfl. upon Fath, because it is the vowel appropriate to them in their o. f. when they were *adv.*s., as we said of the inf. ns. that become verbal ns. [188, 195]; and they have no place [in inflection], like those inf. ns., because they act as substitutes for what has no place [187] (R). وَرَاكَ means Keep back, and اَمَامَكَ Advance (R, A) or Be on thy guard from the direction of thy front: but these may be said to remain *adv.*s., since they do not govern an obj. in the aco. [but see § 187], like عِنْدَكَ and لَدَيْكَ; and in that case the full phrase is اِسْتَقِرَّ اَمَامَكَ and وَرَاكَ [498] (R). And مَكَانَكَ means اَثْبَتْ اَمَامَكَ [420] (IY, A), so that it is intrans. (Sn), as مَكَانَكُمْ اَنْتُمْ

۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰
 ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ X. 29. Stand fast, ye and your partners, like ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اثبتوا انتم الّٰه [158] (IY); and the KK transmit it as trans.,
 e. g. ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ مَكَانَكَ زَيْدًا Wait for Zaid, i. e. ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ : but Dm says " I know not what need there is to make this sort of
 " adv. a verbal n., nor why they do not make it an adv.;
 " for the assertion of the verbal n. is good only where
 " the combination of that [n.] and that v. is impossible,
 " as in ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ صَا , ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَلَيْكَ , and ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ إِلَيْكَ , not where it is possible ;
 " whereas ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اثبت مَكَانَكَ and ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اَمَامَكَ may be said, but
 " not ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اَسْكُتْ صَا , etc" (Sn). And ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَلَيْكَ زَيْدًا is said [187], meaning Take Zaid, orig. ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اخذْهُ ; and ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ إِلَيْكَ
 ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ ضُمَّ عِلْقَكَ إِلَيْكَ وَتَنَحَّ عَنْيَ , orig. ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ غَاثِرْ ثِيَابَكَ ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَنْيَ Gather thy be- ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ longings to thee, and withdraw from me, and afterwards abridged, as we have mentioned: and Akh heard a man say ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اِلَيَّ meaning ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اَتَنَحَّى I will withdraw [187] , which is an anomalous enunciation contrary to the rule of the cat., since the rule of the adv. and their likes is to be imps., so that ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَلَيَّ and ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ دُونِي are not said by analogy to it ;
 and, as for ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَلَيَّ meaning ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ اُولِنِي Present to me, it is contrary to rule in another respect, since it is an imp., but the pron. governed in the gen. by it is in the sense of the obj., as ۸۰۰۰۰۰۰۰ عَلَيَّ زَيْدًا meaning Bring him near to me [187], whereas the rule is that the gen. should be an ag.; and Akh heard ^{عَلَى} ^{عَبْدِ} ^{اللَّهِ} ^{زَيْدًا} meaning Bring Zaid near to 'Abd Allāh, which is more anomalous than ^{عَلَى}, because ^{عَلَى} governs the explicit n. in the gen. And Ks allows instigation by all the adv. of place and preps. regularly; but others restrict it to hearsay, which is the proper way (R). IM says in the CK that there is a dispute about the pron. attached to these words, its position being that of (1) a nom. [as an ag. (Sn)], according to Fr ; (2) an acc. [as an obj. (Sn)], according to Ks, [the ag. being latent, as ^{عَلَيْكَ} ^{زَيْدًا} meaning ^{الزَّم} ^{نَفْسَكَ} ^{زَيْدًا} Keep thyself to Zaid (Sn)]; (3) a gen. [by prothesis in such as ^{دُونَكَ}, and by the p. in such as ^{عَلَيْكَ} (Sn)], according to the BB, which is the correct opinion, because Akh quotes ^{عَلَى} ^{عَبْدِ} ^{اللَّهِ} ^{زَيْدًا} from chaste-speaking Arabs : [but in the first two opinions what is after the transfer to the cat. of verbal n. is regarded, and in the last what was before the transfer (Sn)]. And, in addition to that [ك in the position of a gen. (Sn)], with every one of these [verbal] ns. there is a latent pron. in the position of a nom. as an ag., so that in corroboration you may say ^{عَلَيْكُمْ} ^{مَعَكُمْ} ^{زَيْدًا} ^{كُلُّكُمْ} with the gen. as a corrob. of the present gen., or the nom. as a corrob. of the latent nom.; [and similarly, when we say that the ك is in the position of an acc., ^{مَعَكُمْ} ^{كُلُّكُمْ} is allowable;

whereas, when we say that it is in the position of a nom., it is itself the ag. (Sn)].

§ 200. The ejaculatory n. is what is applied to (1) the address of the irrational, or of what is in the predicament of the irrational, such as the young of human beings; (2) the imitation of sounds: so [says IM] in the CK (A). The expressions that the GG name ejs. are of three kinds, (1) imitations of sounds proceeding from (a) dumb animals, like غَاقٍ [below]; (b) inanimate substances, alike طَقٍ [below]: (2) sounds uttered from the mouths of human beings, and naturally indicative of meanings in their minds, like أَفٌ and تَفٌ; for he that is disgusted at anything utters from his breast a sound [Ugh!] resembling the expression أَفٌ, and from him that spits upon a disgusting thing proceeds a sound resembling تَفٌ: (3) cries wherewith animals are cried to when something is required from them, (a) coming, like جَوْتٌ; (b) going, like هَلٌّ; (c) some other matter, like سَأٌ for drinking: but I see nothing to prevent our hazarding the conjecture that these cries, with which the brutes are cried to, are verbal ns. i. q. the imp., as some hold; because God has made the brutes like rational beings in understanding what is required from them. The three kinds are named ejs. because they are orig. simple or disconnected sounds, not words indicative of meanings. Afterwards, being wanted for use in the middle of the sentence, they are treated like words ; and co-ordinated with the noblest of words, i. e. ns., the better to indicate their inclusion among the apparent kinds of words : so that the Tanwīn is affixed to some of them, as غَاقِي and أَف [198]; أَل is prefixed to some [187], vid. when the expression, not the meaning, of the ej. is intended, as بِاسْمِ الْمَلِكِ [123] and كَمَا زَعَمَ بِالْجَوْرِ [below]; some are made to mean i. q. inf. ns., as أَف لَكَ, i. e. كَرَاهَةً لَكَ ; and some are governed in the acc. like inf. ns., as وَهَذَا لَكَ, i. e. طَيْبًا [198]: and what some GG say, vid. that the Tanwīn of غَاقِي [below] denotes indeterminateness [198], is of no account, since determinateness and indeterminateness have no meaning [187] in it ; nor is there anything to prevent your saying the like of this about such as ضَمٌ and أَيْه, because such as ضَمٌ is orig. an ej.; and then we shall be relieved from the difficulty of explaining the Tanwīn in the two preceding ways [187] (R). The ejaculatory ns. are [all (IA)] uninfl. (R, IA), because they are orig. simple sounds not entitled to construction, which is the requirer of inflection [159]; or because some of them are constituted like ps., i. e. of 2 letters, as is said (R); [or] because they resemble the verbal ns. (IA). When they occur constructed, they may be infl.: Jahm Ibn Al'Abbas says

تَرَدُّ بِحَيْهَلٍ دَعَايَ وَ إِنَّمَا * مِنَ الْعَاجِ وَالْحَيْهَلِ جَنُّونُهَا
She is driven back with "Make haste" and "Get along"; and her madness is only inflamed from the "Get along"
and the "Make haste"; and the poet [Dhu-rRumma (AAz)] says تَدَاعَيْنِ النَّحْ [123]: but another ['Uwaif alKawāfi (FA) alFazāri (T)] says

دَعَاهُنَّ رَدْنِي قَارَعَوِينَ اَصْوْتَهُ
 كَمَا زَعَمَتْ بِالْجَوْتِ الظَّمَاءُ الصَّرَادِيَا

[He that rode behind me called them (certain women) ;
and they forbore at his voice, (and returned to him,) as thou urgest with the جَوْتُ the thirsty parched (camels towards the water) (AAz)], by imitation notwithstanding the ا and ل ; and you say زَجَرْتَهُ بِهِدٍ or بِهِدٍ I chid him with عِيدٌ [below], as you say in the case of ps. اَنْ لَوْا لَا يُحَدُّ اِلَاةٌ uninfl. n. [191], and in the case of the بَإَيْنِ or تَعَالَى بَإَيْنِ God (exalted be He!) is not limited by "Where?" : and with the ل inflection is more frequent than uninflectedness, as مِنَ الْعَاجِ وَالْحَيْهَلِ with the gen. and بِأَسْمِ الشَّيْبِ, because the ل removes the n.
from resemblance to the p. [2] ; but the ا and ل do not necessitate inflection, as is proved by اَلَا [206] and

الَّذِي [176]: whereas, when the Tanwīn is affixed to these ns., then, if their expressions be intended by them, as in بَدِيهٍ و عَاجٍ, they must be infl., because it is then the Tanwīn of declinability; but, if it be affixed to them without this intention, as in غَاقٍ [above] and صَـ, they are uninfl., because it is the Tanwīn of coordination and correspondence, not the Tanwīn of declinability. Among the ejs. that are imitations of the sounds of human beings, dumb animals, or inanimate substances, are (1) طَيْغٍ the imitation of the sound of the laughter; (2) غَاقٍ or غَاقٍ the croak of the raven; (3) شَيْبٍ the imitation of the sound of the lips of camels in drinking; (4) مَآءٍ the cry of the doe-gazelle when she calls her young one; (5) طَلَقٍ and طَلَقٍ imitations of the sound of the fall of stones one upon another. Among the ejs. wherewith the brutes are cried to are (1) هَلَا for chiding horses, i.e. Step out, and sometimes used to chide the she-ohmel also; (2) عَدَسٍ for chiding the mule, and sometimes used as a name for a mule, both admissible in عَدَسٍ أَلْفٍ [83], except that the pause upon the س strengthens the opinion that it is for chiding; (3) هَيْدٍ with four dial. vars., and هَادٍ with Fath of the د for chiding camels; (4) جَوَدٍ for calling camels to drink ; (5) عَاج or عَاج for chiding the she-camel ; (6) سَا and تَشْوُ for calling the he-ass to water. And among the ejs. indicative of states in the mind of the speaker are (1) دِي , which denotes repentance or wonder [187] : (a) according to Fr, the o. f. of دِيل is دِي ; and the ل is a prep., the o. f. being لَك دِي , i.e. عَجَبًا لَك I wonder at thee ! ; but is afterwards so frequently used [with دِي] as to be compounded with it and become the ل of the v., so that they say دِيلًا and دِيل : while others hold دِيل , دِيم , ديس , and ديب to be distinct words meaning destruction, and to be inf. ns. having no vs. [41] : (b) the saying دِيلَمَة [84] is related with (a) Damm of the ل , in which case the o. f. is either (a) دِيل اَمَة , The destruction of his mother (is realized) ! , an inch. whose enunc. is suppressed, i. e. هَلَاكَهَا , حَاصِل , meaning God destroy her ! , as قَاتَلَ اللّهُ God fight against him ! is said in wonder, because the thing, when it reaches its extreme, is cursed as a protection from the fatal eye ; while the Hamza is then irregularly elided [658] for alleviation, since دِيلَمَة becomes like one word importing the meaning of عَجَبًا : or (β) دِي لَامَة , I marvel at his mother, (what a child she has borne)!, i.e. عَجَبًا لَهَا أَيَّ ^{وَدٍّ} وَلَدَتْ, the Damma of the Hamza being then irregularly transferred to the mobile ج, and the Hamza elided for alleviation, because the composition mentioned is intended : (b) Kasr of the ج, in which case its o. f. is ^{وَيَّ} لَامَةً, and the Hamza is then elided with its Damma : (c) ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّ, as in ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّكَانَ اللَّهُ, XXVIII. 82. [below], is, according to Khl and S, ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّ denoting wonder compounded with ^{وَيَّ} كَان [denoting comparison (B)], uncontracted, as in the text, or contracted [525], as in ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّكَانَ مِنْ الْخ [187] ; but in this saying there is a sort of obscurity in the meaning, because the meaning of comparison is not plain in such as ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّكَانَ اللَّهُ يَبْسُطُ الرِّزْقَ, XXVIII. 82. [above] I marvel because, or verily [187], God enlargeth subsistence, ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّكَانَ الْخ, XXVIII. 82. [509], and ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّكَانَ [187] : while Fr says that ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّ is a word of wonder, which has the ك of allocution affixed to it, as in ^{وَيَّ} عَجَبًا مِّنْكَ and ^{وَيَّ} وَيَّلَكَ [187], i.e. قِيلَ الْفَوَاسِي وَيَّكَ الْخ I wonder at thee, and ^{وَيَّ} أُن added to it ; and that the meaning of XXVIII. 82. [509] is Hast thou not seen that the unthankful etc?, as though the person addressed were asserting that they did prosper, and the speaker thereupon said to him I marvel at thee, and then, being asked "Wherefore marvellest thou at him?", went on to say that [meaning because (K)] the unthankful prosper not; so that the prep. [ل (K)] is suppressed with اُنْ and اُنْ, as is the rule [514]: and he mentions, as evidence of its meaning Hast thou not seen?, that, when an Arab woman of the desert asked her husband "Where is thy son?", he said ^{اِنَّهُ وَّرَاءَ الْبَيْتِ} وَيَكْ اِنَّهُ وَّرَاءَ الْبَيْتِ meaning Hast thou not seen that he is behind the tent?; and that, since the meaning of ^{يَكْ} وَيَكْ becomes Hast thou not seen?, the ك of allocution is not altered for the fem., du., or pl., but keeps to one state: and this that Fr says is more probable as respects the meaning: (2) اَفْ and اَوْهْ, both mentioned among the verbal ns. [187, 197]: (3) بَخْ, a word said upon admiration and pleasure at the thing; and repeated for intensiveness, as ^{بَخْ} بَخْ ^{بَخْ}: (a) if it be continuous, the خ may be single or double, being in either case pronounced with Kasr and Tanwin, as says the poet, combining the two,

رَوَافِدُهُ اَكْرَمُ الرَّوَافِدَاتِ * بَخْ لَكَ بَخْ لِبَحْرِ خَضَمٍّ

Its rafters are the most generous of rafters. Bravo to thee! Bravo to a munificent ocean of bounty!: (b) when explained by the ل, it is used as an inf. n., as before shown [187]: (4) أَخ and كَيْخ, [a word said upon disgust (AAz),] which, in the saying of the poet [Al'Ajjāj (AAz)]

لَا خَيْرَ فِي الشَّيْخِ إِذَا مَا جَخَّ * وَسَلَّ غُرْبُ عَيْنِهِ وَلَخَّ
وَأَثْنَتِ الرَّجُلُ فَصَارَتْ فَخًا * وَصَارَ وَضَلُ الْغَانِيَاتِ أَخًا

[There is no good in the old man when he lets his water run, and the duct of his eye flows and fills with tears, and the leg bends and becomes curved like a snare, and the union of the blooming maids becomes loathsome (AAz)], also related كَخَّ, is treated like the inf. n., and is therefore infl., being an inf. n. i. q. the pass. part., i. e. مَكْرُوهًا (R).

THE UNINFLECTED ADVERBS.

§ 201. Some advs. [64] are uninfl. [159] (Sh, Jm), not all (Jm) : upon quiescence, like اَنْ [204] ; Fath, like اَلَا [206] ; Kasr, like اَمْسِي [206] ; and Damm, like حَيْثُ [202] (Sh). Among the [uninfl. (Jm)] advs. is that [adv. (Jm)] which is cut off from prothesis [by suppression of the post. in letter, not in intention (Jm)], like قَبْلُ and بَعْدُ (IH). The advs. heard cut off from prothesis [115], are قَدَامُ , اَمَامُ , فَوْقُ , تَحْتُ , بَعْدُ , قَبْلُ , مِّنْ عَلُوٍّ , مِّنْ عِلٍّ , اَوَّلُ , دُونَ , اَسْفَلَ , خَلْفُ , وَرَاءُ , and اَخْرَ , شَمَالُ , يَمِينُ , etc., are not treated analogously to them. The post. [n. or prop.] is suppressed, if the suppressed be represented post. to a n. in apposition with the 1st pre., as اَلَا عِلَالَةُ اَوْ [128] : whereas, if it be not represented, it is not suppressed, except from what is indicative of a relative matter, which is not complete without something else, like قَبْلُ , بَعْدُ , and their sisters mentioned, and كُلُّ , بَعْضُ , and اَنْ ; nor even from this, except when there exists a context to specify that suppressed. These advs., when cut off from the post., are uninfl. because of their resemblance to the p. [159] in their need [497] of the sense of that suppressed. As for ^{أَإِ} ^{حَيْثُ}, ^{أَإِ}, and ^{أَإِ} [159], although they are pre. to the props. present after them, still their prothesis is not apparent, since the prefixion is really to the inf. ns. of those props., so that [they are uninfl. because] the post. is as it were suppressed; and, since the TanwIn in ^{بَعْضُ} and ^{كُلُّ} is substituted for the post. [128, 608], they are not uninfl., because the post. is as it were expressed through the expression of its substitute. In these advs. uninflectedness is preferred to compensation, because advs. have little or no plasticity [64], and aplasticity is akin to uninflectedness, since the meaning of the latter is inflectional aplasticity; but TanwIn as a compensation for the post. is also allowable, though rare, in these advs., which are then infl., as وَنَحْنُ قَتَلْنَا الْأَزْدَ الْأَزْدَ شَنْوَةَ * فَمَا شَرَبُوا بَعْدًا عَلَى لَذَّةِ خَمْرٍ

And we slew the Azd, the Azd of Shanū'a; and after (that) they drank not wine with relish and

فَسَاغَ لِيَ الشَّرَابُ وَكُنْتُ قَبْلًا * أَكَادُ أَغْصُ بِالْعَمَاءِ الْفَرَاتِ

[by 'Abd Allāh Ibn Ya'rub, when he had taken his blood-revenge, Then wine became easy for me to swallow; and I was wont before (this) to be nearly choked with sweet water (Jsh)], whence the anomalous reading ^{مِنْ قَبْلُ}

اَبْدًا بِهٖ اَوَّلًا XXX. 3. [128] and the saying اَبْدًا بِهٖ اَوَّلًا Begin with him, or it, at (the) first (of the time) : and, according to this, there is no difference in sense between the infl. and uninfl. forms of these advs. cut off [from prothesis, the sense of the suppressed post. being intended to be understood with both], which is the truth ; but some say that they are then infl. only because of their not implying the sense of prothesis, so that قَبْلًا means مُتَقَدِّمًا formerly, اَوَّلًا means مُتَقَدِّمًا previously, and مِنْ قَبْلٍ means مُتَقَدِّمًا وَمُتَأَخِّرًا previously and sub- sequently, [as though قَبْلًا و بَعْدًا were said, meaning firstly and lastly (K, B),] because مِنْ is red. [499] (R).
 These ns. have four states, in one of which they are uninfl., while in the rest they are infl. :—(1) they are infl., (a) when they are pre. in letter, as قَبَضْتُ دِرْهَمًا
I received a dirham, not another than it and جِئْتُ مِنْ قَبْلِ زَيْدٍ I came before Zaid : (b) when the post. is suppressed, but (a) its letter is intended to be understood, as مِنْ قَبْلِ نَادِي النَّخْلِ [128], the full phrase being مِنْ قَبْلِ ذَاكَ, in which state they remain like the pre. in letter, and are therefore not pronounced with Tanwīn ; (b) neither its letter nor its sense is intended to be understood, in which case they are indet., whence the reading ^{مِنْ قَبْلٍ} ^{وَمِنْ بَعْدٍ} XXX. 3. and the saying ^{فَسَاغَ لِي الشَّرَابُ} [above] (IA) : (2) they are uninfl.

upon Damm when [they are cut off from prothesis in letter, but not in sense, so that (Sh)] the post. is suppressed [in letter (Sh)], but its sense is intended to be understood, as in XXX. 3. (IA, Sh) in the reading of the Seven with Damm, where IY [following Z in the M] supplies the ellipse as though the o. f. were ^{مِنْ قَبْلٍ كُلِّ} ^{شَيْءٍ} ^{وَمِنْ بَعْدِهِ} [128], which sense is true, except that ^{مِنْ قَبْلِ الْغَلَبِ} ^{وَمِنْ بَعْدِهِ} before (the overcoming) and after (it) would be more appropriate to the context [502] (Sh), and in ^{أَقْبَ مِنْ تَحْتِ الْخ} [below] (IA) ; and similarly in the saying of the Ḥamāsī [Ma'n Ibn
Aus (FA, Jsh) alMuzani (Jsh)]

لَعَمْرُكَ مَا أَدْرِي دَانِي لَأَوْجُلُ * عَلَى إِينَا تَغْدُو الْمَلِيَّةُ أَوَّلُ

[By thy life, I know not—and verily I am much afraid—to which of us fate will go in the early morning at (the) first (of the time or hour) (FA, Jsh)], and the saying of the other ['Utayy Ibn Mālik al 'Uḳaili, cited by Fr (Akh),]

إِذَا أَنَا لَمْ أَوْمِنْ عَلَيْكَ وَلَمْ يَكُنْ * لِقَاؤُكَ إِلَّا مِنْ وَرَاءِ وَرَاءِ

(Sh) When I am not reassured about thee, nor is thy meeting save from behind, behind (a curtain) (Jsh).
Mb relates the verse.

لَعْنُ آلِإِلَٰهٍ تَعَلَّاهُ بْنُ مُسَافِرٍ * لَعْنًا يُشْنُ عَلَيْهِ مِنْ قَدَامٍ

[by a man of the Banu Tamim, God curse Ta'illa Ibn Musāfir with a curse that shall be poured upon him from before (Him) ! (FA)] with مِنْ قَدَامٍ, making it indet. ;

but Fr relates it with مِنْ قَدَامٍ, making it det. (Akh), orig. مِنْ قَدَامَةٍ (FA). And F transmits أَبْدَأُ بِذَا مِنْ

أَوَّلٍ with Damm, by uninflectedness, because the post. is intended to be understood in sense ; with Fath, by inflection as a diptote [357], because the post. is not intended to be understood in letter or sense ; and with Kasr, because the post. is intended to be understood in letter (IA). And it is said that these advs. [that ought to be] pronounced with Damm may have Tanwīn with [the sign of] the nom. and acc., as قَبْلًا and جِئْتُكَ قَبْلُ, like the voc. [that ought to be] pronounced with Damm,

as يَا مُطَرُّ and يَا مُطَرًّا [48, 608] ; so that فَمَا شَرِبُوا بَعْدًا and وَكُنْتُ قَبْلًا may be instances of this (R). These advs.

[cut off from prothesis (R)] are named “ finals ” (R, Fk), because after the suppression [of the post. (YS)] they become finals in articulation after having been medials

(Fk). But كُلُّ and بَعْضُ, [when cut off from prothe-sis (R),] are not named “ finals ’ ’, because the compensation for the post. is expressed (R, YS). عَلٌ is a n. i. q.

فَوْقُ, always used in two ways, (1) governed in the gen. by مِنْ and (2) aprothetic [in letter (DM)]; so that مِنْ فَرْقَةٍ and مِنْ عُلُوَّةٍ is not said, as أَخَذْتُهُ مِنْ عِلِّ السَّطَاحِ are said: but many are mistaken in this [2nd matter, saying that it may be pre. (DM)]; and among them are Jh and IM: and, as for the saying

يَا رَبِّ يَوْمَ لِي لَا أَظْلَلُ
أَرْمَضُ مِنْ تَحْتِ وَأَضْحَى مِنْ عَلَ

[by Abū Tharwān, O many a day there is for me wherein I am not shaded, being scorched by the hot sand from beneath (my feet) and exposed to the sun from above (my head)! (Jsh)], the ا is for silence, [not a post. pron. (DM),] as is proved by the fact that عَلٌ is uninfl. [615]; whereas, if it were pre., there would be no reason for its uninflectedness. When a det. [i.e. a particular thing, vid. a specified superiority in position (DM),] is meant by عَلٌ, it is uninfl. upon Damm, by assimilation to the finals, [among which it is sometimes included (DM),] as in this verse, since what is meant is superiority in position to [the poet] himself, not unrestricted superiority in position, the sense being that the burning sand affects him from beneath him, and the heat of the sun from above him; and similarly in the saying of the other [Abn-nNajm al'Ijli (Jsh)] describing a horse

أَقْبَبَ مِنْ تَحْتِ عَرِيضِ مَنْ عَلَ * مَعَارِدَ كَرَّةَ الْبِرِّ أَقْبَلِ

[(He is) lean below (his belly), broad above (his back), returning again and again to the charge of "Retreat, advance", though the citation of this verse by IHsh is not free from doubt, because the final of every hemistich in every one of these verses is a ل pronounced with Kasr, and perhaps he was not acquainted with the ode (Jsh)] : and, when an indet. is meant by عَلَ, it is infl., as in the saying [of Imra alKais (EM)]

مَكْرٍ مَفْرٍ مُقْبِلٍ مُدْبِرٍ مَعَا
كَجَلْمُودٍ صَخْرٍ حَطَّةِ السَّيْلِ مَنْ عَلَ

[Good at charging, good at fleeing, advancing and retiring together, like a mass of rock that the torrent has brought down from above (EM)], since what is meant is to compare the horse [81] in his swiftness to a mass of rock that has come down from some high place or other, not from any particular height (ML). It has several dial. vars. (IY) : you say (1) جُمَّةٌ مِنْ عَلَ, [infl. (R), defective (IY), like عَمَ (IY, R) and شَمِ, as كَجَلْمُودٍ صَخْرٍ, (IY, R) and قَافٍ (IY, R) and غَازٍ, as

قَبَاؤُ مِنْ تَحْتِ وَرِيَا مَنْ عَلَ

Lean below, and plump above (IY)]; (3) مِنْ مُعَالٍ , [like مَرَامٍ (R), as says Dhu-rRumma

وَنَغْضَانِ الرَّحْلِ مِنْ مُعَالٍ

And the swaying of the camel-saddle above (IY)]; (4) مِنْ عَلَا , [abbreviated (IY), like عَصَا (IY, R) and دَحَى , as مِنْ عَلُوٍّ (M, R), as (507) (IY)]; (5-7) مِنْ عَلُوٍّ (M, R), as says A'shà Bāhila [lamenting AlMuntashir Ibn Wahb alBāhili, one of the great runners of the Arabs (Mb),]

إِنِّي أَتَتْنِي لِسَانٌ لَا أَسْرِبُهَا * مِنْ عَلٍ لَا أَعْجَبُ مِنْهَا وَلَا أَسْخَرُ Verily a message has come to me from up-country, whereby I shall not be gladdened. There is neither wondering at it, nor scoffing, related with Ḍamm, Fath, and Kasr (IY, R) of its ر (R); (8) مِنْ عَلٍ , as وَلَقَدْ سَدَدْتُ عَلَيْكَ كُلَّ ثَنِيَّةٍ * وَاتَيْتُ فَوْقَ بَنِي كُلَيْبٍ مِنْ عَلٍ

[by AlFarazdaq satirizing Jarīr, And assuredly I did stop against thee every mountain-road, and come down upon the Banū Kulaib from above (them) (FA, Jsh)]:
and these dial. vars. have one meaning, vid. فَوْقُ (IY).

When you make عَلٍ uninfl. upon Ḍamm, the ل, i. e.
the ي, must be elided, and clean forgotten, since, if you said عَلِيّ, the Ḍamma upon the ي would be deemed heavy; and, if you elided the Damma, and said ^{عَلِي}, its being uninfl. upon Damm would not be plain: and, when you intend to make ^{عَلُو} uninfl., its ف must be pronounced with Fath; whereas with inflection it may be pronounced with Damm or Kasr, as ^{عَلُو} ^{أَلَدَار} At the top of the house, like ^{سَفَلَهَا} At its bottom. As for ^{عَلُو}, it may be uninfl. upon Fath, contrary to the rest of the finals, because of the heaviness of the و pronounced with Damm: and the Kasr, as ^{مِنْ} ^{عَلُو}, is either because [it is infl., and] the post. is supplied, as in ^{لَيْسَ} ^{غَيْرَ} with Fath [below], in which case this Kasr is found only with a prep. before it or with prefixion to the ^ي of the pron. [129]; or because it is uninfl. upon Kasr on account of the Damma's being deemed heavy: while the Damm, as ^{مِنْ} ^{عَلُو}, is according to the analogy of the rest of the finals. The finals are uninfl. upon a vowel in order that they may be known to be radically infl. [159]: and upon Damm in order that they may be reinvigorated with the strongest of the vowels because of the weakness that overtakes them through the suppression of the needed post.; or in order that all the vowels may be completed for them, because in the state of inflection, being mostly aplastic, they are governed either in the gen. by ^{مِنْ} or in the acc. as adv. [64]; or in order that their uninflectional may be different from their inflectional vowel (R). And ^{أَ}لَا ^{أَ}غَيْرُ or ^{أَ}لَيْسَ ^{أَ}غَيْرُ and ^{أَ}حَسْبُ are treated in the same way (IH) as the adv. cut off from prothesis (Jm). ^{أَ}غَيْرُ [90] is a n. inseparable from prothesis (ML, A) in sense [115]; but may be cut off from it in letter, if the sense of the post. be understood, and ^{أَ}غَيْرُ be preceded by the word ^{أَ}لَيْسَ [96], the saying ^{أَ}لَا ^{أَ}غَيْرُ [below] being a solecism. [There are six constructions with it (DM):] one says (1-2) ^{أَ}قَبَضْتُ ^{أَ}عَشْرَةَ ^{أَ}لَيْسَ ^{أَ}غَيْرُهَا *I have received ten, not another than they is (received), or it, i. e. the received, is not another than they, with ^{أَ}غَيْرُ in (a) the nom., by suppression of the pred., i. e. ^{أَ}مُقْبَرُضًا; (b) the acc., by subaudition [i. e. latency (DM)] of the sub. [in ^{أَ}لَيْسَ (DM)], i. e. ^{أَ}لَيْسَ ^{أَ}الْمُقْبَرُضُ ^{أَ}فَيْرُهَا (3): ^{أَ}لَيْسَ ^{أَ}غَيْرُ [above] it, i. e. the received, is not another (than they), also by subaudition of the sub., and by suppression of the post. in letter, but expression of it in intention, [in which case ^{أَ}غَيْرُ is infl. (DM),] like the reading [of {‘Āsim (MAd)} alJahḍarī and {‘Aun (IY)} al‘Uḳailī (IY, Sh)] ^{أَ}مِنْ قَبْلِ الْغَلْبِ XXX. 3., i. e. ^{أَ}مِنْ قَبْلِ ^{أَ}وَمِنْ بَعْدِ (4): ^{أَ}لَيْسَ ^{أَ}غَيْرُ not another (than they) is (received), or it, i. e. the received, is not another (than they), in which case (a) Mb and the moderns say that* the Damma is a Damma of uninflectedness, [because the post. is suppressed, and its sense, not its letter, is intended to be understood (DM),] not of inflection, and that ^{أَءْ}غَيْرُ is assimilated to the finals, like ^{أَءْ}قَبْلُ and ^{أَءْ}بَعْدُ ; and, according to this, it may be [in the place of a nom. as (DM)] sub., or [of an acc. as (DM)] pred. [of ^{أَءْ}لَيْسَ (DM)]: (b) Akh says that it is a Damma of inflection, [the absence of Tanwin being because the letter of the post. is intended to be understood (DM),] not of uninflectedness, because ^{أَءْ}غَيْرُ is not a n. of time, like ^{أَءْ}قَبْلُ and ^{أَءْ}بَعْدُ , nor of place, like ^{أَءْ}فَوْقُ and ^{أَءْ}تَحْتُ , but is only like ^{أَءْ}كُلُ and ^{أَءْ}بَعْضُ ; and, according to this, it is [in the nom. as (DM)] the sub., the pred. being suppressed: (c) IKh says that it admits of both alternatives, [uninflectedness and inflection (DM)]: (5) ^{أَءْ}لَيْسَ غَيْرًا it, i. e. the received, is not another and (6) ^{أَءْ}لَيْسَ غَيْرُ not another is (received), in both of which the vowel is inflectional, because the Tanwin denotes either complete declension [608], in which case it is affixed only to infl. ns.; or compensation, in which case the post. is as it were mentioned (ML): here nothing at all [belonging to the post.] is intended to be understood ; but with the acc. the sub. is understood ^{أَءْ}لَيْسَ , and with the nom. the pred. is suppressed (DM). As for the saying ^{أَءْ}لَا غَيْرَ [above], which occurs in the phrases of the learned, it was not spoken by the Arabs ; so that the learned say لَّا either by analogy to لَيْسَ , or by inadvertence (Sh).

Apparently, however, there is no difference between the لَّا negated by لَيْسَ and the one negated by لَّا , as is shown in the M by Z, and in the Kāfiya by IH, who is followed in that by his commentators, and, among them, the critical judges, [like R (DM)]; and لَّا has been heard to occur after لَّا , for IM cites in the CT

جَوَابًا بِهِ تَنْجُو أَعْتَمِدُ فُورِينَا • لَعْنُ عَمَلٍ أَسْلَفْتَ لَا غَيْرَ تُسَالِّ

Rely thou upon an answer whereby thou shalt escape ; for, by our Lord, thou wilt be asked about a deed that thou hast done before, not another : so that what occurs in the ML and Sh is not to be regarded (Fk). لَّا is assimilated to the final adv. because of the extreme vagueness in it [114], as in the finals, on account of their being unconfined relative locations [64] : but the post. is not suppressed from it except with the لَّا of exemption and لَيْسَ , as لَعْنُ هَذَا لَا غَيْرَ I will do this, nothing else and جَاءَنِي زَيْدٌ لَيْسَ غَيْرَ Zaid came to me, no one else, from the frequent use of لَّا after لَيْسَ ; and لَّا after لَيْسَ is i. q. إِلَّا [90], the post. suppressed in لَيْسَ

جَاءَنِي زَيْدٌ لَيْسَ إِلَّا being the excepted suppressed in لَّا

Zaid has come to me: he, etc. 96. ^{حَسْبُ} is i. q. [the pre. n. in] ^{كَافِيكَ}, an act. part. [24, 68] whereby the present is meant, so that [from regard to its being i. q. ^{كَاف} (Sn)] it is used as an indet. ep., being an ep. of an indet., as ^{مَرَرْتُ بِرَجُلٍ حَسْبِكَ مِنْ رَجُلٍ} [143]; and a d. s. to a det., as ^{هَذَا عَبْدُ اللَّهِ حَسْبِكَ مِنْ رَجُلٍ} This is 'Abd Allāh, sufficing thee as a man. And [from regard to its prim. expression (Sn)] it is also used as a prim. substantive, [occurring as an inch. or enunc., at present or before the prefixion of the annuller (Sn),] as ^{حَسْبُهُمْ} LVIII. 9. [Their sufficiency is Hell, or Hell is their sufficiency (Sn)], ^{فَإِنَّ حَسْبَكَ اللَّهُ} VIII. 64. Verily thy sufficiency is God, [like the saying of Jarīr

^{إِنِّي وَجَدْتُ مِنَ الْمَكَارِمِ حَسْبَكُمْ * أَنْ تَلْبَسُوا حَرَ الثِّيَابِ وَتَشْبَعُوا}
(K, B) Verily I have found your sufficiency of noble deeds to be this, that you should wear the best of clothes, and be full of meat (N),] and ^{بِحَسْبِكَ دِرْهَمٌ} [Thy sufficiency is a dirham (Sn)]. And this is an objection to its being a verbal n. [68], since the lit. ops. are not prefixed to verbal ns. [by common consent; and similarly the id. ops., like inchoation, according to the correctest doctrine (Sn)]. It is also cut off from prothesis, in which case it undergoes two innovations, being (1) imbued with a sense indicative of negation ; and (2) always used (a) as an ep., d. s., or inch., and (b) uninfl. upon Damm : you say [in the case of the ep., or d. s.] رَأَيْتَ رَجُلًا حَسْبُ (A) I saw a man, or Zaid, sufficing (me or thee), as though, says Jh, you said حَسْبُكَ or حَسْبِي ;

and in the case of the inch. قَبِضْتُ عَشْرَةَ فَحَسْبُ I received ten ; and (my) sufficiency (was that), i. e. فَحَسْبِي (A). What is post. to حَسْبُ may be [thus] suppressed from frequency of usage ; and it is uninfl. upon Damm by assimilation to غَيْرُ , since, like the latter [114], it does not become det. by prothesis. The adv. pre. to props. are of two kinds, (1) necessarily pre. to them by application [115], which are three in number, حَيْثُ in place, and أَذْ and إِذْ in time : (a) there is a dispute [204] as to whether the [cond.] prop. immediately following أَذْ governs إِذْ or not ; and, if it does, إِذْ is not pre. to it ; but, if it does not, أَذْ is pre. to it : (b) حَيْثُ and إِذْ are pre. to the verbal and nominal [props.] ; but there is a dispute [204] as to whether أَذْ may be pre. to the nominal : (2) allowably pre. to the prop., which are only ns. of time pre. to a prop. from which one of the three times is imported : (a) that is stipulated for the sake of the affinity between the pre. and post. in indicating unrestricted time, even if the two times be different, this affinity being needed because prefixion to the prop. is not in accordance with the o. f., since the post. in reality is the inf. n. implied by the prop., not the prop. itself; and, according to this, a n. of place is ordinarily not pre. to a prop. [124], because one of the places is not specifically imported from the prop., as one of the times is. The general rule is that the n. of time should be pre. to the verbal [prop.], because the v. indicates one of the times by application [402] ; and therefore the n. of time is pre. to the verbal more often than to the nominal [prop.] : but time is imported from the nominal post. [prop.] by the circumstance that the 2nd of its two terms is a v., as in ^{يَوْمَ هُمْ عَلَى النَّارِ يُفْتَنُونَ} LI. 13. [(It will occur on, or is,) the day when they shall be burnt upon the fire (K, B)] ; or that, if its two terms be ns., its purport is notorious for occurring in one of the three times, either the past, as ^{اتَيْتَكَ حِينَ الْحَجَّاجِ أَمِيرٍ} I came to thee when AlHajjāj was governor, or the future, as XL. 16. [1] ; while the saying of Mb in the Kāmil that the allowably pre. n. of time is not pre. to a nominal [prop.] except upon condition of the prop.'s being past in sense, by assimilation to the necessarily pre. ^{أَنْ}, is falsified by LI. 13. [above], XL. 16. [1, 124], and the like. All of this is when the n. of time is pre. to a prop. of whose inf. n. it is the adv. in sense, as you see : whereas, if the n. of time be not an adv. to the inf. n., but be either before or after the latter, it has not with the prop. that peculiarity which the adv. of the inf. n. of the prop. has ; and therefore it is not used except with an infinitival p., like ^{أَن} , ^{أَن} , and ^{مَا} , before the prop., as ^{مِنْ قَبْلِ أَنْ} Before that We deform faces and ^{نَطْمِسُ وَجْهَهَا} IV. 50. Before that We deform faces and IX. 118. [460]. As for ^{رَيْك} , [which is not a n. of time,] it is pre. to the verbal prop. [124], as ^{تَوَقَّفْ رَيْك} Wait until I come out to thee, because it is an inf. n. meaning delay, made to act as a substitute for the pre. n. of time [65], the o. f. being ^{زَمَانٌ رَيْك} during the time of the delay of my coming out, i. e. during the period that my coming out delays, until it enters into existence, meaning until I come out ; and similarly ^{أَيَّةٌ} i. q. ^{عَلَامَةٌ} may be pre. to the verbal prop. because of its resemblance to ^{وَقْتُ} , since times are signs whereby events are timed and acts specified : but, since the sense of time is adventitious in ^{رَيْك} and ^{أَيَّةٌ} , they are mostly pre. to the verbal prop. headed by an infinitival p., as the poet says ^{بَايَةَ مَا تَحْبِرُونَ} and ^{بَايَةَ يَقْدِمُونَ} [124, 571], and you say ^{اقْمِ رَيْثَمَا أَخْرَجَ} Bide until I come out ; and, since, according to the KK [below], the n. of time itself is pre. to the verbal [prop] with an infinitival p., how much more is what resembles it! And ذُرُ also, when infl. as in ذُرُ مَالٍ [16], is pre. to the verbal [prop.] in their sayings اِنْهَبَا بِنِي تَسْلَمَ [124], اِنْهَبَا بِنِي تَسْلَمَانِ, and اِنْهَبُوا بِنِي تَسْلَمُونَ : some say that this [prefixion] is anomalous, [because ذُرُ is not a n. of time,] نِي being ep. of الْأَمْرِ, i. e. مَعَ الْأَمْرِ نِي السَّلَامَةِ with the (matter) possessed of safety, meaning مَعَ الْأَمْرِ الَّذِي تَسْلَمُ فِيهِ with the matter wherein thou shalt be safe, the ب being i. q. مَعَ ; but Sf says that the n. qualified by نِي [142] is الْوَقْتُ, i. e. فِي الْوَقْتِ نِي السَّلَامَةِ in the (time) possessed of safety, meaning فِي وَقْتٍ تَسْلَمُ فِيهِ in a time wherein thou shalt be safe, the ب being i. q. فِي, in which case the prefixion is not anomalous, because ذُرُ is like a n. of time pre. to the v. ; while some say that it is the Tā'ī ذُرُ infl., which is improbable, because the Tā'ī ذُرُ in the best known dial. has the y in all cases [176]. And sometimes ذُرُ in prefixion to the v. is used in the same way as in prefixion to the n., as جَاءَنِي ذُرُ فَعَلَ He that did come to me and ذُرُوا فَعَلُوا and ذُرُو فَعَلُوا and

ذَوَاتُ فَعَلْنِ and ذَوَاتَا فَعَلْتَا and ذَاتُ فَعَلْتُ, being then either Tā'ī, according to the dial. transmitted by IDn [176]; or i. q. ^جمَاجِبْ anomalously pre. to the v. S says that, when one of the two terms of the prop. immediately following ^ححَيْثُ and ^اإِذَا is a v., it is better to put that v. first, because these two adv. contain the sense of condition, which is more appropriate to the v., so that ^زحَيْثُ ^ززَيْدٌ ^ييَجْلِسُ is better than ^زحَيْثُ ^ييَجْلِسُ ^ززَيْدٌ : but what he says here about ^اإِذَا requires consideration, from the frequency of such [phrases] as LXXXIV. 1. [28, 204] and LXXXII. 1. 2. When the heaven shall be cloven in sunder, and when the stars shall be scattered. ^ممِثْلُ and ^غغَيْرُ are sometimes assimilated to the adv. necessarily pre. to props., i. e. ^ححَيْثُ, ^اإِنْ, and ^اإِذَا, because they are vague, like those adv.; but, since they are only remotely assimilated to those adv., they are not pre. to the pure prop. in the same way as those adv. are, but to a prop. headed by an infinitival p., as LI. 23. [518], ^للَمْ يَمْنَعْ الشَّرْبُ النَّحْ [90], and ^غغَيْرُ أَنِّي قَدْ النَّحْ [90]; because the affinity between the pre. n. of time and the post. prop. in their indicating time, and the fact that the n. of time is an adv. to the inf. n. of the post. prop., enable the infinitival p. to be dispensed with in the case of the n. of time, but are not found in ^{٩٨}مِثْل and ^{٩٨}غَيْر, so that the infinitival p. is needed in their case. The KK [above], however, transmit from the Arabs that the adv. also are pre. to ^{٩٨}أَنْ and ^{٩٨}أَنْ, as ^{٩٨}يَوْمَ أَنْ يَقُومَ زَيْدٌ and ^{٩٨}يَوْمَ أَنْكَ مُحْسِنٌ; and, if this were right, those adv. might be infl. and uninfl., like ^{٩٨}مِثْل and ^{٩٨}غَيْر in ^{٩٨}مِثْلَ مَا أَنْكَم LI. 23. [518,159] and ^{٩٨}أَنْ نَطَلَقَتْ ^{٩٨}غَيْر [90, 159]. The author of the Mughni says that, the adv. pre. to props. being det., it is correct to say ^{٩٨}حَتَّى يَوْمَ but, besides the strangeness of this usage and the fact that it has not been heard, the pre. ought not to be det. when the ag. in the verbal or inch. in the nominal [prop.] is indet., as ^{٩٨}يَوْمَ قَدِمَ أَمِيرٌ and ^{٩٨}يَوْمَ قَدِمَ أَمِيرٌ كَرِيمٌ قَدِمَ, since the sense is ^{٩٨}يَوْمَ قَدِمَ أَمِيرٌ [111]. The n. of time or ^{٩٨}حَيْث, even if it be not an adv., is pre. to the prop. [124], as LXXVII. 35. [159], V. 119. [1], VI. 124. [64], and

يَا ذُلَّ حَيْثُ يَكُونُ مَنْ يَتَذَلُّ

O the lowliness of the place where he that is lowly is, [where ^{٩٨}ذُلَّ is pre. to ^{٩٨}حَيْثُ (J)]. As for such as ^{٩٨}يَوْمَئِذٍ [204], ^{٩٨}حِينَئِذٍ, and ^{٩٨}سَاعَتَيْنِ, the adv. are said to be to suppress the post. and substitute the TanwIn of حِينًا for it, i. e. حِينَ ذَٰلِكَ at the time (of that), حِينًا would not appear to be used in that sense, but the TanwIn in it would appear to denote [declinability and] indeterminateness; [for I see nothing to prevent one TanwIn from denoting declinability and indeterminateness together, since many a p. imports two meanings, so that the TanwIn in رَجُلٍ imports indeterminateness also, but, when you use the n. as a name, denotes pure declinability (R on the TanwIn)]. Since, then, they fear that the TanwIn of compensation in يَوْمًا, حِينًا, and سَاعَةً should be confounded with the TanwIn of declinability and indeterminateness, they effect the indication of the suppressed props. orig. post. to those advs. by putting as a total subst. for those advs. an adv. [أَن] inseparable from prefixion to props., light in expression, applicable to all sorts of ns. of time, سَاعَةً, حِينًا, يَوْمًا, لَيْلَةً, etc, and accustomed to suppression of the props. post. to it, together with substitution of TanwIn for them, as in وَأَنْتَ أَنْ صَحِيحٌ [204]. Thus أَنْ is put after those advs. as a [total] subst. for them, together with the TanwIn of compensation, in order that the TanwIn may be as it were existent in the ant. advs., because the total subst. [150], being not only ideally put into the place of the ant. [151], but unrestrictly applicable to what the ant. is applicable to, is as it were the ant.; and اِنْ is pronounced with Kasr of the ا because of the concurrence of the two quiescents [608], this vowel [664] being necessary in order that اِنْ may be like a decl. n. governed in the gen., post. to the 1st adv., so that the suppression of the post. from the 1st adv. without uninflectedness upon Damm or the Tanwin of compensation may not be disapproved; and, since the object mentioned is effected by means of اِنْ, and the advs. mentioned are future and past, اِنْ is divested of the sense of the past, and becomes denotative of unrestricted adverbiality, so that it may be used in the future [204] also, as فَوَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِلْمُكَذِّبِينَ LII. 11. Then woe on that day to them that treat the signs of God as false and the like. But the truth is that اِنْ, when the post. is suppressed, and the Tanwin substituted for it, otherwise than in such as يَوْمَئِذٍ, may be pronounced with Fath also, whence فَعَلْتَهَا اِذَا وَاَنَا مِنَ الضَّالِّينَ XXVI. 19. I did it then, when I was one of the erring, i. e. I did it when thou hadst brought me up, since requital [594] has no meaning here. The adv. pre. to the prop. being an adv. to the inf. n. implied by the prop., as we stated before, a pron. may not relate to it from the prop. [124], so that اَتَيْتَكَ يَوْمَ قَدِمَ زَيْدٌ فِيْهِ is not said, because, the connection sought to be realised from such a pron. is realised by prefixing the adv. to the prop., and making it an adv. to the purport thereof, so that it is as though you said يَوْمَ قَدُّومَ زَيْدٍ فِيهِ, i. e. فِي الْيَوْمِ, which is not used; and the cop. is necessary only when the adv. is not connected by reason of its being pronounced with Tanwīn, as يَوْمًا قَدِمَ فِيهِ زَيْدٌ On a day that Zaid arrived on : the Kur says يَوْمَ تَبْيَضُّ وُجُوهٌ وَتَسْوَدُّ وُجُوهٌ III. 102. On the day when faces shall become white and faces shall become black ; but sometimes يَوْمَ تَسْوَدُّ فِيهِ and the like are said, which is anomalous. The *adv.*s necessarily pre. to props. must be uninfl. [159], because they are pre. in sense to the inf. n. implied by the prop., so that their prefixion to the prop. is like no prefixion, and therefore they resemble the finals [202] (R). The [sing. and pl., but not the du., of the (R)] *adv.*s [allowably (R)] pre. to the prop. or [to the word (Jm)] أَنَّ may be uninfl., [(a) by common consent, when the prop. is headed by a pret.; (b) according to the K K and some of the B B, when it is headed by an aor. or is nominal, whether the head of the latter be infl. or uninfl. in letter, as in جِئْتُكَ يَوْمَ أَنْتَ أَمِيرٌ I came to thee on the day when thou wast governor, since it must be infl. in place ; and (c) by common consent in such as حِينَئِذٍ (R),] upon Fath [for the sake of lightness (Jm)]: and similarly ^{مُثَلِّ}مُثَلِّ and ^{غَيْرُ}غَيْرُ, [i. e. ^{مُثَلِّ}مُثَلِّ (R)] with ^{مَ}مَ, and [^{غَيْرُ}غَيْرُ with (R)] ^{أَنْ}أَنْ or ^{أَنَّ}أَنَّ (IH), may be uninfl. [90, 111, 159] (R, Jm), by common consent (R), upon Fath (Jm).

§ 202. ^{حَوْتُ}حَوْتُ or [in the dial. of Ṭayyi (ML)] ^{حَيْتُ}حَيْتُ, is [uninfl. (R, DM),] pronounced in both dials. with (1) Damm of the ^هه [according to the best known usage (R)], by assimilation to the finals [201], because [its (R)] prefixion [to the prop. (ML)] is like no prefixion, [since its effect, vid. the sign of the gen. {in the post. (DM)}, is not apparent (ML)]; (2) Kasr, [according to the o. f. in the concurrence of two quiescents (ML)]; (3) Fath [for alleviation (ML)]: and ^{حَيْتُ}حَيْتُ is infl. (R, ML) by some of the Arabs (ML), which is a Fak'asī dial. (R, DM); while the reading ^{مِنْ حَيْثُ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ}مِنْ حَيْثُ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ VII. 181. [So that they shall not know (what We mean to do with them) (B)] may be an instance of this [infl. (DM) dial. var. or of the dial. var. uninfl. upon Kasr. It denotes place, by common consent (ML): and Akh says that it sometimes denotes time (T, R, ML), as

لَلْفَتَى عَقْلٌ يَعِيشُ بِهِ * حَيْثُ نَهْدِي سَاقَهُ قَدَمُهُ

[by Ṭarafa (Ahl),] The youth has understanding whereby he lives while his foot guides his shank (T, R, DM), because the sense is during the period of his toil and his life (T); but here also it may denote place (R, DM). It is mostly [in the place of an acc. as (ML)] an adv. (R, ML), as ^{أَوَّاهُ}فَاذْكُوا ^{أَوَّاهُ}الْمَشْرِكِينَ ^{أَوَّاهُ}حَيْثُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}وَجَدْتُمُوهُمْ IX. 5. Slay ye the unbelievers wherever ye find them (DM); or of a gen. governed by ^{أَوَّاهُ}مِنْ (ML), as ^{أَوَّاهُ}وَمِنْ ^{أَوَّاهُ}حَيْثُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}خَرَجْتَ II. 144. (DM) And from whatever place thou comest forth (to journey), turn thy face in the direction of the sacred mosque (when thou prayest) (B): but not always (R), being sometimes governed in the [place of a (DM)] gen. by something else (ML) than ^{أَوَّاهُ}مِنْ (DM), as فَشَدَّ وَلَمْ يَفْزَعْ ^{أَوَّاهُ}بَيْوتًا ^{أَوَّاهُ}كَثِيرَةً

لَدَى ^{أَوَّاهُ}حَيْثُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}أَلْقَتْ ^{أَوَّاهُ}رَحْلَهَا ^{أَوَّاهُ}أَمْ ^{أَوَّاهُ}فَشَعَمَ

[by Zuhair, Then he attacked (him); and scared not (the people of) many tents, at the place where Pate (8) had thrown down her camel-saddle, i. e. at her abode (EM)]; and [sometimes a direct obj., agreeably with the opinion of F, who attributes to it (ML)] VI. 124. [64, 201] (R, ML), since the sense is that God knoweth [360] the place itself that is meet for the bestowal of the Apostolate therein, not something in the place (ML), and similarly ^{أَوَّاهُ}أَمَّا ^{أَوَّاهُ}تَرَى ^{أَوَّاهُ}حَيْثُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}سَهِيلٌ ^{أَوَّاهُ}الْخَ [below], where it is the [direct (AAz)] obj. of ^{أَوَّاهُ}تَرَى; while ^{أَوَّاهُ}هِيَ ^{أَوَّاهُ}أَحْسَنُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}النَّاسِ ^{أَوَّاهُ}حَيْثُ ^{أَوَّاهُ}نَظَرَ

نَظَرُ She is the most beautiful of mankind in a place where a looker looks has been transmitted, meaning وَجْهًا in face, where it is a sp. (R). It does not occur as sub. of اِنَّ, contrary to the opinion of IM ; nor has he any evidence in the saying

اِنَّ حَيْثُ اسْتَقَرَّ مِنْ اَنْتَ رَاعِيَةٌ حَيْثُ فِيْهِ عِزَّةٌ وَّامَانٌ [Verily the place, where he that thou art the protector of resides, is a sanctuary wherein are honor and safety (DM)], because حَيْثُ may be construed to be a pred., and حَيْثُ a sub., [i. e. Verily a sanctuary etc. is (in the place) where etc. (DM)]. حَيْثُ is always pre. to the prop., nominal or verbal ; but more often to the verbal, for which reason the acc. is preferable in such as جَلَسْتُ حَيْثُ زَيْدًا اَرَاةً I sat where (I see) Zaid, I see him [62] (ML). Its prefixion to the single term is extraordinary, as

نَطَاعْنَهُمْ تَحْتَ الْكَلْبِ بَعْدَ ضَرْبِهِمْ
بِيضِ الْمَوَاضِي حَيْثُ لِي الْعَمَائِمُ

(R, ML), said to be by AlFarazdaq, And we pierce them below the kidneys after smiting them with the sharp swords at the place of the fold of the turbans, where حَيْثُ is in the position of an acc. as an adv. (SM), and

أَمَا تَرَى حَيْثُ سَهِيلٌ طَالِعًا
نَجْمًا يُضِيءُ كَالشَّهَابِ لَامِعًا

[above] (R) Seest thou not the place of Canopus when rising? (I mean by Canopus) a star that shines like the flame, gleaming (J): but Ks holds it to be regular; and thus can be explained the saying of the Lawyers ^{مِنْ} حَيْثُ ^{أَنَّ} كَذَا Whereas such and such, [with Fath of the Hamza of ^{أَنَّ} (518) (DM)]. And more extraordinary than that is its prefixion to a suppressed prop., as

إِذَا رِيْدَةٌ مِنْ حَيْثُ مَا نَفَضَتْ لَهْ * أَتَاهَا بِرِيَاهَا خَلِيلٌ يُوَاصِلُهُ
[by Abū Hayya anNumairi, When a breeze from wherever (it blows) is wafted to him (the he-ass), a nose that is attached to him brings to him its (the meadow's) fragrance (Jsh)], i. e. ^{مِنْ} حَيْثُ هَبَّتْ (ML), the prop. being suppressed, and مَا put as a compensation for it (DM).

حَيْثُ when pre. to the single term, is infl. (R, ML) by some (R), according to IJ (ML), which is said to be the dial. of Hudhail (AAz), because the cause of uninflectedness, i. e. prefixion to the prop., is removed (R); and I have seen, in the handwriting of orthographers

أَمَا تَرَى حَيْثُ سَهِيلٌ طَالِعًا

[above], with Fath of the ث (ML): but in the best known usage it remains uninfl., because prefixion to the single term is anomalous (R). ^{حَيْثُ}, when the restricting مَ is attached to it [181, 565], implies the sense of condition, and apocopates two vs., as ^{حَيْثُمَا تَسْتَقِمُ الْخ} [419]; and this verse is, according to me, a proof of its denoting time (ML), i. e. In whatever time, not In whatever place, thou art straight, as is proved by ^{فِي غَايِرٍ} (DM).

§ 203. ^{مُنْذُ} and ^{مُنْذُ} [both pronounced with Kasr of their م in one dial. (Sn)] are used [by the Arabs (IY)] as ns. and ps. [498] (IY, A), ^{مُنْذُ} mostly as a p., and ^{مُنْذُ} mostly as a n. [510]. They are peculiar to time, being prefixed only to a [n. of] time; and their relation to time is the same as that of ^{مِنْ} to place, ^{مِنْ} denoting beginning of extent in place [499], and ^{مُنْذُ} and ^{مُنْذُ} in time [510] (IY). When they are ns., they have two meanings, (1) the beginning of the period, [with which only definite time is allowable (IY),] as ^{مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مُنْذُ يَوْمِ} ^{الْجُمُعَةِ} I have not seen him since Friday: (2) the whole of the period, [to which the indet. is peculiar (IY),] as ^{مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مُنْذُ يَوْمَانِ} I have not seen him for two days (M);

though you may put a det. implying number, as ^{لَمْ أَرَهُ مِنْذُ} لَمْ أَرَهُ مِنْذُ I have not seen him all through the Muharram, as though you said for 30 days (IY). They have three states (ML), being followed by a n. in the gen., a n. in the nom., or a prop. (DM). When they are followed by a n. in the gen., they are said by some to be (ML, A) pre. ns. (ML), adv. governed in the acc. by the v. before them ; but are held by most to be preps. [510] (A). They are ns. (1) when they govern [a single n. in (A)] the nom. : (2) when they are followed by [a prop., vid. (A)] (a) the [pret. (Sn)] v. (IM) with its ag., which is the prevalent [construction], for which reason IM restrict himself to the mention of it ; (b) the inch. with its enunc. (A). When they are followed by a n. in the nom., [as ^{مِنْذُ يَوْمِ} مِنْذُ يَوْمِ مِنْذُ يَوْمِ and ^{مِنْذُ يَوْمِ} مِنْذُ يَوْمِ (ML),] then, (1) [as Mb, IS, and F say (ML),] they are inchs. followed by an enunc. (ML, A), i. q. (a) ^{الْأَمْتُ} الْأَمْتُ if the time be present or numbered, [as ^{مِنْذُ يَوْمِنَا} مِنْذُ يَوْمِنَا or ^{مِنْذُ ثَلَاثَةِ أَيَّامٍ} مِنْذُ ثَلَاثَةِ أَيَّامٍ I have not seen him all through our day or for three days, i. e. the term (of the interruption of the sight) is our day, or three days (DM)]; (b) ^{مِنْذُ أَوَّلِ الْمُدَّةِ} مِنْذُ أَوَّلِ الْمُدَّةِ if it be past (ML), as ^{مِنْذُ يَوْمِ الْجُمُعَةِ} مِنْذُ يَوْمِ الْجُمُعَةِ I have not seen him since Friday, i. e. the beginning of the period (of not seeing) was Friday (DM) : (a) they are permissible as inchs., because they are det. [25] in letter and sense, or in sense only, according to different opinions (Sn) : (b) this analysis (A, DM) is preferred by IH (DM) ; [and] is indicated by IM's saying " when they govern the nom." (A), because the inch. governs the enunc. in the nom. [24] (Sn) : (2) [as Akh, Zj, and Zji say (ML, Sn),] they are [adverbial (ML)] enuncs. followed by an inch. (ML, A), i. q. ^{يَيْنِ} ^{وَيَيْنِ} both pre., as ^{مَا لَقَيْتُهُ} ^{مَنْذَرِ} ^{يَوْمَانِ} I have not met him for two days, i. e. Between (me) and meeting (him) [158] have been two days (ML, Sn) ; but there is no concealing the obscurity involved in this (ML) : (a) ISgh says " he that parses them as inchs. or enuncs. ought to reckon " them among the necessarily prepos. inchs. or enuncs. " [28] ; and that can best be accounted for by the argument that, since they must precede the gen. when they "are preps., they must precede [the enunc. or inch.] when " they are ns." (YS) : (3) as most of the KK say, they are advs. pre. to a prop. whose v. is suppressed while its ag. remains, the o. f. being ^{مَنْذَرِ} ^{كَانَ} ^{يَوْمَانِ} since two days (have been), [where ^{كَانَ} is att. (DM), or ^{مَنْذَرِ} ^{مَضَى} ^{يَوْمَانِ} since two days (have passed) (A)] ; and this is preferred by Suh and IM (ML, A) in the Tashil (A) : (4) as some of the KK say, they [or rather the ns. after them (DM)] are enuncs. of a suppressed [pron., vid. ^{هُوَ} (DM)], i. e. ^{مَا رَأَيْتُهُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{الزَّمانِ} ^{الَّذِي} ^{هُوَ} ^{يَوْمَانِ} I have not seen him from that (time which) is two days, upon the ground that مُنْذُ is compounded of two words, مِنْ and the Tā'ī نُو [176] (ML), and that مُنْ is orig. مُنْذُ (DM). When they are followed by the verbal or nominal prop., as in مَا زَالَ مُنْذُ الْغ [112] and

وَمَا زِلْتُ أَبْغِي الْعَالَ مُنْذُ أَنَا يَانِعٌ
وَلَيْدًا وَكُهْلًا حِينَ شَبْتُ وَامْرَدًا

[by AlA'shà, And I have not ceased to seek wealth, since I was a stripling, when (I was) a boy and middle-aged, when I was hoary, and when (I was) beardless (Jsh)], then, (1) according to the best known opinion, they are advs. pre., (a) as some say, to the prop., [in which case they are excluded from peculiarity to prefixion to the n. of time, and their meaning is from the time when (DM)]; (b) as others says, to مِّنْ [supplied (Sn)] pre. to the prop., [in which case their meaning is from the beginning (of the time when) (DM)]: (2) as is said, they are inchs., in which case مَّنْ must be supplied pre. to the prop., as the enunc. (ML, A), i. e. the beginning (of that was the time when) his two hands tied and I was a stripling (DM). مُنْذُ and مَّنْ are uninfl. because they are ns. in the sense of ps. [510, 159]. They ought to be quiescent [159]: but [the نِ of] مُنْذُ is mobilized because of the quiescence of the مِ before it, and is pronounced with Damm for alliteration [197] to the Damm of the م ; while مَنْ is quiescent, unless it meet a quiescent after it, in which case it is pronounced with Damm, as مَنْ الْيَوْمَ, but by some with Kasr, as مَنْ الْيَوْمَ (IY). The o. f. of مَنْ is مَنْ, [the ن being elided from it (DM),] as is proved by their [generally (Sn)] reverting to Damm of the ن in مَنْ upon meeting a quiescent, as مَنْ الْيَوْمَ [663], whereas, if the o. f. were not Damm, they would pronounce with Kasr [664]; and by the fact that some of them say مَنْ زَمَنٍ طَوِيلٍ, pronouncing with Damm notwithstanding the absence of the quiescent (ML, A).

§ 204. اِنْ is of four kinds, (1) a n. denoting past time, and used in four ways, (a) as an adv., which is the prevalent usage, as IX. 40. [below] : (b) as a direct obj. [of a v. (a) mentioned (DM)], as اِنْ كُنْتُمْ قَلِيلًا VII. 84. And remember the time when ye were few, and He made you many ; [(b) supplied (DM),] the اِنْ mentioned in the beginnings of stories in the Revelation being mostly a direct obj. of اِنْ كَرَّمْ supplied, as اِنْ قَالَ II. 28. And (remember) the time when thy Lord said unto the angels [below] : (c) as a subst. for the obj., as اِنْ اَنْتَبَذَتْ XIX. 16.

And remember Mary in the Scripture, when she withdrew, [i. e. the time of her withdrawal (DM),] where أَنْ is a subst. of implication for مَرِمَ, [the cop. (154) being the pron. relating to her latent in the v. (DM),] like the subst. in II. 214. [150]; while أَنْ in the text أَنْ كُورُوا نِعْمَةَ اللَّهِ عَلَيْكُمْ أَنْ جَعَلَ فِيكُمْ أَنْبِيَاءَ V. 23. Remember ye the grace of God towards you, when He set among you Prophets may be an adv. to, or a [total (DM)] subst.
for, نِعْمَةٌ : (d) as post. to a n. of time, (a) capable of being dispensed with, as in حِينَئِذٍ and يَوْمَئِذٍ [201]; (b) incapable of it, as in رَبَّنَا لَا تَزِغْ قُلُوبَنَا بَعْدَ إِذْ هَدَيْتَنَا III. 6.
Our Lord, lead not our hearts astray after the time when Thou hast guided us : (2) a n. denoting future time [201], as يَوْمَئِذٍ تَحْدِثُ أَخْبَارَهَا XCIX. 4. On that day shall she tell her tidings ; while the text فَسَوْفَ يَعْلَمُونَ أَنَ الْاَغْلَالُ فِي اَعْنَاقِهِمْ XL. 72. 73. Therefore they shall know, when the yokes are on their necks is sometimes cited as evidence, because يَعْلَمُونَ, which is future in letter and sense [404], governs أَنْ, which must therefore be i. q. اِنَّا : (3) causative, as وَلَنْ يَنْفَعَكُمْ الْيَوْمَ أَنْ ظَلَمْتُمْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ فِي الْعَذَابِ مُشْتَرِكُونَ XLIII. 38. And it shall not profit you to-day, since ye have done wrong, that ye are partners in punishment, i. e. And your partnership in punishment shall not profit you to-day, on account of your wrong-doing in the world : (a) this ^أا is alternatively said to be (a) a p., i. q. the causative ج [504] ; (b) an adv., the causation being imported from the force of the sentence, not from the letter, because, when ^{ضربت}ضربت ^أا ^{إسأ}إسأ I beat him when he did evil is said, and ^تtime is meant, the appearance of the case necessarily implies that the evil-doing is the cause of the beating, [because the dependence of the predicament upon a qualification notifies the causality of the latter (DM)]: (b) [^أا in the text cannot be causative according to the 2nd saying, and (DM)] the difficulty is removed only according to the 1st saying, because, if The partnership in punishment shall not profit you to-day in the time of your wrong-doing were said, causation would not be imported on account of the difference in the times of the two acts, [vid. wrong-doing, the time of which is the present life, and profiting, the time of which is the next life : nay, in reality the difference of time entirely prevents the coherence of the sentence (DM)]; and [thus (DM)] a [further (DM)] difficulty remains in the text [according to the 2nd saying (DM)], vid. that ^أا is not a subst. for ^{اليوم}اليوم, because of the difference in the two times ; nor an adv. to ^{ينفع}ينفع, because the latter does not govern two adv. [64]; nor to ^{أَشْتَرُكُونُ} , because the reg. of the pred. of the five ps. does not precede them [520, 593], nor does the reg. of the conj. precede the conjunct [75], and because their partnership is in the next life, not in the time of their wrong-doing : (c) other passages attributed to causation are ^{وَأَنْ لَّمْ يَهْتَدُوا بِهِ فَيَقُولُوا هَذَا} ^{أَفْكَ قَدِيمٌ} XLVI. 10. And, since they have not been guided by it, [their perversity has become manifest (B),] so that they will say, This is an old lie, XVIII. 15. [88], ^{أَلَيْسَ مَحَلًّا} [35]; and all of that is correct only according to the saying that the causative ^{أَنْ} is a p.: (4) denotative of suddenness of occurrence, as S declares, which is the one [generally] occurring after ^{بَيْنَمَا} and ^{بَيْنَ}, as ^{إِسْتَقْبَرَ اللَّهُ خَيْرًا} [below]; and is variously said to be an adv. of place or time, a p. denoting suddenness of occurrence, and a corrob., i. e. red. [563], p., [as explained by R below]. Two other meanings are mentioned for ^{أَنْ}, [in both of which it appears to be a p. (DM),] (1) corroboration, through its being taken to be red., which is said by AU, followed by IKb [and Jh], who attribute to it certain texts, among them II. 28. [And thy Lord said (above) (DM) and II. 48. (below)]; (2) verification, like ^{قَدْ} [575], to which is attributed the text [XLIII. 38. (above) (DM)]: while

ISh adopts the opinion that it occurs red. after ^{بَيْنَا} and ^{بَيْنَمَا} [below] exclusively ; and, according to the theory of verification in the text [XLIII. 38. (DM)], the prop. [^{اِنْ ظَلَمْتُمْ}, i. e. ^{قَدْ ظَلَمْتُمْ} ye have done wrong (DM),] is a par. between the v. and ag. [1] (ML). ^{اِنْ} is always pre. to a prop. [115] (R, ML), (1) nominal, as ^{وَازْكُرُوا اِنْ اَنْتُمْ قَلِيلٌ} VIII. 26. And remember the time when ye were few: (2) verbal, its v. being a pret., (a) in letter and sense, as II. 28. [above], II. 118 [160], and ^{وَازْكُرُوا اِنْ غَدَوْتَ مِنْ اَهْلِكَ} III. 117. And remember the time when thou wentest early in the morning from thy household ; (b) in sense, not letter, as II. 121. [539] and ^{وَازْكُرُوا اِنْ كَفَرُوا} VIII. 30. And remember the time when they that disbelieved were plotting against thee : and all three are combined in ^{اَلَا تَنْصُرُوهُ فَقَدْ نَصَرَهُ اللّٰهُ اِنْ اَخْرَجَهُ الَّذِيْنَ كَفَرُوا ثَانِيَ اَثْنَيْنِ اِنْ هُمَا فِي الْغَارِ اِنْ يَقُولُ} IX. 40. If [90, 585] ye help him not, God will help him, as He did help him, when they that disbelieved drove [above] him forth, he being a second of two, when they two were in the [599] cave, when he was saying to his companion " Grieve " thou not [419]; verily God is with us " (ML). But they disapprove of [its being prefixed to a n. followed by a pret. v., as (R)] اِنْ زَيْدٌ قَامَ (M, R), the chaste construction being اِنْ قَامَ زَيْدٌ (R), because اِنْ, being applied to denote the past, should rather be prefixed to the pret., on account of the conformity (IY, R) and affinity (R) of their meanings (IY). Sometimes one of the two terms of the prop. is suppressed, so that, [when the inflection is not apparent in the other term (DM),] the ignorant think that اِنْ is pre. to the single term, as

هَلْ تَرْجِعُنَّ لِيَالٍ قَدْ مَضَيْنَ لَنَا
وَالْعَيْشُ مُنْقَلَبٌ اِنْ ذَاكَ اَفْنَانُ

[by 'Abd Allāh Ibn AlMu'tazz, Shall nights (i.e. times), that have passed for us, indeed return, when life is changed—since that (is so)—like branches?, i.e. since life is like branches, sometimes fresh, and sometimes dry (Jsh)], in full اِنْ ذَاكَ كَذَلِكَ, and

كَانَتْ مَنَازِلُ الْاَلَفِ عَهْدَتَهُمْ
اِنْ نَحْنُ اِنْ ذَاكَ دُونَ النَّاسِ اِخْوَانًا

by AlAkhtal, i.e. They were abodes of familiar friends, that I knew as brothers above mankind, when we (were familiar together), when that neighbourhood (was existing), in full اِنْ نَحْنُ مُتَالِفُونَ اِنْ ذَاكَ كَانُوا, what is demonstrated by ذَاكَ being the neighbourhood understood from the sentence, and

كَانَ لَمْ يَكُونُوا حِمًى يَتَّقَى * إِنَّ النَّاسَ إِنْ ذَاكَ مِنْ عَزْ بَزَا

by AlKhansá, i.e. As though they were not a sanctuary that is respected, when mankind are such that he of them that overcomes robs, when that [overcoming (DM)] (is existing), in full إِنْ ذَاكَ كَانَتْ (ML): and sometimes the [whole (ML)] prop. is suppressed, because known, and Tanwīn is put as a compensation for it, [as

نَهَيْتَكَ عَنْ طَلَابِكَ أُمِّ عَمْرٍو * بِعَافِيَةٍ وَأَنْتَ إِنْ صَحِيحٌ

(R), by Abū Dhu'aib alHudhalī, I prohibited thee, O heart, from thy courting Umm 'Amr in health, while thou wast then well (Jsh),] in which case the ن [of إِنْ (R)] is pronounced with Kasr [608] (R, ML) or Fath [201]; but always with Kasr in such as يَوْمَئِذٍ (R), as يَوْمَئِذٍ يَفْرَحُ

XXX. 3. And on that day shall the believers

be glad (ML), i. e. وَيَوْمَ يَغْلِبُ الرُّومُ And on the day when (the Greeks shall overcome) [502] (B). إِنْ is not like إِنْ in denoting condition, [because its time is past, while condition is future (IY),] unless it be restrained

[by م from prefixion (IY)], as in the saying of Al'Abbās

Ibn Mirdās [asSulamī (Jsh)]

اِذَا دَخَلْتَ عَلَى الرَّسُولِ فَقُلْ لَّهِ
حَقًّا عَلَيْكَ اِذَا اطْلَمَ الْمَجْلِسُ

(M) Whenever thou enterest before the Apostle, say thou to him, with a saying that has become necessarily incumbent (in full قُلْ لَّهِ قَوْلًا حَقًّا , i. e. رَجَبٌ وَجُوبًا) upon thee, when the assembly is still (AAz), because, being restrained by مَا from the prefixion [565] explanatory of its sense, it becomes vague (IY). اِذَا is an instrument of condition, that [seldom (DM)] apocopates two vs. (ML), being mostly inop. (DM). It is, (1) according to S, a p. [419], i. q. [the cond. (ML)] اِنْ (R on the apoc., ML); (2) according to Mb, IS, and F, an adv. (ML): (a) perhaps S considers that, when the word مَا is affixed to اِذَا , the latter already contains the sense of condition, and is future, even if it be prefixed to the pret., like اِنْ ; so that it becomes an apocopative with مَا : whereas this cannot be the case with اِذَا , which is devoid of the sense of condition, and is applied to denote the past ; so that اِذَا , according to him, is not compounded ; (b) Sf says " I have not known any of the GG mention اِذَا , except S and his school ; and S cites [only] two verses, اِذَا دَخَلْتَ النَّحْشَ [above] and اِذَا تَرَبَّيْتُ الْيَوْمَ النَّحْشَ

“ [589]: and one of the GG says that its o. f. is ^ءأَمَّا , which “ does not occur except with the corrob. ^ءو after it [613], “ as in XIX. 26. [544]; so that, since [the metre of]
 “ the verse would be violated by the ^ءو , the form of ^ءأَمَّا “ is changed by conversion of the 1st ^ءم into ^ءن ; but this “ [explanation] is not complete in ^ء”أَنْمَا دَخَلَتْ الْخَ : (c) Mb says that [^ءأَنْ in] ^ءأَنْمَا retains its nominality; but that ^ءل restrains it from seeking prefixion, and adapts it to condition and apocopation, as in the case of ^ءحَيْثُ [202];
 for by means of ^ءل it becomes future and apocopative (R). Its government of the apoc. [419] is rare [in prose and poetry (DM)]; but is not a poetic license, contrary to the opinion of some. ^ءأَنْ is used in two ways: —
 (1) it denotes suddenness of occurrence, in which case [it differs from the cond. ^ءأَنْ in four matters, vid. that (DM)] it is peculiar to nominal props., does not need a correl., nor occur at the beginning [of the sentence (DM)], and means the present, not the future, (i. e. indicates that what follows it is realized during the realization of what precedes it, as Shm demonstrates, even if they be both past (DM),] as ^ءخَرَجْتُ فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ بِالْبَابِ I went out; and [540] lo, or there, or then, the [599] lion was at the door, whence ^ءفَالْقَاهَا فَإِذَا الْخَ ; XX. 21. Then he cast it down, and behold, or there, or then, it etc. [31] and ^{وَإِذَا} ^{أَنْقَنَّا} and ^{الْأَنْسَ} X. 22. ^{رَحْمَةً} ^{مِنْ} ^{بَعْدِ} ^{ضُرَادٍ} ^{مَسْتَهْمٍ} ^{إِذَا} ^{لَهُمْ} ^{مَكْرٌ} ^{عَٔ} And, when we make the people [of Makka (DM)] to taste of mercy after a hardship that has befallen them, lo, or there, or then, they have a plot: (a) it is (a) a p. according to Akh, which is made preferable by their saying ^{خَرَجْتُ} ^{فَإِذَا} ^{عَٔ} ^{إِنْ} ^{زَيْدًا} ^{بِالْبَابِ} I went out, and lo, verily Zaid was at the door, [like the version ^{فَإِذَا} ^{أَنَّهُ} ^{عَبْدُ} ^{الْقَفَا} ^{الْحَٔ} (519),] with Kasr of [the Hamza in] ^{إِنْ}, because, [if it were not a p., it would be an adv. of time or place, and would therefore need an op., whereas what precedes the ^{فَ} does not govern what follows it, and (DM)] what follows ^{إِنْ} does not govern what precedes it; (b) an adv. of place, according to Mb; (c) an adv. of time, according to Zj [and Rm, which opinion is attributed to S (DM)]: and the 1st opinion is adopted by IM, the 2nd by IU, and the 3rd by Z: (b) he [i. e. Z (DM)] asserts that its op. is a supplied v. derived from the letter of ^{الْمُفَاجَاةِ}, saying that XXX. 24. ^{ثُمَّ} ^{إِذَا} ^{دَعَاكُمْ} ^{دَعْوَةً} ^{مِنْ} ^{الْأَرْضِ} ^{إِذَا} ^{أَنْتُمْ} ^{تَخْرُجُونَ} Moreover, when [below] He shall call you once from the earth, then ye shall come forth is constructively ^{ثُمَّ} ^{إِذَا} Moreover, when ^{دَعَاكُمْ} ^{فَاجَأْتُمْ} ^{الْخُرُوجَ} ^{فِي} ^{ذَلِكَ} ^{الْوَقْتِ} etc, ye shall fall suddenly to coming forth in that time :

but others hold that its op. is the enunc., mentioned, as in ^{فَإِذَا زَيْدٌ جَالِسٌ}, or supplied, as in ^{فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ}, i. e. ^{حَاضِرٌ}; and that, when ^{إِذَا} itself is construed to be the enunc. [in such as ^{فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ} (DM)], its op. is ^{مُسْتَقَرٌّ} or ^{أَسْتَقَرَّ} [26, 498]: (c) the enunc. with it always occurs expressed in the Revelation, as XXI. 97. [160], ^{فَإِذَا هُمْ} XXXVI. 28. And lo, or there, or then, they were still, and ^{فَإِذَا هِيَ بَيْضَاءُ} VIII. 105. And lo, or there, or then, it was white: (d) when ^{فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ} I went forth, and there was the lion! is said, ^{إِذَا} may be an enunc. according to Mb, i. e. ^{فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ}; but not according to Zj, because the [adv. of] time is not an enunc. of a concrete n. [26]; nor according to Akh, because the p. is neither predicable nor predicable of [497]: whereas, if you say ^{فَإِذَا الْقَتْلُ} and there, or then, was fighting, [like the version ^{إِذَا أَنْتَ عَبْدُ الْقَفَا الْخ} (519) with Fath,] it may be an enunc. according to others than Akh: (e) you say ^{فَإِذَا زَيْدٌ جَالِسٌ} or ^{جَالِسًا} I went forth, and there, or then, Zaid was sitting, or and there was Zaid, sitting, or and then Zaid (was present) sitting, with (a) the nom. as an enunc., ^{إِذَا} being gov-

erved in the acc. by it: (b) the acc. as a d. s., the enunc. being إِذَا, if it be called an [adv. of] place; and, if not, then suppressed, [i. e. حَاضِرٌ (DM)]: (f) you may construe إِذَا to be an enunc. of a concrete n. [in appearance, but of an abstract n. in reality (DM)], notwithstanding our calling it an [adv. of] time [26], when you assume the suppression of a pre. n., as خَرَجْتُ فَإِذَا الْأَسَدُ I went forth, and then was (the presence of) the lion, constructively قَدْ كُنْتُ أَهْلِي فَإِذَا حُضُورُ الْأَسَدِ: (g) the Arabs say أَنْ الْعَقْرَبَ أَشَدَّ لَسْعَةً مِنَ الزَّبُورِ فَإِذَا هُوَ هِيَ I was wont to think that the scorpion was sharper in stinging than the hornet, and lo; he is as sharp as she, and فَإِذَا هُوَ أَيَّاهَا also: but this [2nd (DM)] construction was disapproved by S when he was questioned by Ks; and فَإِذَا هُوَ هِيَ is the proper construction, like VII. 105. and XX. 21; while فَإِذَا هُوَ أَيَّاهَا, if authentic, is irregular and inelegant, like the government of the apoc. by لَنْ [549], the subj. by لَمْ [548], and the gen. by لَعَلَّ [513] (ML): (h) إِذَا [denoting suddenness of occurrence (IY)] is used like the ف in the correl. of the condition, [because of the approximation of their meanings, suddenness of occurrence and succession (IY),] as XXX. 35. [1, 419] (M)

and XXX. 24. [above] (K, B): (2) it denotes something else than suddenness of occurrence, in which case (a) it is mostly an adv. of the future, implying the sense of condition, and peculiar to prefixion to verbal props., being [in all of this] contrary to the one that denotes suddenness of occurrence, with which it is combined in

XXX. 24. [above] and ^{فَإِذَا أَصَابَ بِهِ مَنْ يَشَاءُ مِنْ عِبَادِهِ} XXX. 47. [below] And, when He

watereth with it those of His servants whom He willeth, lo, or there, or then, they are glad! (ML): (a) as ^{إِذَا} is prefixed to the pret., so it is prefixed to the aor. (K, B on XLII. 28), as XCII. 1. [498], whence ^{وَهُوَ عَلَىٰ جَمْعِهِمْ} ^{إِذَا يَشَاءُ قَدِيرٌ} XLII. 28. And He, when He willeth, is able to gather them together and

^{وَإِذَا مَا أِشَاءُ أَبْعَثُ مِنْهَا * أَخْرَجْتُ اللَّيْلَ نَاشِطًا مَذْعُورًا}

(K) And, whenever I will, I rouse her (the she-camel) for the journey at the end of the night, so that she speeds along as though she were a terrified wild bull (N); [but] the v. after it is often a pret., and less often an aor., both of which are combined in the saying of Abū Dhu'aib [alHudhalī (Jsh¹)

^{وَالنَّفْسُ رَاغِبَةٌ إِذَا رَغِبَتْهَا * وَإِذَا تَرَدَّ إِلَىٰ قَلِيلٍ تَقْنَعُ}

[And the soul of man is craving when thou makest it crave; and, when it is reduced to a little, it is content

(Jsh)]: (b) the cond. إِذَا is prefixed to the n. in such as LXXXIV. 1. [23, 201] only because the n. is an ag. to a v. suppressed upon condition of being expounded, not an inch., contrary to the opinion of Akh, [who allows إِذَا to be prefixed to the inch. provided that the latter be followed by a v. (DM)]; and, as for the saying [of AlFarazdaq (Mb, Jsh)]

إِذَا بَاهِلِي تَحْتَهُ حَنْظَلِيَّةٌ * لَهُ وَلَدٌ مِنْهَا فَذَاكَ الْمَدْرَعُ

[When a man of the tribe of Bāhila, under whom is a woman of the tribe of Hanẓala, has a child by her, that child will be the mail-clad warrior, where the n. mentioned after إِذَا is not followed by a v., بَاهِلِي is not an inch., but (DM)] the full phrase is إِذَا كَانَ بَاهِلِي (ML), so that بَاهِلِي is sub. of كَانَ, the pred. of which is لَهُ وَلَدٌ (DM): (c) إِذَا does not govern the apoc., [notwithstanding its signifying condition, and being i. q. مَتَى (206) (R),] except in poetry (R, ML), as

أَسْتَغْنِي مَا أَعْنَاكَ رَبُّكَ بِالْغِنَى * وَإِذَا تُصِيبَكَ خِصَاصَةٌ فَتَجَمَّلْ

[by 'Abd Kāis Ibn Khufāf {alBurjūmī (T)}, admonishing his son Jamīl, Be content with competence, so long as thy Lord gives thee a competence; and, when poverty befalls thee, show resignation (Jsh)]: (b) it is said to be sometimes excluded from adverbiality, futurity, and the sense of condition; and each of these shall have a separate paragraph: (a) as for its exclusion from adverbiality, Akh asserts on XXXIX. 71. 73. [539] that إِذَا is [a n. of time (DM)] governed in the gen. by حَتَّى [below]; [i. e. Until the time of their coming to it (DM)]; and IJ asserts on the reading إِذَا وَقَعَتِ الْوَاقِعَةُ لَيْسَ LVI. 1-3. The time when the resurrection shall come to pass, while not a lying (soul) shall be at [the ل being i. q. قِي (DM)] its coming to pass, abasing some, exalting others, will be the time when the earth shall be shaken with violent shaking that the 1st إِذَا is an inch. and the 2nd an enunc., the two accs. being ds. s., as likewise is the prop. of لَيْسَ and its two regs. [لَوْقَعَتِهَا كَاذِبَةٌ (DM)], i. e. The time of the resurrection's coming to pass will be the time of the earth's being shaken; and they say on the verse of the Ḥamāsi [Abu-ṭTamahān alKaini (T)]

وَقَبْلُ غَدٍ يَا لَهْفٍ نَفْسِي عَلَى غَدٍ

إِذَا رَاحَ أَصْحَابِي وَلَسْتُ بِرَائِمٍ

[And before the morrow—O the grief of my soul for the morrow, for the time when my companions will return, and I shall not be returning! (T)] that إِذَا is in the position of a gen. as a subst. for [the 2nd] ^{عَدَّ}, [or of an acc. as a subst. for the position of ^{عَدَّ} عَلَى (498) (T)]; and IM asserts that it occurs as an obj. in the saying of the Prophet to 'A'isha ^{إِنِّي لَأَعْلَمُ إِذَا كُنْتُ عَنِّي رَاضِيَةً وَإِذَا كُنْتُ عَلَى غَضَبِي} Verily I do know the time when thou art pleased with me, and the time when thou art in anger against me: (b) its exclusion from futurity is through its denoting (a) the past, as ^{أَن} denotes the future, as IX. 93. [80], LXII. 11. [538] ^{وَنَدِمَانٍ يَزِيدُ الْفَخْ} And, when they saw etc., they dispersed etc., and [18]: (β) the present, vid. after the oath [from God, as will be seen (DM),] as XCII. 1. [498] and ^{وَالنَّجْمُ إِذَا هَوَى} LIII. 1. By the Pleiades [11] when they set [below], because, as is said, if it denoted the future, it would not be an adv. to the v. of the oath, [i. e. ^{أَقْسَمُ} (DM),] because this v. is originative, not enunciatory of an oath to come, since the oath of God is ancient; nor to a suppressed being serving as a d. s. to ^{الَّيْلُ} and ^{النَّجْمُ}, because the ^{حَالُ} and the future are incompatible: whereas the truth is that dependence upon the originative ^{أَقْسَمُ} is not correct, because the ancient has no time, either present or otherwise, being anterior to time; but that dependence upon ^{كَانَ}, notwithstanding that ^{إِذَا} remains in the future, is not impossible, [because the حال incompatible with the future is the temporal, not the grammatical one (DM), i. e. the present time, not the d. s.,] as is proved by the fact that the occurrence of the presumptive d. s. [74] is correct by common consent: (c) the exclusion of إذا from conditionality is exemplified in وَإِذَا مَا غَضِبُوا هُمْ يَغْفِرُونَ XLII. 35. And who, when they are wroth, forgive and وَالَّذِينَ إِذَا أَصَابَهُمُ الْبَغْيُ هُمْ يَنْتَصِرُونَ XLII. 37. And who, when wrong befalls them, help themselves, in both of which exs. إذا is an adv. to the enunc. of the inch. after it; whereas, if it were cond., and the nominal prop. a correl., this prop. would be conjoined with the ف [but see (f) below]: and hence the إذا that follows the oath, as in XCII. 1. and LIII. 1. [above] (ML): (c) since the introduction of the sense of condition into إذا and its exclusion from its original sense of specified time [206] are frequent, it may, even if it be not i. q. the cond. إن, vid. in the case of decided matters, be used in the same way as the إذا implying the sense of إن, vid. in being followed by two props. in the guise of the prot. and apod., although they are not such, as CX. 1-3. [540], in order that this arrangement may indicate that the purport of the 2nd prop. is as inseparable from the purport of the 1st prep. as the apod. from the prot.; and it is for the realization of this object that [the non-cond.] إِذَا is governed by its [apparent] apod., notwithstanding that the latter follows a p. such that what precedes it is not governed by what follows it, like the ف in CX. 3., اِنْ in اِنْ جِئْتَنِي فَانْكَ مَكْرَمٌ When thou comest to me, verily thou wilt be honored, and the ل in XIX. 67. [600] (R):

(d) what governs إِذَا [in the acc. (ML)] is (a) its prot., [as some say (R), which is the opinion of critical judges (ML),] so that it is like مَتَى [206] (R, ML), and accordingly should be parsed not as “a n. of time governing “its prot. in the gen., and governed in the acc. by its “correl.,” but only as “a n. of condition governed in the “acc. by its prot.” (DM); and the objection of AB that this opinion is refuted by the fact that the pre. is not governed by the post. does not apply, because إِذَا according to these [critical judges (DM)] is not pre. [201], as all say when it governs the apoc., as in اسْتَغْنِي مَا آتَاكَ [above] (ML): (b) [the v. or the like in (ML)] its apod., which is the saying of most (R, ML), but is open to various objections (ML): it is best, however, to make a distinction, and say that, if إِذَا implies the sense of condition, its predicament is like that of مَتَى; but that, if not, as in اِذَا غَرَبَتِ الشَّمْسُ جِئْتَنِي When the sun sets

I will come to thee, i. e. I will come to thee at the time of the setting of the sun, its op. is the v. that is in the place of an apod. by usage, though it is not an apod. in reality, not the v. that is in the place of the prot., since this v. particularizes the adv. by being post. to it [111], as in the case of the rest of the advs. epithetically particularized [140] by the purport of the props. after them, as ^{يَوْمَ يَجْمَعُ اللَّهُ الرُّسُلَ} يوم يجمع الله الرسل V. 108. On the day when God will assemble the Apostles, and the post. does not govern the pre.: for in every two or more words, that are equivalent in sense to a single word, because they occur together as a part of a sentence, the 1st may govern the 2nd, as the pre. governs the post. [110]; but the converse is not allowable, since no single word is known one of whose parts is prepos. in one respect and postpos., in another, and similarly therefore what is equivalent to a single word in sense, for which reason a conj. does not govern a conjunct, nor an appos. an ant., nor a post. a pre.: whereas the cond. word, when governed by the prot., is not together with the prot. like a single word, since they do not then occur in the place of a single word, like the ag., obj., inch., and the like; so that each of them may govern the other, as ^{مَتَى تَذْهَبُ أَذْهَبُ} متى تذهب أذهب and XVII. 110. [116]: (e) the ف in such as CX. 3. [540] is [not illative, but] red., because the illative ف is not devoid of the sense of succession, whereas ^{إِذَا جَاءَ} إذا جاء

is an adv. to the extolling, which was not to be in succession to, but in the time of, the coming: (f) إِذَا, being neither radically nor permanently cond., may, notwithstanding its being cond., (a) have for its apod. a nominal prop. without a ف [419], as in XLII. 35. and XLII. 37. [above]; (b) be followed by a nominal [prop.] devoid of v., though this is anomalous, as

فَهَلَّا أَعْدَوْنِي إِمْلِي تَفَاقَدُوا
إِذَا الْخَضَمُ ابْرَى مَائِلُ الرَّاسِ أَنْكَبُ

[by one of the Banù Faḫ'as, said to be Murra Ibn 'Addá alFaḫ'asī, And wherefore have they not prepared me for my like (may they lose one another!), when the foe is sticking out the chest, bending the head, lowering the shoulder, i. e. is lurking in ambush? (T)]: (g) إِذَا, when it occurs after حَتَّى, as حَتَّى إِذَا هَلَكَ قُلْتُمْ XL. 36. So that, when he died, ye even said, continues to require two props., and is governed in the acc. by the last of them; while حَتَّى with it is an inceptive p. [501]: but some say that إِذَا after حَتَّى may be divested of adverbiality, and be governed in the gen. by حَتَّى [above]; and perhaps they attribute to this the saying حَتَّى إِذَا أَسْلَكُوهُمْ الْخ etc. [below], this verse being the last of the ode: (h) إِذَا, when followed by مَا, remains as it was before, not becoming by means of ^أ an apocopative word distinctly cond.: but some say that ^أإِذَا is [distinctly] cond., and therefore apocopates [the v. of] the prot. and apod.; and they cite the saying of AlFarazdak

فَقَامَ أَبُو لَيْلَى إِلَيْهِ ابْنُ ظَالِمٍ وَكَانَ إِذَا مَا يَسْلُلُ السَّيْفَ يَضْرِبُ

Then Abū Lailā, the son of Zālim, arose to help him; and he was wont, whenever he drew the sword, to smite, whereas the [true] version is ^أمَتِيماً [206]. ^أإِذَا and ^أإِذَا occur in the correl. of ^أبَيْنَا [497] and ^أبَيْنَمَا [565]; and each of them then denotes suddenness of occurrence: but ^أإِذَا mostly occurs in the correl. of ^أبَيْنَمَا, [as ^أبَيْنَمَا نَحْنُ ^أفَبَيْنَا نَسُوسُ آلِهِ (565),] and ^أإِذَا in that of ^أبَيْنَا, as ^أفَبَيْنَا نَسُوسُ آلِهِ [497]; while ^أإِذَا is followed only by the pret. v., and ^أإِذَا by the nominal [prop.] (R). But As used to hold that the only chaste [idiom] was to omit them in the correl. of ^أبَيْنَا and ^أبَيْنَمَا (M, R), because the correl. frequently occurs without them (R), as in

فَبَيْنَا نَحْنُ نَرْقُبُهُ أَتَانَا * مُعَلِّقَ وَفُضَّةٍ وَزِنَادٍ رَاجِعٍ

(M), by a man of the Banū Kais 'Ailān, Then, while we were expecting him, he came to us, dangling a wallet

and a herdsman's fire-sticks (Jsh), and بَيْنَا تَعْنَقَهُ الْكَمَاةُ الْفُ

[497] (IY). The [idiom] heard from the Arabs is بَيْنَا زَيْدٌ قَامَ جَاءَ عَمْرُو without أَنْ, because the sense is Between the intervals of the time [when Zaid stood]

'Amr came, whence بَيْنَا تَعْنَقَهُ الْفُ; whereas بَيْنَمَا occurs sometimes not combined with أَنْ, like بَيْنَا, and sometimes combined with أَنْ or إِذَا, as فَاسْتَقْدِرِ اللَّهَ خَيْرًا وَارْضَ بِهِ * فَبَيْنَمَا الْعَسْرُ أَنْ دَارَتْ مَيْسِيرُ

وَبَيْنَمَا الْمَرْءُ فِي الْأَحْيَاءِ مَغْتَبِطٌ * إِذَا هُوَ الرَّمْسُ تَحْفُورَةُ الْأَعَاصِيرِ

[above] (D), by 'Ithyar Ibn Labid al'Udhri, or Huraith

Ibn Jabala, Then pray thou God to decree thee good, and do thou be satisfied with it; for, while there was hardship, there, or then, or lo, easy times came round!

And, while man is envied for his prosperity among living beings, there, or then, or lo, he is the dust that the whirlwinds obliterate! (Jsh). Since بَيْنَ, which is always pre. to the single term, is intended to be pre. to the prop., and prefixion to the prop. is like no prefixion

[201, 202], the restraining مَا is redundantly affixed to it [565]; or the Fatha is impleated [497], so that an ا is engendered, in order that the ا may indicate that بَيْنَ does not require a post. [n.], because it is as it were paused upon, and the ʾ is sometimes put for pause, as in اُنَّ [161, 497, 615, 648]. يُّنًى, being orig. an inf. n.

 meaning separation, is used to denote time and place;
 whereas, when restrained by مَ or the ʾ, and pre. to props., it denotes only time, because no [n. of] place is pre. to props., except حَيْثُ [124, 201]: but يُّنًى is really
pre. to a n. of time pre. to the prop., the full phrase being بَيْنَ اَرْقَاتِ زَيْدٍ قَائِمٌ Between (the times when) Zaid was standing, i. e. Between the times of Zaid's standing; and the n. of time being suppressed because indicated by the circumstance that ns. pre. to props. are mostly ns.
 of time, not ns. of place and others. All that we have said about يُّنًى, as to the occurrence of the restraining مَ in order to restrain it from requiring a single post. n., and as to supplying a n. of time pre. to the props., is equally applicable to كَلَّمَا [117, 181]: but since كَلَّمَا contains the sense of generality and totality, which is contained in cond. words, like مَنِ [206], مَا, and مَتَى, it resembles them more than يُّنًى does; so that it is prefixed only to the verbal [prop.], contrary to يُّنًى and يُّنًى; and for the same reason the pret. after it may occur in the sense of the future [615]. يُّنًى, يُّنًى, and كَلَّمَا are prefixed to the pret. and future. We may hazard

the conjecture that [^{أَ}يَيْنَا and ^{كَلَّ} in] ^{أَ}يَيْنَا, ^{أَ}يَيْنَمَا, and ^{كَلَّ} are uninfl., because their prefixion [to a prop.] is like no prefixion, as we said of ^{أَ}حَيْثُ [202], except that they are uninfl. upon the Fath that they were entitled to in the state of inflection, contrary to ^{أَ}حَيْثُ, because no state of inflection exists for the latter in which it is governed in the acc., so that its inflectional vowel might be observed. ^{أَ}يَيْنَا, ^{أَ}يَيْنَمَا and ^{كَلَّ} with their two props. are arranged in the same way as cond. words with the prot. and apod., in order to explain that the purport of the 2nd is as inseparable from [the purport of] the 1st as the apod. from the prot.; and for this reason ^{أَ}لَا and ^{أَ}لَا are prefixed to the correl. of ^{أَ}يَيْنَا and ^{أَ}يَيْنَمَا, in order that they may indicate the conjunction of the purport of the 2nd with [the purport of] the 1st suddenly, without delay, so that the correl. may be more confirmed in the sense of inseparability. But [^{كَلَّ} in] ^{كَلَّ} is said to be [pre. to a single term, and therefore] infl., ^{أَ}مَا being infinitival, and a n. of time pre. to ^{أَ}مَا being supplied [571]; and the like may therefore be asserted of ^{أَ}يَيْنَا. When ^{أَ}لَا and ^{أَ}لَا denoting suddenness of occurrence are prefixed to the correl., then, if you say, as Mb holds, that ^{أَ}لَا is an adv. of place, as likewise he ought to say of ^أإِذَا, they are governed in the acc. as adv. of place to what follows them, while ^{بَيْنَا}بَيْنَا and ^{بَيْنَمَا}بَيْنَمَا are adv. of time to it, so that the sense of ^أإِذَا ^أرَأَى ^أهِنْدًا ^أبَيْنَا ^أزَيْدٌ قَائِمٌ is *While Zaid was standing, there he saw Hind is Zaid saw Hind between (the times of) his standing, [saw her] in that place, i. e. in the place of his standing; and, if we say, as Zj holds, that they are adv. of time, they are pre. to the prop. after them, excluded from adverbiality, inchs. whose enunc. is ^{بَيْنَا}بَيْنَا or ^{بَيْنَمَا}بَيْنَمَا, the sense being [While etc., was the time when he saw Hind, i. e.] The time of Zaid's seeing Hind was between (the times of) his standing: but it is best to say, as IBr holds, that they are ps., in which case the op. of ^{بَيْنَا}بَيْنَا and ^{بَيْنَمَا}بَيْنَمَا is what follows the two words denoting suddenness of occurrence; or we may say that ^أإِذَا and ^أإِذَا are red., and do not denote suddenness of occurrence in the correl. of ^{بَيْنَا}بَيْنَا and ^{بَيْنَمَا}بَيْنَمَا, as AU, IKb, and Jh say that ^أإِذَا is red. in such as ^أإِذَا ^أوَأَعَدْنَا II. 48. And We appointed, and ^أإِذَا in such as* حَتَّىٰ إِذَا اسْتَوٰهُم فِي قَتَاةٍ * فَلَا كَمَا تَطْرُقُ الْجَمَالَةُ الشَّرَدَ

[by 'Abd Manāf {Ibn Rib' (Bk)} alHudhalī (Bk, N), Until they made them pass through the mountain-road named Kutā'ida, driving them along, as the owners of camels urge on the shying ones (N)]. And the analysis of such as XXX. 47. [above] is exactly like that of هُنْدًا [or هُنْدًا] ^١بَيْنَمَا ^٢زَيْدٌ ^٣قَائِمٌ ^٤إِذَا رَأَى عَمْرًا correl. of ^١بَيْنَمَا, [as ^١بَيْنَمَا ^٢الْمَرْءُ ^٣الْخَ (above),] of ^٤إِذَا, [as XXX. 47.,] and of ^١لَمَّا, as ^١لَمَّا ^٢تُبَّتْ ^٣عَلَيْهِمُ ^٤الْقِتَالُ ^٥إِذَا, as ^١فَرِيقٌ ^٢مِنْهُمْ

 IV. 79. And, when fighting hath been ordained unto them, then a party of them [206], may be an adv.
 of time, a subst. for the advs. mentioned [while, or when—then]; and we do not hold it to be pre. to the prop. after it, but hold that prop. to govern the advs.
 mentioned, i. e. in the time of the watering, in that state, they are glad, and similarly in the rest. Thus [in this last construction] the prop. post. to ^١إِذَا is suppressed, indicated by the prop. that is in the position of the prot.,
 i. e. when (He watereth them), they are glad and when (it hath been ordained), a party of them; and so we say when ^١إِذَا occurs as correl. of ^٢أَيُّ in such as XXX. 35.
 [1,419], i. e. when (it befalleth them), they despair, i. e. in that state they despair: whereas, if we say that [in the last text] it is an adv. of place, we do not supply for it a prop. post. to it, because the [n. of] place is not pre. to the prop., except ^١حَيْثُ [124, 201], but the sense is in that place they despair; and so in the correl. of ^١بَيْنَمَا, ^٢إِذَا, and ^٣لَمَّا: while, if we say that ^٤إِذَا in the correl.
 of the four things is a p., there is no difficulty [about the

op. and post.], because اِنْ is then a p., exactly like the ف [540]. Sometimes اِنْ denotes suddenness of occurrence in something else than the correl. of بَيْنَا and بَيْنَمَا, as كُنْتُ وَاقِفًا اِنْ جَاءَنِي عَمْرُو then, or lo, 'Amr came to me. And بَيْنَا may be pre. to the inf. n., contrary to بَيْنَمَا, as بَيْنَا تَعَانَقَهُ [497], in full بَيْنَا تَعَانَقَهُ اَوْقَاتَ بَيْنِ اَوْقَاتِ between (the times of) his embracing; but the best known [version] is the nom., as an inch. whose enunc. is suppressed, i. e. بَيْنَا تَعَانَقَهُ حَاصِلٌ while his embracing (was being realized) (R).

§ 205. اِنْ is i. q. عِنْدَ [115], except that it is peculiar in 6 matters (A):—(1) it [always (A)] denotes beginning of extent (R, IA, A) in time or place (R, IA, Sn), as اِنْ صَبَاحٍ From daybreak and مِنْ لَدُنْ حَكِيمٍ عَلِيمٍ XXVII. 6. From a wise, knowing One (R), thereby differing from مِنْ [499] (R, Sn), as we [i. e. the BB] say (R); and hence عِنْدَ and لَدُنْ alternate in such as جِئْتُ مِنْ جَنَّةٍ or مِنْ لَدُنْهُ, [vid. when the inceptive مِنْ is prefixed to عِنْدَ (Sn),] e. g. اَتَيْنَا رَحْمَةً مِنْ عِنْدِنَا وَعِلْمَانَا. XVIII. 64. Unto whom We had vouchsafed mercy from Us, and whom We had taught knowledge from Us, contrary to جَلَسْتُ عِنْدَهُ I sat by him, where جَلَسْتُ لَدُنْهُ is not allowable, because the sense of beginning is wanting here (A): but, when pre. to the prop., لَدُنْ becomes purely denotative of time, because the only adv. of place pre. to the prop. is حَيْثُ [124, 201], as

صَرِيحٌ غَوَانٍ رَاقِئَةً وَرَقْنَةً
لَدُنْ شَبَّ حَتَّى شَابُ سَوْدَ الذَّرَائِبِ

[by AlKutāmī, Smitten by blooming maids, that he pleased, and that pleased him, from the time that he became a youth until the black locks grew white (FA)]; while the prop. may be headed by an infinitival p. [201], since لَدُنْ is not orig. purely denotative of time, as

فَإِنَّ الْكَثْرَ أَعْيَانِي قَدِيمًا * وَلَمْ أَقْتَرِ لَدُنْ أَنِي غَلَامٌ

by 'Amr Ibn Ḥassān, For verily wealth eluded me of old; nor was I poor from the time that I was a young man (R): (2) it is mostly used governed in the gen. by مِنْ (IA, A); and therefore does not occur in the Kur except with مِنْ, as XVIII. 64. and لِيُنْذِرَ بَأْسًا شَدِيدًا XVIII. 2. That it may warn them that disbelieve of a grievous chastisement proceeding from Him (IA): (3) it is uninfl. (R, IA, A), according to most of the Arabs (IA), either, as IH says, because some of its

dial. vars. are constituted like the p. [159], and the rest assimilated to them, otherwise there would be no reason for its uninflectedness, because it is like ^{أَ}عِنْدَ, which is infl. by common consent; or, as I think (R), because it [exceeds the rest of the aplastic advs. (64), and (R)] resembles the p. [159], in aplasticity, being not only aplastic, [i. e. not excluded from adverbiality, except by being governed in the gen. by ^{أَ}مِنْ (IA),] but also inseparable from the sense of beginning (R, IA) of extent, and not predicable [see (6) below] (IA): but Ḳais inflect it (R, IA, A), by assimilation to ^{أَ}عِنْدَ (Sn); and hence the reading [of Abū Bakr on the authority of 'Aṣim (IA, Sn)] ^{أَ}مِنْ لَدُنْهُ XVIII. 2. (IA, A) with the و quiescent, but made to smack of Ḍamm (IA, Sn); and possibly the saying [of a Tā'ī Rājiz (FA)]

تَنْتَهَضُ الرَّعْدَةُ فِي ظَهْرِي * مِنْ لَدُنِ الظُّهْرِ إِلَى الْعَصِيرِ

(IA) The shivering fit of ague comes on in my poor back from the time of noon until near the evening (J): (4) it may be pre. to props. [below]: (5) it may be aprothetic [in letter and sense (Sn)] before ^{أَ}عُدُوَّة [below]: (6) it occurs only as a complement [see (3) above]: you say ^{أَ}السَّفَرُ مِنْ عِنْدِ الْبَصْرَةِ The journey is from Al-Basra, but ^{أَ}مِنْ لَدُنِ الْبَصْرَةِ (A). It has 8 dial. vars., ^{أَ}لَدُنْ, the original and best known one, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ, and ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ; but elision of its ^{أَ} is not allowable when it is pre. to a pron. (R). Being always pre. [115] (IM), ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ governs [what follows it in (R)] the gen. (IM, R) by prothesis [110] (R, IA, A), (1) literally, if it be a [single (R) infl. (A)] n., [as XXVII. 6. and ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ تَنْتَهَضُ ^{أَ}أَلْفُ (above) (A)]: (2) constructively, if it be (a) a prop. (R, A), as

وَتَذْكُرُ نِعْمَةَ لَدُنِّ أَنْتَ يَا فَاعٍ

And thou rememberest his bounty, since thou wast a strip-ling and ^{أَ}صَرِيْعٌ غَوَايِ ^{أَ}أَلْفُ; (b) uninfl., as XVIII. 64. and XVIII. 2. (A). But [the word (R)] ^{أَ}غَدُوَّةٌ after ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ may be governed in (1) the gen. [by prothesis (A), according to rule (IA, A)]: (2) the acc. (R, IA, A), as وَمَا زَالَ مَهْرِي مَزَجَرِ الْكَلْبِ مِنْهُمْ

لَدُنِّ غَدُوَّةٌ حَتَّى دُنْتُ لَغُرُوبِ

(IA, A), by Abū Sufyān [Ṣakhr (AGh)] Ibn Ḥarb (SR) alKuraṣhī alUmayyī (AGh), And my colt ceased not to be as far from them as the rated dog [64], from morning until it (i. e. the sun) was near to setting (J): (a) ^{أَ}لَدُنِّ is then cut off from prothesis in letter and sense [above] (A); while ^{أَ}غَدُوَّةٌ is anomalously governed in the acc. (IM, R) by it (IM) as a sp. (IA, A), which IM prefers

(IA), or by assimilation to the [direct (Sn)] obj. (A), the reason being that ^{لَدُنْ} is frequently used with ^{عُدُوَّةٌ}, contrary to the rest of the advs., like ^{بُكْرَةً} and ^{عَشِيَّةً}, and that, the ^د of ^{لَدُنْ} being pronounced with Damm, Fath, and Kasr, as above shown in its dial. vars., and moreover its ^ن being sometimes elided, the vowels of the ^د resemble the vowels of inflection in respect of their changeability, and the ^ن resembles the Tanwīn in respect of its suppressibility, so that ^{لَدُنْ عُدُوَّةٌ} becomes like ^{رَأْتُوهُ خَلَاً} [or ^{ضَارِبٌ زَيْدًا}] in letter, and therefore ^{عُدُوَّةٌ} is governed in the acc. by assimilation to the sp. in ^{رَأْتُوهُ خَلَاً} [85] or to the obj. in ^{ضَارِبٌ زَيْدًا} [343] (R): (b) some say that ^{عُدُوَّةٌ} is pred. of ^{كَانَ} suppressed [with its sub. (A)], i. e. ^{لَدُنْ كَانَتْ السَّاعَةُ عُدُوَّةً} since (the hour was) morning; [and, according to this construction, ^{لَدُنْ} is pre. to the prop. (Sn)]: (c) if you couple to ^{عُدُوَّةً} [after ^{لَدُنْ} (IA)], the coupled may be in the gen. from observance of the general rule, or acc. from observance of the letter: Akh mentions that (IA, A), but IM deems the acc. improbable (A), because another n. than ^{عُدُوَّةٌ} would then be governed in the acc. after ^{لَدُنْ} [below] (Sn): (d) ^{عُدُوَّةٌ} after ^{لَدُنْ} is always pronounced with Tanwīn, even if it be det. [8], either by assimilation to the sp., which is always indet. [83]; or because, if we suppressed the Tanwin, we should not know whether it was governed in the acc. or gen. (R): (3) the nom. [as the KK relate (IA, A), by suppression of one of the two terms of the prop. (R), ^{كُنْ} ^{عُدُوَّةُ} being governed in the nom. (a) by { the att. (A) } ^{كُنْ} suppressed (IA, A)], i. e. ^{كُنْ} ^{كَانَتْ} ^{عُدُوَّةُ} since morning (was) (R, IA, A); (b) as enunc. of a suppressed inch., i. e. ^{كُنْ} ^{رَقِبَتْ} ^{هُوَ} ^{عُدُوَّةُ} from (a time that was) morning; (c) by assimilation to the ag., [because of the resemblance of ^{كُنْ} to the act part., as above shown : while ^{كُنْ} in case (a) is pre. to the prop., in case (b) pre. to a single term understood, and in case (c) not pre. at all (Sn)]. S says that no n. but ^{عُدُوَّةُ} is governed in the acc. after ^{كُنْ} [above] (A). ^{لَدَى} is an adv. [of place (IY), said to be a dial. var. of ^{كُنْ} ; but really (BS)] syn. with ^{عِنْدَ} (IY, BS), as S says: so that it denotes nearness, (1) sensible, as ^{لَدَى} ^{سَيِّدَهَا} ^{وَالْفِيَا}, الباب XII. 25. And they found her lord at the door; (2) id., as ^{لَدَيْهِ} ^{فَقَهُ} ^{وَارَبٌ} In him are, or He has, knowledge of law and sagacity (BS). ^{لَدَى} is i. q. ^{كُنْ}, except that ^{كُنْ} and its dial. vars. mentioned, being used in the sense of beginning, are always accompanied by ^{مِنْ}, either expressed, which is mostly the case, or supplied, so that it is i. q. ^أمِنْ ^ععِنْدِ ; whereas ^ألَدَى is i. q. ^ععِنْدِ (R). ^ألَدَى is like ^ععِنْدِ unrestrictedly, except that (1) it cannot be governed in the gen. [by the p. (Sn)], contrary to ^ععِنْدِ : (2) ^ععِنْدِ is more versatile than it in two ways, vid. that (a) ^ععِنْدِ is an adv. for concrete ns. and abstract ones, as ^عهَذَا الْقَوْلُ عِنْدِي صَوَابٌ This saying in my opinion is correct ; whereas that is impossible with ^ألَدَى : so says ISh: (b) you say ^ععِنْدِي مَالٌ [115], even if it be absen. from you; but not ^ألَدَى مَالٌ, except when it is present : so say H, AHA, and ISh (A). It is [said to be] uninfl. upon quiescence (IY) : but there is no proof of its uninflectedness (R) ; and A's saying that it is "like ^ععِنْدِ unrestrictedly" implies that it is infl. (Sn). Its ^أ is [treated like the ^أ of ^أإِلَى and ^أعَلَى, being preserved with the explicit n., and (R)] converted into ^يي with the pron. in the dial. of most [129] (R, BS); but S transmits on the authority of Khl from a people of the Arabs ^ألَدَاكَ, ^أإِلَاكَ, and ^أعَلَاكَ, as

طَارُوا عَلَاهُنَّ فَبَطَرُ عَلَاهَا * وَ أَشَدُّ بِمِثْنَى حَقْبٍ حَقَوَاهَا

(R), by Abu-nNajm, They have fled upon them, then flee thou upon her : and bind her two flanks tight with a double hind-girth (FA).

§ 206. ^{الآن} is a n. denoting time present, (1) in whole, as II. 66. [149]; (2) in part, as ^{فَمَنْ يَسْتَمِعِ الآنَ} LXXII. 9. For whoso listeneth now (Sh), i. e. at the time of the revelation of the text, and afterwards to the end of time (MAd). It is an adv. of time, uninfl. upon Fath [201] (IY,IA). Some hold that the ^{أل} prefixed to it denotes determination of presence [599], because ^{الآن} means At this time; but some, among whom is IM, hold that it is red., and that ^{الآن} is uninfl. because it implies the sense of the p. [159], vid. the ^ل of presence (ل, ج). What I think is that ^{الآن} is made det. by the ^ل expressed in it, which is inseparable from it, because the det. is always meant by it: and that it is uninfl. because of its vagueness [171] and applicability to every time when it is present, but not when it is past; and because the p. of determination is inseparable from it, so that it follows the course of ^{الَّذِي} [176] (IY). It is sometimes infl., as in the saying [of Abū Ṣakhr alHudhalī (SM)]

لَسَلِمَىٰ بِذَاتِ الْبَيْتِ دَارُ عَرَفَتِهَا وَآخِرَىٰ بِذَاتِ الْجَيْشِ آيَاتُهَا سَطُرُ كَانَهُمَا مَلَانٍ لَمْ يَتَغَيَّرَا
وَقَدْ مَرَّ لِلدَّارَيْنِ مِنْ بَعْدِنَا عَصْرُ

*Salma had an abode at Dhāt AlBain that I knew, and another at Dhāt AlJaish, whose marks are erased like a line ; as though they [the two places, masc. because each is a مَوْضِعٌ] had not been different from now, when an age has passed for the two abodes after our time, orig. مِنَ الْآنِ [660] (Sh). In II. 66. الْآنِ is read (B); and sometimes لَّانِ is said (R). As for امْسِ, [when it means a specified (Sh, Fk) day (MAd), vid. the day before your day (Sh, YS), and is not pre., nor synarthrous, nor a {du. or (MAd)} broken pl., nor a dim. (Fk, MAd),] (1) according to the Hijāzīs, it is uninfl. (M, R, Sh, Fk) upon Kasr [201] (M, Sh, Fk), unrestrictedly (Sh, Fk), i. e. in the nom., acc., and gen., with and without Tanwīn (YS), as*

مَنْعَ الْبَقَاءِ تَقْلِبُ الشَّمْسِ * وَطُلُوعَهَا مِنْ حَيْثُ لَا تُمْسِي

وَطُلُوعَهَا حُمْرًا صَافِيَةً * وَغُرُوبَهَا صَفْرًا كَالْوَرْسِ

تَجْرِي عَلَى كِبَدِ السَّمَاءِ كَمَا * يَجْرِي حِمَامُ الْمَوْتِ فِي النَّفْسِ

الْيَوْمَ أَعْلَمَ مَا يَجِيءُ بِهِ * وَمَضَى بِفَضْلِ قَضَائِهِ امْسِ

(Sh) by Rauḥ Ibn Zimbā' [alJudhāmi (ID, Is)], The changing of the sun has forbidden remaining (in the world), and its rising from where it enters not upon the evening, and its rising red, clear, and its setting yellow like saffron. It runs its course upon the middle of the sky, as the doom of death runs its course in the living being. To-day I know what it (i. e. to-day) brings, and yesterday has passed by the grace of His (i. e. the Lord's) decree (Jsh): (a) according to the GG (Fk), it is uninfl. because of its implying [the sense of (Fk)] the determinative ج [159] (IY, R, Fk), and becoming det. thereby [IY]: for, every day anterior to a day being its yesterday, أمس^{أف} is orig. indet.; and afterwards, when the yesterday of the speaker's day is meant, the determinative ج denoting knowledge is prefixed to it; but is then suppressed and supplied, because the mind of every one that bears أمس^{أف} free from prothesis immediately flies to the yesterday of the speaker's day, so that it becomes det., as لَقِيْتَهُ أَمْسَ الْاَحَدِثِ^{أف و و أف} I met him on the most recent yesterday (R): (b) it is uninfl. upon a vowel in order that it may be known to be orig. infl. [159] (Fk); and [the سى (IY)] is pronounced with Kasr, [according to rule (Fk),] because of the concurrence of 2 quiescents [664] (IY, Fk): (c) رَأَيْتُهُ أَمْسَ^{أف و و أف} I saw him yesterday has been heard, but is anomalous (KF): (2) according to [most of (Sh, Fk)] Banù Tamim, [as S transmits from them (R),] it is (a) infl. as a diptote in the nom. [exclusively (Sh, Fk), as

أَعْتَصِمُ بِالرَّجَاءِ إِنْ عَنِ يَأْسٍ * وَتَنَاسَ الَّذِي تَضْمَنُ أَمْسَ^{أف}

(YS) Hold fast to hope if despair obtrude itself; and feign to forget what yesterday contained (FA)]; (b) uninfl. upon Kasr in the acc. and gen. (R, Sh, Fk), as in the dial. of the Hijāzīs (R), as ^{أَسْ} ^{عَتَكْتُ} ^{أَمْسِ} I stayed in the mosque yesterday and ^{أَسْ} ^{عَجِبْتُ} ^{مِنْ} ^{أَمْسِ} I won- dered at yesterday (Sh): (a) the reason of the diptote declension is regard to the constructive quality of proper name [below]; and they prefer diptote declension in the nom. and uninflectedness in the acc. and gen., as they prefer uninflectedness in such as ^{أَسْ} ^{حَضَار} and diptote declension in such as ^{أَسْ} ^{حَذَام} and ^{أَسْ} ^{قَطَام} [194], although all are of one cat. [193] (R): (3) according to [some of (R, Sh, Fk)] the Banū Tamīm, [says S, it is pronounced with Fath after ^{أَسْ} ^{مَنْ}, because, says Sf (R),] it is declined as a diptote (M, R, Sh, Fk) unrestrictedly (Sh, Fk),

i. e. in the nom., acc., and gen. (YS): for, [continues Sf,] what follows ^{أَسْ} ^{مَنْ} is put into the nom. or gen. [203]; and therefore, since those who put the nom. after ^{أَسْ} ^{مَنْ} decline ^{أَسْ} ^{أَمْسِ} as a diptote, as ^{أَسْ} ^{مَنْ} ^{أَمْسِ}, those who put the gen. do the same, so that it is assimilated to itself (R), as

^{أَسْ} ^{لَقَدْ} ^{رَأَيْتُ} ^{عَجَبًا} ^{مَنْ} ^{أَمْسَا} * ^{عَجَازًا} ^{مِثْلَ} ^{السَّعَالِي} ^{خُمْسًا} (M, R, Sh) Assuredly I have seen a wonder since yester- day, old hags like witches, five (AAz); but this, says he, is rare, because the gen. [of the past] after ^{أَسْ} ^{مَنْ} is rare [510] (R): (a) the cause of the diptote declension is

[the combination of (IY)] deviation (IY, Fk) from ^{أَمْسٍ} (Fk) with determination (IY), [i. e.] with the quality of proper name [18] (Fk): (b) the difference between deviation [from the p. (IY)] and implication [of it (IY)] is that with deviation the p. may be expressed, but not with implication (IY, YS), for which reason what deviates is infl., and what implies is uninfl.; and thereby is known the secret of the inflectedness of ^{سَحَرٌ} [18] and the uninflectedness of ^{أَمْسٍ} according the Hījāzīs: but some say that deviation is alteration of the lit. form of the word while its sense remains, and that implication is the use of it in its original sense with another sense super-added (YS): (c) Z and many of the GG say that ^{أَمْسٍ} is infl. according to the Banū Tamīm unrestrictedly, i. e. in all states, being perhaps misled by the verse ^{لَقَدْ رَأَيْتَ النَّحْ} [above]; whereas S restricts this saying by the words “some of the Banū Tamīm” and “after ^{مَدٌ}” (R): (d) Zji is mistaken in asserting upon the authority of this verse, that, according to some of the Arabs, ^{أَمْسٍ} is uninfl. upon Fatḥ (R, Sh): (4) according to some of the Arabs, as some relate, it [is held to be indet., and (IY)] is infl. as a triptote (IY, R, YS), unrestrictedly (YS), like ^{غَدٌ} (R), as ^{مَضَى أَمْسٍ بِمَا فِيهِ} Yesterday has passed with what was in it (IY); but this is strange (IY, R). S says that, if you name a man ^{أَمْسٍ} according to the dial. of AlḤijāz, you make it triptote, like غَاقٍ [200] when used as a name, because every uninfl. single term used as a name for a person must be infl. as a triptote [191]: and, according to the dial. of [most of] the Banū Tamīm also, you make it triptote in the [3] cases, because it must be made triptote in the acc. and gen., since it is uninfl. upon Kasr according to them ; and, when you make it triptote in the two cases, you must do so in the nom. also, since there is no n. in the language triptote in the acc. and gen. and diptote in the nom. (R). But, when one of the preceding conditions is wanting (Fk), [i. e.] when ^{أَمْسٍ} (1) is indet. (R), [which occurs] when it means some day or other of the past days (Sh), as كَلَّ غَدٌ يَصِيرُ أَمْسًا Every to-morrow will become a yesterday (R), or (2) is pre., [as مَضَى أَمْسُنَا Our yesterday has passed (R, MAd),] or (3) is synarthrous, [as X. 25. (532) (Sh),] or (4) is a [du. or (R, MAd) broken (Sh)] pl. (R, Sh), as [مَضَى أَمْسَانِ Two yesterdays have passed and (MAd)]

مَرَّتْ بِنَا أَوَّلَ مِنْ أَمْسٍ * تَمَيَّسُ فِينَا مَيْسَةَ الْعُرُوسِ

(Sh) She passed by us before days gone by, swaying in her walk with the swaying walk of the bride (MAd), it is infl. [as a triptote (Fk)] by common consent (R, Sh, Fk), because of the removal of the cause of uninflectedness, vid. the supply of the ل (R): (a) the synarthrous ^{أس}امسى is sometimes uninfl. (R, YS), perhaps because the ل is construed to be red. (R); and, in the verse [of Nuṣaib (MAd)]

فَانِي وَقَفْتُ الْيَوْمَ وَالْأَمْسِ قَبْلَهُ بِبَابِكَ حَتَّى كَانَتْ الشَّمْسُ تَغْرُبُ

[And verily I have stood to-day and yesterday before it at thy door until the sun was near to setting (MAd)],

^{أس}امسى is related with [Fath as being an infl. adv., and (Sh)] Kasr as being uninfl. (Sh, YS): (b) the cause of its inflection in the du. and pl. is that the ل is supplied only because the mind immediately flies to one of the genus on account of its notoriety among its likes ; whereas, when ^{أس}امسى is dualized or pluralized, that specified one no longer remains (R): (c) according to AH (YS), ^{أس}امسى is declared by S [and others (YS)] to have no dim. [292] (R, Sh, YS), like ^ععَد (R, YS); but it is said by Mb, [F, H, and IM (Sh), as likewise by IB (YS),] to have a dim. (Sh, YS), in which case it is infl., according to all, as when it is a broken pl. (Sh). If, however, [the anarthrous (Fk)] ^{أس}امسى [that means a specified (Fk) day] be used as an adv., it is uninfl. by common consent (Fk, MAd): so in the Audah (Fk), which here follows IB

(YS). قَطًّا [is an adv., which (ML)] denotes totality of past time; [and is always used in the sense of اَبَدًا ever, because it is derived from الْقَطُّ, which means cutting (187), as you say لَا أَفْعَلُ الْبَتَّةَ I shall decidedly not do it, except that قَطًّا is uninfl., contrary to الْبَتَّةَ (R)]. It is (1) peculiar to negation (M, R, ML), as مَا فَعَلْتُهُ قَطًّا I have not ever done it (IY, ML): (2) sometimes used without negation (R, DM), (a) in letter and sense, as كُنْتُ أَرَاهُ قَطًّا I used to see him continually or always, i. e. دَائِمًا (R), whence the saying of one of the Companions قَصَرْنَا الصَّلَاةَ فِي السَّفَرِ مَعَ الرَّسُولِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ أَكْثَرَ وَجُودِنَا فِيهَا مَضَى We shortened prayer in journeying with the Apostle (God bless him, and give him peace!) in most of our ever being, i. e. أَكْثَرَ وَجُودِنَا فِيهَا مَضَى in most of our existence in the past (DM); (b) in letter but not sense, as هَلْ رَأَيْتَ الذَّنْبَ قَطًّا [144] (R). It is uninfl. (R, ML), because, as is said, some of its dial. vars. are constituted like ps. [159], as will be seen; but rather because it always implies [the sense of the p., vid.] the ل of totality [599], since it includes the whole of the past (R); [or] because it implies the sense of مِنْ [510] and إِلَى [500], since the sense is [I have not done it] since I was created until now (ML). It is uninfl. [upon a vowel, in order that two quiescents may not meet together: and (ML)] upon Damm (IY, R, ML), by assimilation to the finals (ML), like قَبْلُ and بَعْدُ [201] (IY); and sometimes upon Kasr, according to rule [664] (ML). قُصًا is the best known of its dial. vars. (R, ML); and قُصًا, قُصًا, قُصًا (IY, R), and قُصًا (R, ML)] occur (M, R, ML) عَوْضٍ [or عَوْضٍ (M), orig. a n. denoting {time and (R)} period (IY, R), is an adv., which (ML)] denotes totality of future time (M, R, ML), i. q. اَبَدًا (R, ML); but is sometimes used to denote bare time, not i. q. اَبَدًا, in which case it is infl., as وَلَوْلَا نَبْلُ عَوْضٍ فِي خُصَمَاتِي وَأَوْصَالِي

لَطَاعَنْتُ صُدُورَ الْخَيْلِ طَعْنًا لَيْسَ بِالْأَلَى

[by AlFind azZimmānī, And, but for a shooting of time in the thick parts of my forearms and my joints, I should have speared the breasts of the horsemen with a spearing not the one falling short (T)] and أَفْعَلُ ذَلِكَ مِنْ نِي عَوْضٍ, i. e. I will do that in future (R). It is (1) peculiar to negation (M, R, ML), and mostly used with the oath (IY, R), as رَضِيَعي لِبَاكِ الْغ [600] (M, R): (2) sometimes used with affirmation, and in the sense of the past, as وَلَوْلَا دِنَاعِي عَنْ عَفَاقٍ وَمَشْهَدِي

هَوَتْ بِعَفَاقِي عَوْضٌ عَنْقَاءُ مُغْرَبٌ

And, but for my defending 'Ifāk and mine awe-inspiring aspect, a calamity would have destroyed 'Ifāk before; though here it is negated in sense, because it is in the correl. of لَوْلَا [574] (R). If pre., it is infl., as لَا أُنْعَلُهُ I will not do it ever [below] (IY, ML), i. e. دَهْرُ الدَّاهِرِينَ (IY); and, if not pre., it is uninfl. (ML). It is uninfl., [because it implies the sense of the 1 and ل (T)]: (1) upon Damm, [transmitted by the KK (T), because it is cut off from prothesis (IY, R), like قَبْلُ (IY, R, ML) and بَعْدُ (201) (IY, R), as is proved by its being infl. with the post., as عَوْضُ الْعَاضِيْنَ (above), i. e. so long as a period of time remains (R)]; (2) upon Fath (T, IY, R, ML), for the sake of lightness (IY), like أَيْنَ [below] (ML); (3) upon Kasr (R, ML), like أَمْسَى [above]. لَمَّا is peculiar to the pret.; and requires two props., [the purport of (DM)] the 2nd of which exists upon the existence [of the purport (DM)] of the 1st. It is said to be a p. denoting existence [of its correl. (DM)] because of existence [of its prot. (DM)]; or, says one of them, [vid. S (DM),] a p. denoting necessity [of the 2nd (DM)] because of necessity (ML) of the 1st

(DM). According to [IS, however, who is followed by (ML)] F (R, ML), IJ, and many (ML), it is [a n. used, like ^{كَلِمًا}, in the same way as a cond. word (204) (R),] an adv. (IY, R, ML) of time (IY), i. q. حِينَ (IY, ML), the meaning of which is vague time (IY); or, says IM (ML), i. q. اِذْ (R, ML), which is good, because it is peculiar to the pret. and to prefixion to the prop. (ML), like اِذْ (DM): and it is uninfl., because of its vagueness and need of a prop. after it, like اِذْ and اِذَا [159, 201] (IY). IKh refutes the assertors of its nominality by the allowability of ^{لَمَّا اَكْرَمْتَنِي اَمْسِي اَكْرَمْتَك الْيَوْمَ} Since thou honoredst me yesterday, I honored thee to-day, [upon the ground that it is a p. of dependence, not adverbial (DM),] because, when it is construed to be an adv., its op. is the correl., [so that the sense resolves itself into I honored thee to-day at the time when thou honoredst me yesterday (DM),] whereas the honoring occurring to-day was not in yesterday; but the reply is that this is like V. 116 [419], i. e. If (it prove that) I have said it, and similarly here, i. e. When (it proved) to-day (that) thou honoredst me yesterday, I honored thee (ML). It is followed by a [v. (R)] pret. (IY, R) in letter and sense or by ^{لَمْ يَفْعَلْ} (R). And its correl. is (1) a pret. v., [by common consent, as ^{فَلَمَّا نَجَّاهُمْ اِلَى الْبَرِّ اَعْرَضْتُمْ} XVII. 69. And, when He hath brought you safe to land, ye turn aside (ML): (2) a nominal prop. conjoined with (a) the إِذَا denoting suddenness of occurrence, [also by common consent (DM), as فَلَمَّا نَجَّاهُمْ إِلَى الْبَرِّ إِذَا هُمْ يُشْرِكُونَ XXIX. 65. And, when He hath brought them safe to land, lo, they worship other gods! (ML), whence IV. 79. (204) (R)]; (b) the ف, [according to IM, as فَلَمَّا نَجَّاهُمْ XXXI. 31. And, when He hath brought them safe to land, then of them is a hesitater (ML)]; (3) an aor. (R, ML) i. q. the pret. (DM), according to IU, as فَلَمَّا ذُهِبَ عَنْ إِبْرَاهِيمَ الرَّوْعُ وَجَاءَتْهُ الْبَشْرَى XI. 77. And, when the dread had departed from Abraham, and the glad tidings had come unto him, he disputed with the messengers of Us, which is renderable by جَادَلْنَا (ML): (4) seldom a pret. conjoined with the ف (R). A difficult ex. of this لَمَّا is the saying of the poet

أَقُولُ لِعَبْدِ اللَّهِ لَمَّا سَقَاؤُنَا
وَنَحْنُ بِوَادِي عَبْدِ شَمْسٍ وَهَاشِمٍ

[I say, i. e. said, to 'Abd Allāh, when our bucket fell, while we were in the valley of 'Abd Shams, Look, and watch it (Jsh)]; for, it is said, "where are its two vs.?" : but the reply is that سَقَاؤُنَا is ag. of a suppressed v. expounded by وَهَاشِمٍ, [which is a v. (DM)] i. q. سَقَطَ, [not part of a personal proper name, and ought to be written with the ي, but is written with the ا for the sake of the puzzle (DM)]; and that the correl. is suppressed, constructively قُلْتُ, as is proved by أَقُولُ; while شَمِ is an imp. from شَمَتَ الْبَرْقُ I looked at [and watched (Jsh)] the lightning; and the meaning is When our bucket fell [into the well (DM)], I said to 'Abd Allāh, Look at it (ML). لَهُ in their saying أَبْرَكَ لَهُ, i. e. لَهُ أَبْرَكَ, is akin to the uninfl. advs., because it is orig. a prep. and gen., the predicament of which is the same as that of advs. [498]. The prep. لِ is suppressed from frequency of usage, and the determinative لِ supplied, so that لَهُ أَبْرَكَ remains, as لَهُ أَبْنَى عَمَّكَ النَّحْ [508]; and therefore it is uninfl., because it implies [the sense of] the p. [159]: and afterwards the ع and لِ [of لَهُ orig. لِيه] are transposed, the ح being made quiescent because of its occurrence in the place of the quiescent ا, and the ا being restored to its o. f. as a ي because of the quiescence of the ع, according to one of S's two opinions upon لَهُ, vid. that it is from لَهُ He was hidden or veiled, يَلِيهِ; while the ي is then pronounced with Fath, because of the lightness of Fath upon the ي; and sometimes the ي is elided, so that لَهُ أَبْرَكَ is said. مَعَ [115], as S appears to say, is uninfl.: and is held to be so because it is constituted like ps. [159]; or because it resembles the p, in the smallness of its plasticity, since it is always in the acc.: but it should rather be decided to be infl., because of the affixion of the Tanwīn in such as كُنَّا مَعًا We were together; and of the sign of the gen. in such as بَخَرَجْتُ مِنْ مَعِهِ I went forth from beside him, i. e. مِنْ عِنْدِهِ, although the prefixion of مِنْ to it is anomalous. The ل in مَعًا, according to Khl, is a substitute for the Tanwīn [640], since, according to him, مَع has no ل in the o. f.; but, according to Y and Akh, which is the truth, it is like the ل of فَتَى, a substitute for the ل [719]; so that مَع, according to them, is the reverse of [the pre. n. in] أَخَوَك [16], its ل being restored in the aprothetic state, and elided in prothesis, because its place is supplied by the post. (R). اَيْنَ is [an adv. of place (IY),] (1) interrog. [581], as اَيْنَ كُنْتَ Where wast thou?; (2) cond. [419] (M, R), as

اَيْنَ تَصْرِفُ بِهَا الْعَدَاةَ تَجِدُنَا * نَصْرِفُ الْعَيْسَ نَحْوَهَا لِلتَّلَافِي

Wherever thou turnest with her in the early morning thou wilt find us turn the pale yellow camels towards her for meeting (IY). It is uninfl. [159] upon a vowel because of the [combination of (IY)] two quiescents, and upon Fath because of the heaviness of [Damm or (R)]

Kasr [664] after the فِي (IY, R). مَتَى is [a n. (ML)], (1) interrog., [as مَتَى نَصْرُ اللَّهِ II. 210. When will the help of God be? (ML)]; (2) cond. (M, R, ML), as أَنَا ابْنِي [149] (IY, ML): and in both cases denotes time (R). مَتَى is also a p. [513], or a n. syn. with وَسَطًا, as in وَضَعْتُهُ مَتَى كُمِي I put it in; or in the middle of, my sleeve, [transmitted by AZ (R),] where it is i. q. فِي, [says ISd (ML),] or وَسَطًا [say others (ML)]; and similarly in شَرِبْنِي بِمَاءِ الْبَحْرِ الْخ [503, 513], where it is i. q. مِنْ, [say some (ML),] or وَسَطًا (R, ML), says ISd (ML). It is uninfl. [159] upon quiescence (IY). The red. مَا [565] is attached to [the cond. (IY)] مَتَى and أَيَّ, [as IV. 80. (419, 565, 181) and

*مَتَى مَا يَرِ النَّاسُ الْغَنَى وَجَارُهُ * فَقِيرٌ يَقُولُوا عَاجِزٌ وَحَلِيمٌ*

*Whenever men see the rich, while his neighbour is poor, they say "Helpless and powerful" (IY)]; and augments them in vagueness. The distinction between مَتَى and*

أَنَّا [204] is that مَتَى denotes vague time, and أَنَّا specified (M), vid. coming, time, for which reason مَتَى is cond., and أَنَّا is not; for, if أَن If were put in the place of أَنَّا in LXXXIV. 1. [23], it would not be good, because what is certain to come to pass would be made doubtful [588] (IY). ^{أَيَّانُ} is [a vague adv. of time (IY),] (1) i. q. the interrog. ^{مَتَى} (M, R), except that (a) ^{مَتَى} is more frequently used; (b) ^{أَيَّانُ} is peculiar to great [and solemn (IY)] matters, as ^{يَسْأَلُونَكَ عَنِ السَّاعَةِ} ^{أَيَّانُ مَرَسَاهُ} VII. 186 They ask thee about the resurrection, when its coming to pass will be (IY, R) and Lf. 12. [445], whereas ^{أَيَّانُ نَمَتْ} is not said; (c) ^{أَيَّانُ} is peculiar to the future, contrary to ^{مَتَى}, which is used in the past and future: (2) cond. [419], allowed by some of the moderns (R). It is uninfl. because of its implying [the sense of] the interrog. Hamza: and its final is vocalized because of the concurrence of two quiescents; and pronounced with Fath by alliteration to the f or Fatha before it, as in ^{شَتَّانُ} [196] (IY). According to IJ (K on VII. 186., R), ^{أَيَّانُ} is derived from ^{أَيُّ} [184] (K, B, R), being ^{فَعْلَانُ} from it (K), because its sense is ^{أَيُّ وَقْتُ} At what time? (K, B); not from ^{أَيْنُ}, because [it denotes time, while (K)] ^{أَيْنُ} denotes place (K, R); and because ^{فَعَالُ} is rare, and ^{فَعْلَانُ} frequent, among ns.: so that, if used as a name, it would be diptote [18]. Kasr of its Hamza is the dial. of Sulaim (R), and AsSulami reads ^{أَيَّانُ} (K); and An says that Kasr of its ن is a dial.

var. (R). As for the parsing of cond. and interrog. ns. and the like [218], (1) if a prep. or pre. n. be prefixed to them, they are in the place of the gen., as LXXVIII.

1. [181], ^{صَبِيحَةَ} ^{أَيَّ} ^{يَوْمٍ} ^{سَفَرِكَ} On the morning of what day will thy journey be? [111]; and ^{غُلَامٌ} ^{مِنْ} ^{جَاوِكَ} Whose young man came to thee?: [and therefore the saying that cond. and interrog. ns. are not governed by what precedes them holds good only if what precedes them be not a prep. or pre. n.; whereas, if it be so, they are governed by it (DM)]: (2) if not, then, (a) if they be applied to time, as ^{وَمَا} ^{يَشْعُرُونَ} ^{أَيَّانَ} ^{يَبْعَثُونَ} XVI. 21.

22. Nor know they when they shall be raised, or place, as ^{فَإِنِ} ^{تَذْهَبُونَ} LXXXI. 26. Then where are ye going?, or accident, as XXVI. 228. [445], they are governed in the acc. as adverbial or unrestricted objs.: (b) if not, then,

(a) if they be followed by an indet. n., as ^{مَنْ} ^{أَبُ} ^{لَكَ} Who is a father to thee?, they are inchs.; and, if by a

det. n., as ^{مَنْ} ^{زَيْدٌ} Who is Zaid?, they are enuncia. or inchs. according to different opinions [24]: but these two sorts do not occur among cond. ns., [because they are followed only by vs. (DM)]: (b) if not, then, if they be followed by an intrans. v., they are inchs., as ^{مَنْ} ^{قَامَ} Who stood? and ^{مَنْ} ^{يَقُمُ} ^{أَقَمَ} ^{مَعَهُ} Whoever stands,

I will stand with him; and, if they be followed by a trans. v. that befalls [44] them, they are direct objs., as

فَايَاتِ اللَّهِ تَنْكُرُونَ XL. 81. Then which of the signs of God will ye deny? [below], XVII. 110. [116], and VII. 185. [1]; and, if it befall their pron., as مَنْ رَأَيْتَهُ

Who is such that thou sawest him? or Whom (sawest thou), sawest thou him?, or their belonging, [vid. the n. connected with their pron. (DM),] as مَنْ رَأَيْتَ أَخَاهُ

Who is such that thou sawest his brother? or Whom (wast thou concerned with), sawest thou his brother?, they are inchs. or accs. governed by a suppressed [trans.

v. (DM)] supplied after them, [because they take the 1st place (DM),] expounded by the one mentioned [62].

When the cond. n. occurs as an inch., opinions differ as to whether its enunc. is (1) the v. [i. e. prop. (DM)] of the prot. alone, because the cond. n. is complete [44] and the v. contains its pron. [27], so that مَنْ يَقُمْ Whoever

[i. e. If every one of mankind] stands, but for the sense of condition in it, would be i. q. كُلُّ مَنْ النَّاسِ يَقُومُ

Every one of mankind stands [204]; (2) the v. [i. e. prop. (DM)] of the correl., because the sense is completed by it [24], and because the pron. always relates from it to the cond. n. according to the correctest opinion [below], and because its counterpart is the enunc. in الَّذِي يَأْتِينِي فَلَهُ دَرَاهِمُ [32]; or (3) the aggregate of the two, because

كُلُّ مَنْ النَّاسِ إِنْ يَقُمْ أَقْمَ مَعَهُ is i. q. مَنْ يَقُمْ أَقْمَ مَعَهُ

Every one of mankind is such that, if he stands, I will stand with him [27]: but the correct opinion is the 1st; while the sense depends upon the correl. only as respects contingency, not as respects enunciativity. The correl. of the cond. n. governed in the nom. by inchoation needs a cop., which is only a pron., (1) mentioned, as فَمَنْ يَكْفُرْ بَعْدَ مَنكُم فَاتِيَّ اَعَذِبْهُ عَذَابًا V. 115. Then whosoever of you disbelieveth afterwards, verily I will chastise him with a chastisement; (2) supplied, or replaced by a substitute, as فَمَنْ فَرَضَ فِيْهِمْ اَلْحَجَّ فَلَا رَنُكَ وَلَا فُسُوْقَ وَلَا جِدَالَ فِي اَلْحَجِّ II. 193. Then, whoso bindeth himself to undertake the pilgrimage in them, there shall be no lewd conversation and no transgression and no wrangling proceeding (from him) in the pilgrimage, or no wrangling in his pilgrimage, i. e. مِنْهُ or orig. فِي حَجَّةٍ [599]: and, as for the texts بَلَىٰ مَنْ اَوْفَىٰ بَعْدَهُۥ وَاَتَقَىٰ فَاِنَّ اِلٰهَ يُحِبُّ الْمُتَّقِيْنَ III. 70. Yea, whoso fulfilleth his covenant, and is pious, (God will love him): for verily God loveth the pious and مَنْ يَتَوَلَّ اِلٰهَ وَرَسُوْلَهُ وَالَّذِيْنَ اٰمَنُوْا فَاِنَّ and حِزْبَ اللّٰهِ هُمُ الْغَالِبُوْنَ V. 61. And whoso taketh God and His Apostle and them that have believed as friends, (shall overcome): for verily the host of God, they are the overcomers and the verse [of AlKutāmī (DM)]

فَمَنْ تَكُنِ الْحَضَارَةُ أَعْجَبَتْهُ * فَأَيَّ رِجَالٍ بَادِيَةٍ تَرَانَا

[Then whoso is such that townsfolk do please him, (we are not of his quality): then what men of a desert dost thou deem us to be? (DM)], the correl. in them is suppressed, i. e. ^{يُحِبُّهُ} اللَّهُ [in the apoc. (DM)], ^{يُغْلِبُ}, and ^{فَلَسْنَا} عَلَى صِفَتِهِ. The interrog. or cond. reg. of the v. or its like must precede [the op. (DM)], as XL. 81. [above], XXVI. 228. [445], and XXVIII. 28. [184]; and for this reason the pron. of the case is supplied in ^{أَنْ} مَتَى [204] and every adv. containing the sense of condition is its prot., as most say; and may not be its apod., as some say, just as the op. may not be the apod. in the case of non-adverbial [cond.] ns., since you do not say ^{أَيُّهُمْ} جَاؤَكَ فَاضْرِبْ with ^{أَيُّهُمْ} in the acc. (R).

§ 207. ^{كَيْفَ} is a n. (IY, ML), not a p. or v. (IY), because (1) the prep. is prefixed to it without paraphrase, [20, 468] in their saying ^{أَلَا} ^{أَحْمَرَيْنِ} ^{كَيْفَ} ^{تَبِيعُ} [In what state dost thou sell the two red things, i. e. wine and meat? (DM)]: (2) the genuine n. is made a subst. for it [without paraphrase (DM)], as ^{أَنْتَ} ^{أَصْدِيقٌ} ^{كَيْفَ} ^{أَمْ} [below]: (3) in such as ^{كَيْفَ} ^{كُنْتُ} How wast

thou ? it is made a pred., which excludes the p. [497]; and is contiguous to the v., which excludes the v. [593] (ML). It is treated as an adv. (M, R) by many, who render it by the prep. (IY); because it is i. q. ^{عَلَىٰ أَيِّ حَالٍ} In what state ?, and the prep. and adv. are akin. That ^{كَيْفَ} is an adv. is the opinion of Akh (R): but [according to S (R)] it is [correctly (IY)] a [plain (IY)] n., [not an adv., though it conveys the sense of ^{عَلَىٰ أَيِّ حَالٍ} (IY),] because the n. occurs as a subst. for it, as ^{كَيْفَ أَنْتَ} How art thou, [above] ^{أَصِحِّيمُ أَمْ سَقِيمٌ} Well or ill ?, [and as a reply to it, as ^{صَحِّيمٌ} Well or ^{سَقِيمٌ} Ill in reply to ^{كَيْفَ أَنْتَ} How art thou ? (IY)]; whereas, if it were an adv., the adv. would occur as a subst. for it (IY, R), and as a reply to it (IY); though Akh may say that the prep. and gen. may be made a subst. for it, as ^{كَيْفَ زَيْدٌ} How is Zaid, [above] ^{أَعْلَىٰ حَالٍ الصِّحَّةِ أَمْ عَلَىٰ حَالٍ السَّقَمِ} How is Zaid, in the state of health, or in the state of sickness ?, [and similarly with the reply]. Thus ^{كَيْفَ}, according to S, is renderable by ^{عَلَىٰ أَيِّ حَالٍ حَاصِلٌ} In what state [art thou] existing ?; but, according to Akh, by ^{عَلَىٰ أَيِّ حَالٍ} In what state ?, ^{حَاصِلٌ}, according to him, being supplied [26, 498] (R). It is used in two ways, (1) as a cond., in which case it requires two vs. agreeing in letter and sense, and not apocopated, [whether ^{لَا} be prefixed to them or not, according to the BB (DM),] as ^{كَيْفَ تَصْنَعُ اصْنَعُ} However thou dost, I will do; while ^{كَيْفَ تَجْلِسُ اِذْهَبْ} is not allowable by common consent [of the BB and KK (DM)]; nor ^{كَيْفَ تَجْلِسُ اُجْلِسْ} according to the BB, except Ktb, [who agrees with the KK (DM),] because ^{كَيْفَ} differs from the cond. instruments [419] in that its correl. must agree with its prot., as above stated: but some say that this [apocopation of the two vs. by it (DM)] is allowable unrestrictedly, [i. e. whether it be conjoined with ^{لَا} or not (DM),] which is the opinion of Ktb and the KK; or upon condition of its being conjoined with ^{لَا}, [which opinion is followed by the author of the Aj, since he says “ { The apocopatives are ^{لَمْ},..... (Aj), } and ^{كَيْفَمَا} ” (DM)]: (a) they say that ^{يَنْفِقُ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ} V. 69. He dispenseth His bounty howsoever He willeth and ^{يَنْفِقُ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ} He willeth and ^{يَنْفِقُ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ} He willeth are instances of its occurrence as cond., its correl. being suppressed because indicated by what precedes it, [i. e. ^{يَنْفِقُ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ} and ^{يَنْفِقُ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ} (DM)]; but this is dubious according to their unrestricted declaration that its correl. must resemble its prot., [whether the correl. be mentioned or suppressed (DM)]: (2) as an interrog., which is mostly the case, either real, as كَيْفَ زَيْدٌ [above]; or otherwise, as II. 26. [80], where it is used in the sense of wonder: (a) it [i. e. the interrog. (DM)] occurs (a) as an enunc. or pred. before what is not independent [of an enunc. real or annulled (DM)], as كَيْفَ ظَنَنْتَ زَيْدًا and كَيْفَ كُنْتَ ; and hence كَيْفَ ظَنَنْتَ زَيْدًا

How thoughtest thou Zaid to be? and كَيْفَ اعْلَمْتَهُ فَرَسًا

How madest thou him to know thy horse to be?, because the 2nd obj. of ظَلَى and the 3rd of اَعْلَمَ are orig. enuncs.

[440, 434]: (b) as a d. s. before what is independent [of an enunc. (DM)], as كَيْفَ جَاءَ زَيْدٌ How [74], i. e. In what state, came Zaid?; and, in my opinion, as an unrestricted obj. also in this sort, whence اَلَمْ تَرَ كَيْفَ فَعَلَ

بَكَ بَعْدَ, LXXXIX. 5: Hast thou not seen how, i. e. with what dealing, thy Lord dealt with 'Ad?, since the sense is فَكَيْفَ اِذَا جِئْنَا مِنْ كُلِّ امَّةٍ اَيَّ فَعْلٍ فَعَلَ, and similarly

بَشَهِيدٍ IV. 45: Then how (will they do) when We bring from every people a witness?, its op. يَصْنَعُونَ being supplied between كَيْفَ and اِنَّا : (b) كَيْفَ with what follows it in اَنَّا يَنْظُرُونَ اِلَى الْاَبْلِ كَيْفَ خُلِقَتْ LXXXVIII. 17.

What! then will they not look at the camels, how they have been created? is a subst. of implication for الْاَبِلَ, the sense being ^{أَلَى} ^{الْأَبَلِ} ^{كَيْفِيَّةً} ^{خُلِقَتْهَا} at the camels, the mode of their creation; and similar are XXV. 47. [581] and ^{أَلَى} ^{اللَّهِ} ^{أَشْكُو} ^{الْخ} [1], i. e. ^{تَعَذَّرَ} ^{التَّقَائِمُ} the impossibility of their meeting together (ML), ^{كَيْفٌ} being expounded by ^{تَعَذَّرَ} as an indication that the interrogation here denotes deeming improbable (DM): (c) preps. are not prefixed to it, as they are to ^{أَيْنَ} when you say ^{مِنْ} ^{أَيْنَ} From where? and ^{أَيْنَ} ^{أَلَى} To where?, because ^{أَيْنَ} is a question as to places, to which preps. are prefixed, as ^{مِنْ} ^{السُّوقِ} From the market and ^{أَلَى} ^{السُّوقِ} To the market; whereas ^{كَيْفٌ} is a question as to states, to which preps. are not prefixed, for you do not say ^{أَمِنْ} ^{صَحِيحٍ} or ^{أَمِنْ} ^{سَقِيمٍ} (IY): but Ktb transmits from some of the Arabs ^{أَنْظُرْ} ^{أَلَى} ^{كَيْفٍ} ^{يَصْنَعُ} Look how he does (M), and they say ^{أَلَى} ^{كَيْفٍ} ^{تَبِيعَ} ^{الْأَحْمَرِيِّ} [above], which are anomalous: (d) its reply is only indet., as ^{صَالِحٍ}, not ^{الصَّالِحِ}, in reply to ^{كَيْفٍ} ^{زَيْدٍ} (IY). Many assert that ^{كَيْفٌ} occurs as a copulative [p. (DM)]; and among them is IIM, who cites as an instance of it

أَذَا قَلَّ مَالُ الْمَرْءِ لَأَنْتَ قَنَاتُهُ
وَهَانَ عَلَى الْإِدْنَى فَكَيْفَ الْإِبَاعِدِ

(ML) When the wealth of the man becomes small, his spear-shaft becomes soft, and he is lowered before the nearest kinsman, and the farthest ones, the ف being apparently red. (DM). It is uninfl. because it occurs in the place, and implies the sense, of the interrog. [159]; and the ف is mobilized to avoid the concurrence of quiescents, and pronounced with Fath because Kasra [664] is deemed heavy after the ي (IY). And كَى is said for كَيْف (IY, R, ML), like سَو for سَوْف [578] (IY, ML), as

كَى تَجْنَحُونَ إِلَى سَلَمٍ وَمَا تَنْتَرُ
قَتْلَكُمْ دَلَّ عَلَى الْهَيْجَاءِ تَضْطَرُّ

(ML) How incline ye to peace, when your slain have not been avenged, and the flame of war is blazing? (FA, Jsh): and, [according to An (R),] this is a dial. var.; but some say that the ف is elided [for alleviation (IY) by poetic license (R)]. اِنِّى is [an adv. of place (IY),] (1) interrog., [as اِنِّى لَكَ هَذَا III. 32. Whence hast thou this? (IY)]; (2) cond., as

فَاَصْبَحْتُ اِنِّى تَاتَهَا تَشْتَجِرُ بِهَا كَلَّا مَرْكَبِيهَا تَحْتَ رَجْلَيْكَ شَاجِرٌ

[by LabId (IY), Then thou hast become such that, whencesoever thou comest to it (meaning calamity, which

THE COMPOUNDS.

§ 208. The comp. is every [single (R)] n. [resulting (R, Jm)] from [the composition of (R, Jm)] two words, [real or predicamental (Jm), both ns., vs., or ps., or n. and v., n. and p., or v. and p. (R, Jm),] between which there is no relation (IH) at all, either at present or before the composition. We say "real or predicamental" in order to include such as ^{سَيِّدِيَّة} [4], because its last member, being a sound not applied to denote a meaning, is not a word [1], but is in the predicament of a word, since it is treated as an uninfl. n.; and IH says "between which there is no relation" in order to exclude such as ^{عَبْدُ اللَّهِ} and ^{تَابِعًا شَرًّا} [4], because between the two members of each of them there is a relation [explained below] before the whole becomes a proper name (Jm). But this definition excludes part of the defined, [vid. the comp. in which a con. is supplied (R),] as ^{خَمْسَةَ عَشَرَ} [210], [or a prep., as ^{بَيْتُ بَيْتٍ} (211) (R)]; because between its two members there is [some relation, vid. (R)] the relation of coupling (R, Jm) or something else (R): and it is best to say that by "relation" is meant relation comprehensible from the external form of the composition, like the relation of prothesis: [110] in ^{عَبْدُ اللَّهِ}, and of dependance [44] in ^{تَابِعًا شَرًّا}; whereas in ^{خَمْسَةَ عَشَرَ}

[210] the form of the composition does not indicate any relation at all (Jm). The comps. are of two kinds, (1) a kind whose composition requires the two ns. to be uninfl. together, as حَيْضٌ بَيْضٌ together with its unit [210], etc. [211], and الْحَزَّازُ بَازٌ [212]; (2) a kind whose composition requires only the 1st of them to be uninfl., as بَدِيٌّ بَدِيٌّ [213], أَيْدِيٌّ سَبَاٌ [214], and مُعْدِيكَرْبٌ [215] (M). Z puts بَدِيٌّ بَدِيٌّ or بَدَاٌ بَدِيٌّ and أَيْدِيٌّ سَبَاٌ [215] in the cat. of مُعْدِيكَرْبٌ ; but S puts them in the cat. of خَمْسَةٌ عَشْرَ , which is more probable, though it be only by way of assimilation, not because the 2nd implies [the sense of] a p. [209]: for, if the matter were as Z says, بَدِيٌّ and بَدَاٌ would necessarily be declined as triptotes by affixion of Tanwin to them, because they contain composition only, without the quality of proper name [18], whereas they have not been heard pronounced with Tanwin; and similarly سَبَاٌ would necessarily be pronounced with Tanwin, because it is here the name of a man, not of a tribe, as it is interpreted in XXVII. 22. [18] (R).

§ 209. The distinction between the two kinds is that (M), if the 2nd [member (Jm)] imply [the sense of (IY)] a [con. or other (Jm)] p., both [members (M, Jm)] are uninfl., [as أَحَدٌ عَشْرَ (210) and حَيْضٌ بَيْضٌ (211)]

(IY), because the cause of uninflectedness exists in each of them, since the 1st {n. (IY)} becomes {through the composition like part of a n., being (IY)} in the same position as the beginning of a word towards its end, while the 2nd implies the sense of the p. (M)]; but, if not, the 2nd is infl., and the 1st uninfl. (M, IH), in the correctest (IH) dial. (Jm), as مَعْدِيكَرَبْ [215] (IY).

§ 210. The q. f. of the num. exceeding 10 is that the 2nd should be coupled to the 1st, as ثَلَاثَةٌ وَعِشْرَةٌ; then the two ns. [the unit and the decimal (IY)] are amalgamated into one, and are uninfl. [211, 318] because of the existence of the two causes [209]. Some of the Arabs make the ع quiescent, saying أَحَدٌ عَشْرٌ [and ثَلَاثَةٌ عَشْرٌ (IY)] to guard against the succession of [6 or 5 (IY)] mobiles in one word, [not more than 4 mobiles being combined in one word; but this is not done in اثْنَا عَشْرَ (318), because two quiescents would then be combined; and because, the ا and ع being quiescent, there is not the same succession of mobiles in these two words as there is in أَحَدٌ عَشْرٌ and the like; and because they are not compounded, so that they are not one word (IY)]. The determinative p. and prothesis do not spoil the uninflectedness [of this num. (IY)]: you say (1) الْوَاحِدُ The eleven and الْعَاشِرُ The eleventh [324] to الثَّانِيَةَ عَشْرَ The nineteen and التَّاسِعَ عَشْرَ The nineteenth;

(2) ^{أَحَدٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} Thy eleven and ^{تِسْعَةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} Thy nineteen [and ^{خَامِسٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} Thy fifteenth (IY)]: but Akh used to approve the nom. when he prefixed it, [as ^{خَمْسَةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} Thy fifteen (IY),] which S deemed corrupt. And, if ^{خَمْسَةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} [or the like comp. (IY)] be used as a name for a man, it may (1) be [infl., pronounced with Damm of the ر (IY)] in the nom., [and Fath in the acc. and gen., being declined as a diptote, like ^{بَعْلَبَكْ} (215), because of the removal of the sense of coupling; and, according to this, when you prefix, you decline it as a triptote (17), as ^{خَمْسَةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} (IY)]: (2) remain [uninfl. (IY),] pronounced with Fath (M), because you imitate its state before it was used as a name (IY).

§ 211. The following synthetic comps. are uninfl. upon Fath, (1) nums. [210]: (2) advs., (a) temporal, as (a) ^{فَلَانِ} ^{يَاتِينَا} ^{صَبَاحٌ} ^{مَسَاءٌ} Such a one comes to us, morning (and) evening, orig. صَبَاحًا وَمَسَاءً, i. e. (every) morning and evening, the con. being suppressed, and the two advs. compounded together for the sake of abbreviation in the same way as ^{خَمْسَةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ}, whence

وَمَنْ لَا يَصْرِفِ الْوَرَّاشِينَ عَنْهُ * صَبَاحٌ مَسَاءً يَبْغُرُهُ خَبَالًا

[And whoso turns not the slanderers away from himself morning and evening, they will seek insanity for him

(MAd)]; but, if you prefixed, saying ^{صَبَاحٌ مُسَاءٌ}, it would be allowable, i. e. on a morning possessed of, [i. e. succeeded by (MAd),] an evening, like ^{لَمْ يَلْبَثُوا إِلَّا عَشِيَّةً أَوْ}

^{ضُحَاهَا} LXXIX. 46. Had not tarried in the graves save an afternoon or its forenoon : (b) ^{فَلَانِ يَأْتِينَا يَوْمٌ يَوْمٌ}

Such a one comes to us day by day, orig. ^{يَوْمًا فَيَوْمًا}, i. e. every day, whence

^{أَتِ الرِّزْقُ يَوْمٌ يَوْمٌ فَاجْمَلْ * طَلِبًا وَابْغِ لِلْقِيَامَةِ زَادًا}

[Subsistence will come day by day : then moderate desire, and seek provision for the day of resurrection (MAd)] :

(b) local, as ^{سَهَلْتُ الْهَمْزَةَ بَيْنَ بَيْنِ} I softened the Hamza betwixt and between [658], orig. ^{بَيْنَهَا وَبَيْنَ حَرْفٍ حَرَكَتَهَا} between it and [158] the consonant of its vowel, what is post. to the 1st and 2nd ^{بَيْنِ} being suppressed, the con. also suppressed, and the two adv. compounded together, whence

^{نَحْمِي حَقِيقَتَنَا وَبَعْدُ نَحْمِي الْقَوْمَ يَسْقُطُ بَيْنَ بَيْنِنَا}

[by 'Abid Ibn AlAbras, addressing Imra alKais, We defend our right, when some of the people fall betwixt and between (AAz)], orig. ^{بَيْنَ هَؤُلَاءِ وَبَيْنَ هَؤُلَاءِ} Between these and those, [i. e. between the high and the low (D),] these two adv., which have become one, being in the position of an acc. as [an adv. depending upon (MAd)]

a [suppressed (MAd)] d. s. [below], since the meaning is فَلَانٌ جَارِي بَيْتَ [مُسْتَقَرًّا] (MAd): (3) ds. s., as (a) بَيْتَ بَيْتَ Such a one is my neighbour, tent (to) tent, orig.
 مُتَلَامِقًا [مُنْضَمًا] (MAd) بَيْتًا tent joined to tent, i. e. مَلَامِقًا adjoining, the prep. ل being suppressed, and the two
 ns. compounded together; though the supplied prep.
 may be إِلَى, [i. e. بَيْتًا مُنْضَمًا إِلَى بَيْتَ (MAd)]; or no prep. at all may be supplied, but the con. ف, [i. e.
 تَسَاقَطُوا اخْوَلُ اخْوَلُ (MAd)]: (b) تَسَاقَطُوا اخْوَلُ اخْوَلُ
 They fell one after another, scattered about, i. e. مُتَفَرِّقِينَ, whence the verse of the poet, describing a bull goring dogs,

تَسَاقَطَ عَنْهُ رَوَّقُهُ ضَارِيَاتَهَا * سَقَاطُ شَرَارِ الْقَيْنِ اخْوَلُ اخْوَلُ

[Their bitches trained to hunting dropped off him, off his horn, one after another, as the sparks of the blacksmith are dropped, scattered about (MAd)]: (a) the difference between this sort and the verse cited in the preceding sort is that there the comp. depends upon a suppressed اِسْتَقْرَارُ, which is the d. s. [above], whereas here the comp. itself is the d. s.: (b) if you exclude any of these
adv. or ds. s. from the quality of adv. or d. s., prothesis is necessary, and composition is disallowed, as هَذِهِ هَمْزَةٌ فَلَانٌ يَأْتِينَا كُلَّ صَبَاحٍ مَسَاءً and بَيْنَ بَيْنٍ, whence

وَلَوْلَا يَوْمٌ يَوْمٌ مَا آرَدْنَا * جزاءك والقروض لها جزاء

[And, but for a day succeeded by a day, we should not have wished thy repayment; though for debts there is repayment (MAd)]: (c) comp. advs. and ds. s. do not occur in the Revelation, but only comp. nums., as XII.

4. [442], ثَانِي عَشْرَةَ عَيْنًا II. 57. Then twelve springs gushed out from it, and LXXIV. 30.

[87]: (d) comp. ds. s. occur rarely in comparison with comp. advs. (Sh). They say (1) تَفَرَّقُوا شَخَرٌ بَغَرٌ [or شَخَرٌ بَغَرٌ (KF)], i. e. They separated in every direction, without collecting together; (2) similarly شَخَرٌ مَخَرٌ [or شَخَرٌ مَخَرٌ (H, KF)] or شَخَرٌ بَخَرٌ, all meaning separation without collecting together; (3) in the same sense خَذَعٌ مَذَعٌ; (4) تَرَكُوا الْبِلَادَ حَيْثُ بَيْتٌ They left the countries, dispersing abroad [or حَيْثُ بَيْتٌ (KF)] or حَاتٍ بَاتٍ or حَوَتْ بَوَتْ or حَوَتْ بَوَتْ [or حَوَتْ بَوَتْ (KF)], with Tanwin by assimilation to the indet. ejs. [198], when they separate and disperse (IY): the two ns. are in the place of an acc. as a d. s. (H); and the o. f. is شَخَرًا وَمَخَرًا and شَخَرًا وَمَخَرًا and حَيْثًا وَبَيْتًا (M). The [synthetic (MAd)] composition mentioned occurs also in what is not an adv. or d. s., as رَقَعُوا فِي حَيْصٍ بَيْصٍ, i. e. They fell into a difficulty hard to escape from; but this is anomalous (Sh). The n. f. is ^{وَيُصِّ} ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{وَيُصِّ} (M), the ^و being then suppressed for abbreviation, while the sense is copulative; so that ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} implies the sense of the con., and is therefore uninfl., like ^{خَسَّةٌ} ^{عَشْرٌ} and its cot. [210] (IY). They say (I) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ}, [which is the frequent and well-known dial. var., as in the verse of Umayya Ibn Abi 'Ā'idh alHudhali cited by As

قَدْ كُنْتُ خَرَجًا وَوَجًا صِيرًا
لَمْ تَلْتَحِضْنِي حَيْصٌ بَيْصٌ لُحَايَ

(IY) I have been wont to go out, and come in, versatile: adversity has not stuck to me inextricably, ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} being here in the position of an acc. as a d. s., i. e. in this state of ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} (DH)]; (2) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} (DH, IY, KF); (3) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} (KF); (4) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} (IY); (5) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ}; (6) ^{حَيْصٌ} ^{بَيْصٌ} (IY, KF).

§ 212. ^{الْخَازِ} ^{بَارٌ} is compounded of the act. parts. of ^{خَزَا} overcame and ^{بَرَا} exalted himself, as though ^{هَوَ} ^{الْخَازِي} ^{وَالْبَارِي} were said (R). It has (1) 7 dials. vars. (a) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (b) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (c) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (d) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (e) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (f) ^{خَازِ} ^{بَارِ}; (g) ^{خَزْبَارٌ}, like ^{قَاعَاءٌ} [391]; (g) ^{قَرْصَالٌ}, like ^{خَزْبَارٌ} [396]:

(2) 5 meanings [transmitted by Sf (IY)], (a) a kind of herbage, [as in the saying {of the Rājiz (AAz) cited by IAr (IY)}]

رَعَيْتَهَا أَكْرَمَ عَوْدٍ عَوْدًا * الصَّلِّ وَالصَّفْصِلَ وَالْيَعْضِيدَا

وَالْخَازِ بِازِ السَّنَمِ الْمَجُودَا * بِحَيْثُ يَدْعُو عَامِرٌ مَسْعُودَا

(M) I have pastured them upon a most noble branch as a branch, the plants named صَل and صَفْصِل and the herb named يَعْضِيد and the tall flowering herbage named خَازِ watered with rain, so that 'Amir calls Mas'ūd (these being two pastors) to rejoice at the abundance of herbage (IY)]; (b) a [blue (IY)] fly that is in herbage, [as says the poet { 'Amr (AAz) Ibn Ahmar (IY, AAz)}]

تَفَقَّأَ فَرْقَةُ الْقَلْعِ السَّوَارِي * وَجَنَّ الْخَازِ بِازٍ بِهِ جُنُونَا

(M) The masses of cloud coming by night burst with water above it {i. e. the low ground or the herbage (IY)}, and the fly named خَازِ buzzed loudly in it (IY, AAz)]; (c) [an imitation of (IY)] the sound of the fly, [says As (IY)]; (d) a disease in the [necks and (IY)] jawbones projecting under the ears, [as in the saying {of the Rājiz (IY, AAz), vid. Al'Adawi (IY),}]

يَا خَازِ بِازٍ أَرْسِلِ اللَّهَازِمَا * إِنِّي أَخَافُ أَنْ تَكُونَ لَازِمَا

(M) O disease named خَازِ بِازِ, release the jawbones projecting under the ears: verily I fear that thou mayst become chronic (AAz)]; (e) the cat. (M, R), which is the strangest of them (IY).

§ 213. The o. f. of اَفْعَلْ هَذَا بِأَدَى بَدَى Do this first of every thing or بِأَدَى بَدَى, [i. e. اَوَّلَ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ (IY),] is بِأَدَى بَدَى [upon the measure of فَعِيلٍ (IY)] or بِدَأْ [upon the measure of فَعَالٍ (IY)], which is then lightened by rejecting the Hamza [of بِدَى or بِدَأْ (IY)] and [converting the Hamza of بِأَدَى into a pure ي, and (IY)] making [it (IY)] quiescent. It [consists of two ns. compounded together and uninfl. (210); and (IY)] is [indet. (IY),] governed in the acc. as a d. s., i. e. مَبْتَدَأًا بِهِ قَبْلَ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ beginning with it before every thing. [They say also بِدَى بَدَى with prothesis, without uninflectedness (IY):] and it is sometimes used pronounced with Hamza [in the 2nd, not the 1st, as بِأَدَى بَدَى or بِدَى; or in both, as بِأَدَى بَدَى (IY)], whence the tradition of Zaid Ibn Thābit رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُ أَمَّا بِأَدَى بَدَى فَأَنِي أَحْمَدُ اللَّهَ As for the first of every thing, verily I praise God.

§ 214. They say ذَهَبُوا أَيَادَى سَبَا They went away (like) the children of Saba or أَيَادَى سَبَا [549], i. e. (like) the children of Saba' Ibn Yashjub [Ibn Ya'rub Ibn Kahtān (IY)] in their separation and dispersion in the countries when the Flood of the Dams was sent against them, ^{أيد} being a met. for children and kindred. [It has 2 dial. vars.: (1) the 2 ns. are compounded into one, and uninfl. (210); (2) the 1st is pre. to the 2nd, as in ^{صَبَاحَ مَسَاءَ} (211). It is in the position of an acc. as a d. s., i. e. ^{مُتَفَرِّقِينَ} and ^{مُتَبَدِّدِينَ} and the like. And the Hamza of ^{سَبَا} is omitted for abbreviation, because of the length of the n. and the frequency of usage, together with the heaviness of the Hamza (IY)].

§ 215. ^{مَعْدِيكَرِبٌ} has 2 dial. vars.:—(1) composition and diptote declension [of the 2nd, the 1st being uninfl. (209), because it occupies the position of part of a word (IY)], as ^{هَذَا مَعْدِيكَرِبٌ} This is Ma'dīkarib [18]: (2) prefixion, the post. being declined as (a) a triptote, as ^{هَذَا مَعْدِي كَرِبٌ}; (b) a diptote, as ^{هَذَا مَعْدِي كَرِبٌ} [below]. And similar are ^{قَالِي قَلَا} [below], ^{حَضْرَمَوْتُ} [4], ^{بَعْلَبُ}, and their likes (M). When ^{مَعْدِي} is pre., its ي is not pronounced with Fath in the acc. [16], so that you do not say ^{رَأَيْتُ مَعْدِي كَرِبٌ}, as you say ^{قَاضِي وَاسِطٍ} The judge of Wāsīt, because, being made quiescent in the state of composition, as ^{هَذَا مَعْدِيكَرِبٌ}, which is a position where the sound [letter] is pronounced with Fath, as ^أحُضْرُمُوتُ , it is made quiescent in the state of inflection also. In ^أكُرْبُ مَعْدِيْ you hold ^أكُرْبُ to be a masc. [proper] name, and therefore decline it as a triptote [18]. But in ^أكُرْبُ مَعْدِيْ [above], with Fath in every case, there are 2 alternatives:—(1) ^أمَعْدِيْ may be pre. to ^أكُرْبُ , the latter being held to be a fem. proper name, and therefore diptote [18]; and, according to this, both ns. are infl.: (2) they may be compounded and uninfl., like ^أخُمْسَةُ عَشْرَ , as though the 2 ns., before being used as a [proper] name, had been compounded and uninfl., upon the ground that the , was meant to be understood, and then they were used as a name after the composition (IY). S reckons ^أقَالِيْ قَلَّا among the sisters of ^أأَيْدِيْ سَبَا [208]: but Z reckons it among the sisters of ^أمَعْدِيْ كُرْبُ ; and it contains no evidence to support the opinion of S, because the aggregate of the two words is the proper name of a city [in Armenia (MI)], so that it may be diptote because of the composition and quality of proper name [18], but is not uninfl. (R).

THE UNINFLECTED METONYMS.

§ 216. Metonymy in classical and conventional language is denoting a particular thing, whether it be an expression or a meaning, by an expression not plainly indicative of it, (1) for the sake of perplexing some of the hearers, as in your saying جَآءَنِي فُلَانٌ Such a one came to me, when you mean Zaid; (2) because of the unseemliness of the thing expressed, like هِيَ for the vulva or foul act [14]; (3) for the sake of abridgment, like the prons. relating to a preceding expression [160]; (4) for a sort of elegance, like كَثِيرُ الرَّمَادِ Plentiful in ashes for كَثِيرُ الْقَرَى Plentiful in hospitality; (5) for some other object. If the thing denoted by the met. be an expression, what is intended is (1) the meaning of that expression, as in

كَأَنَّ فَعْلَةً لَمْ تَمَلَّ مُوَآكِبَهَا * دِيَارَ بَكْرِ وَلَمْ تَخْلَعْ وَلَمْ تَهَبْ

[by AlMutanabbî, lamenting the eldest sister of Saif adDaula, It is as though the cavalcades of Khaula (her name) had not filled the countries of Bakr, and she had not bestowed, and had not given (W)], i. e. خَوْلَةٌ, and in مَرَرْتُ بِرَجُلٍ أَفْعَلٍ I passed by a foolish man, i. e. أَحْمَقٌ; (2) merely that expression, as in (a) puzzles and riddles, as أَكْفُفْ أَكْفُفْ for مَهْمَةٌ ; (b) the measures used in the conventional language of the GG to denote the words measured by them, as أَفْعَلُ صَفَةً لَا يَنْصَرِفُ [9], i. e. أَفْعَلُ, when an epithet, is not declined as a triptote, where أَفْعَلُ denotes a word whose initial is an aug. Hamza followed by a quiescent ف, followed by an ع pronounced with Fath, followed by a ل, and similarly with the other measures. According to this, then, the interrog. كَمْ [217] is a met., because it denotes a question about a particular number; and so are مَنْ [182], مَا [180], كَيْفَ [207], أَيْنَ [206], and other interrog. ns., because each of them is a question about a particular thing not plainly expressed by its name; and so are all the cond. ns., because the cond. and interrog. words are in the sense of أَيْ, which, whether cond. or interrog. [184], is applied to denote a particular thing. These ns., whether cond. or interrog., are used as *met.*s. for unlimited particular things, for the sake of abridgment, since, if, instead of أَيْنَ Where?, you said أَيْنَ السَّرْقَى أَمْ فِي الْبَيْتِ أَمْ فِي الدَّارِ أَمْ فِي السُّوقِ أَمْ فِي الْخَارِجِ In the house, or in the market, or in the shop, etc? to the end of the other particular places, it would be too long: so that the cond. or interrog. p. is supplied before these ns., as S holds; and they are *met.*s. for many particular things, as we have explained. All *met.*s. are not uninfl.; for ^{فُلَانٌ}فُلَانٌ and ^{فُلَانَةٌ}فُلَانَةٌ, which belong to them by common consent [14], are infl. (R). The [uninfl. (IY, R)] mets. are ^{كَمْ}كَمْ, ^{كُنَا}كُنَا, [and ^{كَايْنِ}كَايْنِ (R, A)] for [vague (M)] number, and ^{كَيْتٌ}كَيْتٌ and ^{ذَيْتٌ}ذَيْتٌ for the narrative [226] (M, IH, A) and announcement (M). The interrog. and cond. ns. [184] are not reckoned here, because they have another cat., [that of the conjunct or adv.,] to which they are more appropriate. Thus the mets. are like the advs. [201] in being of two kinds, infl. and uninfl. (R).

§ 217. ^{كَمْ}كَمْ is a n. denoting number vague (IA, A) in genus and quantity [226] (A). It is [of two kinds (M, ML, A),] (1) interrog., [meaning How many? (ML, A)]; (2) enunciatory (M, IA, ML, A), meaning How many! (ML, A). The interrog. and enunciatory ^{كَمْ}كَمْ both denote number and numbered, the interrog. denoting number vague to the speaker, but known to the person addressed in the opinion of the speaker; and the enunciatory denoting number vague to the hearer [223], and seldom known to the speaker: while the numbered is unknown to the speaker in the interrog. and enunciatory (R); and [for this reason (R)] each of them needs a sp. [below] (R, IA, A) explanatory of the numbered (R). The sp. of the 1st is like that of ^{عَشْرُونَ}عَشْرُونَ and its sisters [85, 315], being an acc. [224] sing. [220]: and the sp. of the 2nd is sometimes like that of ^{عَشْرَةٌ}عَشْرَةٌ, being a gen. pl., [as

كَمْ مَلُوكٍ بَادَ مَلَكُهُمْ * وَنَعِيمٍ سُوقَةٍ بَانُوا

Of how many kings has the kingdom perished, and how many prosperous subjects have perished ! (A)]; and sometimes like that of مَائَةٌ, being a gen. sing. [220] (IA, A), as كَمْ عَمَةٍ أَخْ [224] (A). The interrog. and enunciatory كَمْ agree in [11] matters (ML, A): (1) they are ns. [2] (IY, IA, ML, A), because (a) the prep. is prefixed to كَمْ (IY, IA); (b) it is pre., post., and predicated of; (c) the n. is made a subst. for it; (d) the pron. relates to it; and (e) it is an obj. [218, 222] (IY): (2) they are uninfl. (IY, ML, A), because (a) the interrog. implies the sense, and occurs in the place, of the p. [159]; and (b) the enunciatory is of the same letter as the interrog., and occurs in the place of رُبَّ [505], which it resembles in that رُبَّ denotes paucity of the genus, and كَمْ multitude of it, while every genus contains much and little, the much being compounded of the little, and the little being part of the much, so that much and little are partners (IY): (3) their uninflectedness is upon quiescence [159] (IY, A): (4) they are vague (ML): (5) they need a sp. [above] (ML, A) because of their vagueness: (6) [219] (A): (7) [225] (IH): (8) they [must (ML, A)] take the head of the sentence (IH, ML, IA, A), (a) the interrog. because of the interrogation [584]; and (b) the enunciatory because of the originative sense implied by it in denoting multitude, as رُبَّ must take the head of the sentence because of the originative sense implied by it in denoting paucity [505] (R): and therefore they are not governed by what precedes them [445], except the pre. n. and prep. [218]: (9) they are parsed alike [218] (A): (10) [223]: (11) [222] (R). They differ in [8 (A)] matters:—(1) the sentence with the enunciatory admits of being pronounced true or false, contrary to the sentence with the interrog. [1]: (2) the enunciatory does not require a reply, contrary to the interrog.: (3) the subst. for the enunciatory is not conjoined with the Hamza, as كَمْ عِبِيدٍ لِي خَمْسُونَ بَلْ سِتُونَ How many slaves I have! Fifty: nay, sixty!, contrary to the subst. for the interrog. [154], as كَمْ مَالِكَ إِعْشُرُونَ أَمْ ثَلَاثُونَ How many dirhams [219] is, or are [218], thy property? Twenty or thirty?: (4) the sp. of the interrog. is [orig. (A)] in the acc. [224]; whereas the sp. of the enunciatory is [orig. (A)] in the gen. [224]: (5) [220] (ML, A): (6) [221]: (7) the interrog. does not indicate multitude; whereas the enunciatory does, contrary to the opinion of ITr and his pupil IKh: (8) the enunciatory is peculiar to the pret., like رَبَّ [505].

§ 218. The 2 kinds of كَمْ, (1) if preceded by a prep. or pre. n., [as كَمْ وَجَلَّ or كَمْ بِكُمْ دِرْهَمٍ اشْتَرَيْتَ (Sn),] are governed in the gen.: (2) if not, then, (a) if mets. for an inf. n. or adv., [as كَمْ ضَرْبَةً ضَرْبْتَ or

كَمْ يَوْمًا صَحَّتْ (Sn),] are governed in the acc. as inf. ns. or advs.: (b) if not, then, (a) if not immediately followed by a v. [as كَمْ رَجُلٍ فِي الدَّارِ (Sn),] or, if followed by a v. that is intrans.,] as كَمْ رَجُلٍ قَامَ (Sn),] or that [is trans., but (Sn)] governs their pron. or their connected in the nom., [as كَمْ رَجُلٍ ضَرَبَ عَمْرًا or ضَرَبَ آخَرَهُ كَمْ (Sn),] are inchs. [below]; (b) if followed by a trans. v. that has not got its obj., [whether it govern one or more objs., as كَمْ تَعْطَى زَيْدًا or كَمْ رَجُلٍ ضَرَبْتَ (Sn),] are objs.; whereas, if it has got its obj., [as كَمْ رَجُلٍ ضَرَبَ كَمْ (Sn),] they are inchs., unless the obj. be a pron. relating to them, [as كَمْ رَجُلٍ ضَرَبْتَهُ (Sn),] in which case they are inchs. or accs. by distraction [62] (A), the former, says Dm, being preferable (Sn). كَمْ in كَمْ مَالِك [217, 219] may be the enunc. or inch. [above] (IY).

§ 219. The sp. [of both kinds (Jm, A)] is sometimes suppressed [87] (M, IH, IA, ML, A), when indicated (R, IA, Jm, A,) as كَمْ مَالِك How many (dirhams or dinārs) is, or are [218], thy property? (M, IH), i. e. كَمْ دِرْهَمًا or دِينَارًا (M, Jm), or How many (etc) thy property is! or are thy property!, i. e. كَمْ دِرْهَمٍ or دِينَارٍ (Jm), and كَمْ ضَرْبٌ How many (times or strokes) hast thou struck?, or thou hast struck! (IH), i. e. كَمْ مَرَّةً or ضَرْبَةً (Jm); but suppression is not good with the enunciatory, because suppression of the post. with retention of the pre. is bad [128] (IY).

§ 220. The sp. of the interrog. is always sing. (M, ML, A), unrestrictedly (A), i. e. whether sorts be meant by it or not (Sn), contrary to the opinion of the KK (ML, A), who allow it to be pl. (A, DM), unrestrictedly (A); and in كَمْ لَكَ غُلَامًا How many (persons) hast thou, being servants? the sp. is [held by the BB to be (Sn)] suppressed, غُلَامًا being [governed in the acc. as (M)] a d. s. (M, Sn) by the verbal sense contained in the adv. [75], i. e. كَمْ نَفْسًا لَكَ غُلَامًا (M), i. e. خُدَامًا [77] (Sn): but some make a distinction, saying that, if the question be about multitudes, as كَمْ غُلَامًا لَكَ meaning How many sorts of servants hast thou?, it is allowable, but otherwise not; and this is the opinion of Akh (A). According to the BB, you do not say كَمْ رَجُلًا وَنِسَاءً; but some GG allow it, because what is not allowable in the ant. is allowable in the appos. [538], as أَلَوَاهِبُ أَلِمَائَةِ الْخ [112] (R). The sp. of the enunciatory is sing., [as كَمْ عَمَّةَ الْخ كَمْ مَلُوكِ الْخ (224) (ML)]; or pl. (ML, A), as كَمْ مَلُوكِ الْخ [217]

(ML): but the sing. is more frequent and chaste than the pl.; though the pl. is not anomalous, as some assert (A).

§ 221. The interrog. (R, A) كَمْ may be separated from its sp. (IY, R, A) by the adv. and prep. (IY) in a case of choice (R, A), as كَمْ لَكَ غُلَامًا How many servants hast thou? (IY, R); but the enunciatory is not separated from its sp., except in a case of necessity [below] (A), if its sp. be governed in the gen. by prothesis, so that XLIV. 24. [below] is not an instance to the contrary (Sn). The sp. of the interrog. كَمْ is always in the acc. [224] (IY). When the enunciatory is separated from its sp., the latter is governed in (1) the acc. (M, A) by assimilation to [the sp. of] the interrog., (a) necessarily, if the separation be by a prop., or by an adv. and prep. and gen. together (A), because separation of the pre. and post. [225] is bad [125], especially by something else than the prep. and gen. [498] (IY), as

كَمْ نَالْنِي مِنْهُمْ فَضْلًا عَلَى عَدَمٍ * إِنَّ لَا أَكُنُ مِنْ الْأَقْتَارِ أَحْتِمِلُ
[by AlKutāmī, How many a bounty has reached me from them in destitution, when I was not near to journeying from poverty (IY, AAz) for want of a riding-beast (AAz)] and

تَوَّمتُ سِنَانًا وَكَمْ دُونَهُ * مِنَ الْأَرْضِ مَحْدُودًا غَارَهَا

(M, A), by Zuhair [or his son Ka'b, though not found in their Diwāns (FA), or by Ibn Mukbil (AAz), describing his she-camel (IY)], She seeks Sinān [Ibn Abī Ḥāritha

alMurri (FA)], and how many a tract of ground whose hollow is rugged is before him! (IY, AAz, FA); (b) preferably, if the separation be by an adv. alone, or by a prep. and gen. alone, as in the next exs. (Sn): (2) the gen., in poetry (M, A) exclusively, with separation by (a) an adv., as

كَمْ دُونَ مِيَّةٍ مَوْمَاةٍ يُهَالُ لَهَا * إِذَا تَيَمَّمَهَا الصَّخْرِيَّتُ ذُرَّ الْجَلْدِ
[How many a desert that the skilful, hardy guide is appalled at, when he directs his course to it, is before Mayya! (Sn)]; (b) a prep. and gen. (A), as

كَمْ فِي بَنِي سَعْدِ بْنِ بَكْرِ سَيِّدٍ * ضَخْمٌ السَّيِّعَةِ مَاجِدٍ نَفَاحٍ
(M, A), by AlFarazdak (IY, FA), How many a chief, large in bounty, glorious, very beneficent, is among the Banu Sa'd Ibn Bakr! (IY, AAz, FA), and

كَمْ بِجُودٍ مُقَرَّبٍ نَالِ الْعُلَى * وَكَرِيمٍ بَخْلَةٍ قَدْ وُضِعَتْ
(IY, A) How many a mongrel has by munificence attained eminence, and how many a noble has his own niggardliness abased! (Sn): so says IM, and this is the opinion of S (A). When the separation between the enunciatory كَمْ and its sp. is by a trans. v., مِنْ must be put, in order that the sp. may not be confounded with the obj. of that [trans. (R)] v., as كَمْ تَرَكُوا مِنْ جَنَّاتٍ XLIV. 24. How many gardens did they leave! [above] (R, Sn). And, with separation, the state of the interrog. كَمْ whose sp. is governed in the gen. [224] is like that of the enunciatory كَمْ (R).

§ 222. ^{كُم} [in both its states (R)] is sing. masc. in letter (IY, R); but applies in sense to the fem., du. [below], and pl. (IY). The pron. relates to it according to the letter or sense (M, R), as ^{كُم رَجُلًا جَارِكُ} [notwithstanding that the number asked about is du. or pl. (R)] or ^{جَارِكُ} [says An (R)] or ^{جَارُوكُ}, and ^{كُم امْرَاةً جَارِكُ}, or ^{جَارِكُ} [or ^{جَارُوكُ} (IY)] or ^{جُنُوكُ} (IY, R), whence LIII. 26. ^{وَكُم مِّنْ مَّلِكٍ فِي السَّمَوَاتِ لَا تَغْنَى شَفَاعَتُهُمْ شَيْئًا}. And the intercession of how many Angels in the heavens shall avail not aught! (M) and VII. 3. [126] (IY). But some say that ^{كُم} is sing. in letter, pl. in sense, like ^{كُلُّ} [117]: and, according to this, the pron. of the du. [above] ought not to relate to it, which is the truth, because, if you might interrogate with ^{كُم} about the number of the multitude who came to the person addressed distributed into two and two, you would be obliged to say ^{كُم رَجُلَيْنِ}. since, when you intend to distribute a multitude into sets of two or more, the du. or pl. must be distinctly expressed, as in ^{اَفْضَلُ رَجُلَيْنِ} or ^{رَجَالٍ} [118] and ^{اَيُّ رَجُلَيْنِ} or ^{رَجَالٍ} Which, or What, two men, or men?; whereas ^{كُم رَجُلَيْنِ} has not been heard, either in interrogation or enunciation.

§ 223. ^{كُم} is peculiar to indets., the interrog. because the sp. must be indet. [83]; and the enunciatory because it is a met. for number vague to the hearer [217], so that the numbered also are made vague, in order to be more indicative of the vagueness of their number (R). You say كَمْ غَيْرُهُ لَكَ or مِثْلُهُ or خَيْرًا مِنْهُ How many other than, or like, or better than, it hast thou? [114, 355]; and كَمْ غَيْرُهُ مِثْلُهُ لَكَ How many other than it, like it, hast thou?, making مِثْلُهُ an ep. of غَيْرُهُ (M). But, as for your saying كَمْ شَاةٌ وَسَخِلَتْهَا How many a sheep etc! [538] and كَمْ نَاقَةٌ وَفَصِيلَهَا [114], it is because the coupled also is indet. [262] (R).

§ 224. As to the case of the sp. of the interrog. there are three opinions, (1) that the acc. [221] is necessary unrestrictedly, [i. e. whether a prep. be prefixed to كَمْ or not (Sn)]: (2) that it is not necessary; but that the gen. [221] is allowable, unrestrictedly, by assimilation to [the sp. of] the enunciatory كَمْ [225]: this is the opinion of Fr, Zj, and Sf; and the saying كَمْ عَمَّةٌ النَّحْلِ [below] is thus explained by most, [upon the ground that كَمْ is an ironical interrog. (Sn)]: (3) that it is necessary if a prep. be not prefixed to كَمْ, and preferable to the gen. if a prep. be prefixed to it: this is the well known opinion; and S does not mention the gen. except when a prep. is prefixed to كَمْ (A). The

gen. is allowable only when كَمْ is governed in the gen. by a prep. (R, ML), as بِكَمْ دِرْهَمٍ اشْتَرَيْتَ [515] (ML, A), in which case the sp. may be in (1) the acc., [which is frequent (ML)] ; (2) the gen. (R, ML, A), contrary to the opinion of some (ML), in order that كَمْ and its sp. may agree in case (R). As some assert (ML), some of the Arabs (IY, R), the Banu Tamīm (IY, ML, A), make the enunciatory كَمْ govern its [sing. (R, ML, A) or pl. (R, Sn)] sp. in the acc. (IY, R, ML, A), even without separation [221] (R), as though they supplied Tanwīn in it [84] ; which is good Arabic, though the gen. is more frequent (IY). And the verse [of AlFarazdaq (M, ML, Sn), who was a Tamīmī (IY, Sn),]

كَمْ عَمَّةٌ لَكَ يَا جَرِيرٌ وَخَالَتُ * فِدَاءُ قَدْ حَلَبْتُ عَلَى عَشَارِي

is related with (1) the acc., (a) by supposing كَمْ to be [an ironical (ML, A)] interrog., How many paternal aunts of thine, O Jarīr, and maternal aunts, bow-legged have milked in spite of me my lately delivered she-camels ? ; [(b) according to the dial. of Tamīm, How many a paternal aunt of thine, O Jarīr, and maternal aunt, have milked etc! (IY, ML, A)] : (2) the gen., by supposing كَمْ to be [an ironical interrog. (above) or] enunciatory [217] : (3) the nom. [as an inch. (25) (IY, ML, A)], by supposing the sense to be How many (times) (M, ML, A) or (milkings), ^{اَ}كَمْ being an adv. or inf. n. (IY, ML, A), and the sp. suppressed, i. e. ^{اَ}كَمْ وَقْتُ or ^{اَ}حَلْبَةُ [upon the supposition that ^{اَ}كَمْ is enunciatory, or وَقْتُ or ^{اَ}حَلْبَةُ upon the supposition that it is an ironical interrog. (DM)], has a paternal aunt of thine, O Jarīr, and (has) a maternal aunt, or (has) a paternal etc, and has a maternal aunt, a 2nd قَدْ حَلَبْتُ being necessarily supplied [as enunc. of خَالَةٌ or عَمَّةُ (Sn, DM)], because the inch. in this case is multiple in letter and sense (ML, A).

§ 225. When the sp. of the interrog. ^{اَ}كَمْ is in the gen. [224], it is governed, [according to the GG (R),] by ^{اَ}مِنْ [necessarily (ML)] understood [515], [which is the opinion of Khl, S, Fr, and many (A)]; but, according to Zj, by prothesis (R, ML, A), as in the case of the enunciatory (R). The enunciatory is pre. to its sp. [221], governing it as every pre. governs the post. [110] (M). ^{اَ}مِنْ is [frequently (M)] prefixed [to the sp. (IY, R, Jm)] after the [interrog. and (IH)] enunciatory ^{اَ}كَمْ (M, IH): that construction is frequent in the case of the enunciatory (R, Jm), as VII. 3. [126] and LIII. 26. [222] (M, R, Jm), because the prothesis here is renderable by ^{اَ}مِنْ [111], as in بَابُ سَاجٍ [85] (IY), [and] because the sp. then agrees in case with the sp. post. to ^{اَ}كَمْ;

but, as for the interrog. كَمْ, I have not met with its sp. governed in the gen. by مِنْ in poetry or prose, nor is its allowability indicated by any book on grammar (R, Jm), nor do I know what is the truth of it (R): so says R; but Z [followed by B] allows كَمْ in II. 207. [62] to be interrog. and enunciatory (Jm). And, when the sp. is governed in the gen. by مِنْ, then كَمْ is [necessarily (R)] construed to be pronounced with Tanwīn [110] (M, R), as though you said مَنْ الْمَلَائِكَةُ and كَثِيرٌ مِنَ الْقُرَى; while, according to some, [vid. the KK (IY),] كَمْ is always [construed to be (IY)] pronounced with Tanwīn, the gen. after it being governed by مِنْ [expressed or (IY)] understood (M).

§ 226. كَايْنٌ and كَذَا are like the enunciatory كَمْ in denoting multitude (IA, A) of number vague in genus and quantity [217]. Each of them agrees with كَمْ in some matters, and differs from it in others. كَذَا agrees with كَمْ in 4 matters, uninflectedness, vagueness, needing the sp., and importing multitude. And it differs from كَمْ in 4 matters:— (1) it is compounded of the ك of comparison [509] and the dem. ذَا [171] (A): (2) it does not [necessarily (A)] take the head of the sentence, as قَبَضْتُ كَذَا وَكَذَا دِرْهَمًا I took so many dirhams :

(3) it is mostly used coupled to, as

عَدَّ النَّفْسَ نَعْمَى بَعْدَ بُؤْسَاكَ ذَاكِرًا

كَذَا وَكَذَا لُطْفًا بِهِ نَسِيَ الْجَهْدَ

[Promise the soul happiness after thy distress, remembering so many pleasures wherewith hardship has been forgotten (Jsh)]; and IKh asserts that they do not say

كَذَا كَذَا دِرْهَمًا nor كَذَا دِرْهَمًا; but IM mentions that this has been heard, though rarely: (4) its sp. must be governed in the acc.; and may not be governed in the

gen. by مِنْ, by common consent; nor by prothesis, contrary to the opinion of the KK, who, when there is neither repetition or coupling, allow كَذَا ثَوْبٌ and

مِائَتَةُ ثَوْبٍ by analogy to the genuine num., [like مِائَةُ ثَوْبٍ

and ثَلَاثَةُ أَثَوَابٍ (DM)]. The compounded كَذَا [single or coupled (A)] occurs also as a met. for something else than number, [vid. the narrative, det. or indet. (A), i. e. the expression occurring in the narration of a thing, whether deed or saying (Sn),] whence the tradition يُقَالُ لِلْعَبْدِ يَوْمَ الْقِيَامَةِ

أَتَذَكَّرُ يَوْمَ كَذَا وَكَذَا It will be said to the servant

on the day of resurrection, Dost thou remember the day of such and such? : and كَذَا also consists of two words in their original sense, vid. the ك of comparison and dem.

ذَا, whence

وَأَسْلَمَنِي الزَّمَانُ كَذَا • فَلَا طَرْبُ وَلَا أَنْسُ

[And time has abandoned me grieved like this; so that there is neither mirth nor sociability (DM)]; and the premonitory هَا [551] is prefixed to it, as اهْكَذَا عَرْشُكَ

XXVII. 42. Is thy throne like this? كَايْنُ agrees with كَمْ in 5 matters, uninflectedness, vagueness, needing the sp., always taking the head of the sentence, and importing sometimes multitude, which is mostly the case, [as III. 140. (24) (ML),] and sometimes interrogation [below], which is extraordinary, and is authorized only by IKb, IU, and IM, the last of whom cites as evidence the saying of Ubayy Ibn Ka'b to Ibn Mas'ūd كَايْنُ تَقْرَأُ سُورَةَ الْأَحْزَابِ آيَةً How many verses readest [i. e. reckonest (Sn)] thou the Chapter of The Confederates [Kur. XXXIII] to be?, upon which he said "Seventy-three." And it differs from كَمْ in 5 [or rather 6] matters:— (1) it is compounded of the ك of comparison and اَي, for which reason it may be paused upon with the و, because the Tanwin, when affixed in composition, resembles the rad. و, for which reason it is written in the Codex as a ^كي; while he that pauses [upon ^كاي (ML)] with elision of the ^ي has regard to its predicament in the o. f., namely elision in pause [609]: whereas ^كم is simple: (2) its sp. is governed (a) in the gen. by ^من, which is so often the case that IU asserts it to be always so, whence III. 140. [above]; (b) in the acc., as

أَطْرَدَ الْيَاسِيَ بِالرَّجَاءِ فَكَأَنَّ * أَلَمَّا حَمَّ يَسْرَةً بَعْدَ عُسْرٍ

[Drive away despair with hope: for how many a pain-stricken wretch has had his ease decreed after distress! (Jsh)] and

وَكَأَنَّ لَنَا فُضْلًا عَلَيْكُمْ وَمِنَّةٌ * قَدِيمًا وَلَا تَدْرُونَ مَا مَنِّ مَنَعُ

[And how many favors and obligations have we conferred upon you aforetime! And ye know not what obligations a benefactor has conferred! (Jsh)]: (3) it does not occur as an interrog., according to the majority, as shown above: (4) it does not occur governed in the gen., contrary to the opinion of IKb and IU, who allow ^بكَأَنَّ تَبِيعَ هذا الثَّوبِ For how much wilt thou sell this garment?

(ML, A), where it is interrog. (DM): (5) its enunc. does not occur as a single term (ML); but as a prop., as in the texts, contrary to ^كم, as ^كم رَجُلٍ قَائِمٌ How many a man is standing! (DM): (6) its sp. occurs only sing. (A). It has 5 dial. vars. [transmitted by Th (IY)], (1)

كَايِنٌ [the original and chastest one (IY, A), which is read by the Seven except Ibn Kathīr (A)] ; (2) كَاتِنٌ, upon the measure of كَاعِنٌ, [the next best, which is read by Ibn Kathīr, and (A)] is most frequent in poetry (IY, A), as in the 2 preceding verses and وَكَاتِنٌ بِالْأَبَاطِحِ الْغِ (166) (A)] ; (3) كَايِنٌ, upon the measure of كُعَيْنٌ, [which is read by AlA'mash and Ibn Muḥaiṣin (A)] ; (4) كَيْتِنٌ, upon the measure of كَيْعِنٌ ; (5) كَانٌ, upon the measure of كَعْنٌ (M, A).

§ 227. كَيْتٌ and ذَيْتٌ are contracted from كَيْتَةٌ and ذَيْتَةٌ [689]. They are pronounced with Fath, Kasr (M, R, A), and Damm (M, R, Sn) of the ت, Fath being the best known (A). Pause upon them is [with the ت (R),] as in بُذِتْ (M, R) and أُخِتْ (M). They are used [by many of the Arabs (M)] according to the o. f. (M, R, A), as كَانٌ مِنَ الْأَمْرِ كَيْتَةً وَكَيْتَةً (IY, A) : and then are pronounced only with Fath (R, A), because of the heaviness of the reduplication ; and are paused upon with the ة [646]. And AU transmits كَيْتٌ with the ة pronounced with Fath and Kasr in place of the ت of كَيْفَ [690]. They are uninfl., because each of them is a word occurring in the place of the sentence, while the prop., as such, is not entitled to either inflection or uninflectedness (R). They are always repeated (M, R, A) with the con. و, as قَالَ فُلَانٌ كَيْفَ وَكَيْفَ Such a one said so and so and كَانَ مِنَ الْأَمْرِ ذِيكَ وَذِيكَ Such and such circumstances of the matter took place (R), in order that they may not be imagined to be mets. for single words (IY). It is a mistake to say قَالَ فُلَانٌ كَيْفَ كَانَ مِنَ الْأَمْرِ كَيْفَ وَكَيْفَ because the Arabs say and قَالَ فُلَانٌ ذِيكَ وَذِيكَ, making كَيْفَ وَكَيْفَ a met.

 for deeds, and ذِيكَ وَذِيكَ for speech (D).

CHAPTER VI.

THE DUAL NOUN.

§ 228. Dualization is the addition of one n. to another like it (IY). The du. is that [n. (IY)] to whose final 2 augments, (1) an ʔ [in the nom. (IY)], or a و [in the acc. and gen. (IY)] preceded by a letter pronounced with Fath, and (2) a و pronounced with Kasr, are affixed, in order that the 1st [aug. (IY)] may be a sign of the addition of sing. to sing., [and a compensation for the suppressed n. (IY),] and the other may be a compensation for what is prevented [by the addition of another n. (IY)], vid. the vowel and Tanwīn existing in the sing. (M). The o. f. of the du. [and pl. (R)] is [said to be (R)] coupling (IY, R) with the و [539] (R). The du. is that [n. (YS)] which indicates two [things (YS)] and serves instead of 2 [ns.] coupled together, like ^{الزیدان} *The two Zaid*s, its o. f. being ^{زید} Zaid and ^{زید} Zaid, from which they deviate out of dislike to the prolixity and tautology (Fk). This is shown by the fact that the poet, when constrained, reverts to coupling (IY, R), which is frequent in poetry (IY) ; and that coupling sometimes occurs anomalously in prose (R) : and it is confirmed by the fact that you do not put the du.

in the case of different ns., as جَانِي زَيْدٌ وَعَمْرُو , because one of the 2 expressions does not indicate the other (IY). But, when multiplication is intended, as

لَوْ عَدَّ قَبْرٌ وَقَبْرٌ كُنْتُ أَكْرَمَهُمْ * مَيْتًا وَابْعَدَهُمْ مِنْ مَنْزِلِ الدَّامِ

[by 'Isām Ibn 'Ubaid azZimmānī, If grave and grave were reckoned, I should be the noblest of them when dead, and the farthest of them from the abode of blame (T)], or the 2 ns. are separated by a separative either expressed, as جَانِي رَجُلٍ طَوِيلٍ وَرَجُلٍ قَصِيرٍ A tall man and a short man came to me, or supplied, as جَانِي رَجُلٍ فَكَرَّمْتُ الرَّجُلَ وَرَجُلٍ فَضَرَبْتُهُ A man came to me, and I honored the (coming) man and the man that thou didst beat, i. e.

الرَّجُلُ الْجَانِي , coupling is allowable, as you see, without anomaly or exigency. And, in order to denote multiplication, the n. is sometimes repeated without coupling, as

LXXXIX. 22. [132]; or dualized, as ثُمَّ ارْجِعِ الْبَصَرَ كَرَّتَيْنِ

LXVII. 4. Then repeat the gaze twice and لَبَيْكَ [115]

(R). For every n. that is dualized 8 conditions are prescribed [234]:— (1) sing. number; (2) inflection; (3) absence of composition; (4) indeterminateness; (5) agreement in letter; (6) agreement in sense; (7) objective existence of a second to it; (8) that the place of its du. should not be supplied by the du. of another word (Fk), or rather by another word. The following ns.

therefore are not dualized:— (1) the du. and perfect pl. [232]: (2) the uninfl., contrary to the opinion of Mb : (3) the att. comp., by common consent [234]; and the synthetic, contrary to the opinion of the KK and their followers ; and the n. ending in ^{وَيْتٌ}, contrary to the opinion of some, which is adopted by Syt : (4) the proper name, while it retains its quality of proper name [171]: (5) ns. applied to denote what has no second in existence, like ^{شَمْسٌ} sun and ^{قَمَرٌ} moon, when the proper [not tropical] signification is intended : (6) the trope and homonym with respect to their different significations : (7) such as ^{شَمْسٌ} and ^{قَمَرٌ} [above] ; but this condition can be dispensed with, its place being supplied by the condition of agreement in letter: (8) ^{بَعْضٌ}, ^{سَرَا}, and ^{ضَبْعٌ} the name of the male hyena, because the place of their du. is supplied by the du. of ^{جَزْءٌ}, ^{سَيٌّ}, and ^{ضَبْعٌ} the name of the female, though ^{سَرَايٌ} and ^{ضَبْعَانِي} are transmitted ; and the nums. other than ^{مِائَةٌ} and ^{أَلْفٌ}, contrary to the opinion of Akh, because the place of the du. of ^{ثَلَاثَةٌ} Three is supplied by ^{سِتَّةٌ} Six; and ^{أَجْمَعٌ} and ^{جَمْعَاءُ}, according to the opinion of the BB, because the place of their du. is supplied by ^{كُلٌّ} and ^{كُلَّتَا} (YS). But they say ^{أَبُو الْعَرَانِ} meaning Abù Bakr and 'Umar, and

القمران meaning The sun and moon, because here the matter is plain and free from dubiety. The du. is of 2 kinds, (1) that in which the letter of dualization is affixed to the n., while the latter is constructively separate, as رَجُلَانِ [229], عَصَوَانِ, and all that precede; (2) that which is formed as a du., but in which the sing. is not constructively separate, as مَنْرَوَانِ [229] and عَقْلَتَهُ بِنَائِيْنِ I knee-halterd him with two ends of a rope [230], neither مَنْرَوَانِ nor ثَنَائِيْنِ having a sing. (IY). When the du. is not that of an abbreviated n. [229], the form of the sing. remains in it preserved (M), as XX. 66. [525] and فَوَجَدَ فِيْهَا رَجُلَيْنِ يُقَاتِلَانِ XXVIII. 14. And he found in it two men fighting together (AAz). The ة of feminization is elided (1) in [only 2 words (M),] حُصْيَانِ and الْيَتَانِ (M, IH), by analogy حُصْيَتَانِ and الْيَتَانِ (IY, R), which also are allowable, by common consent, as

بَلَىٰ أَيْرَ الْحِمَارِ وَحُصْيَتَا * أَحَبُّ إِلَيَّ فَزَارَةٌ مِنْ فَزَارِ

Yes, the penis of the he-ass and his 2 testicles are dearer to Fazāra than Fazāra or a Fazarī and مَتِيْمًا تَلْقَنِيَّ الْحَمَامُ [74]; while حُصْيَانِ and الْيَتَانِ are said by some to be poetic licenses, because they do not occur except in poetry, as

كَانَ خُصْيِيَّةً مِّنَ التَّدْلِيلِ * ظَلَفٌ عَجُوزٍ فِيهِ ثُنْتَا حَنْظَلٍ

[by Khitām alMujāshīʿī, quoting from a woman who said it of her husband (AAz), As though his two testicles from dangling were an old woman's pot wherein were 2 colocynths, properly حَنْظَلَتَانِ (IY, AAz),] and

طَلْعِيَّةٌ وَاقِفَةٌ فِي الرِّكْبِ * يَرْتَجُّ الْيَلَاءُ ارْتِجَاجَ الْوُطْبِ

(M, R) He is a like a woman's camel-litter standing still among the camel-riders : his two buttocks quiver with the quivering of the milk-skin [85] : (2) sometimes in other words, as وَنَحْرُ الْخِ [532] (AAz). The نِ of the du. is elided an account of (1) prothesis [110] (M, IH), as in the saying of the Prophet الْحَسَنِ وَالْحُسَيْنِ سَيِّدَا شَبَابِ أَهْلِ الْجَنَّةِ Al'Hasan and Al'Husain are the two chiefs of the youth of the people of Paradise (AAz); (2) poetic license

[233], as in هُمَا خُطَلَا الْخِ [44]; (3) abridgment of the conj., as in الضَّارِبُ بَا زِيدًا with the acc. [344] (R) : and its ا [also is elided (IY)] because of meeting a quiescent, as in جَاءَنِي غُلَامَا ابْنِكَ The two menservants of thy son came to me and (IY) [610, 663] (M). التَّقْتُ حَلَقَتَا الْبَطَانِ

§ 229. If the decl. n. be sound in the final or defective [16], the sign of the du. is affixed to it without alteration, as رَجُلَانِ [228], جَارِيَتَانِ, and قَاضِيَانِ from رَجُلٌ, جَارِيَةٌ, and قَاضٍ (IA). The word is altered in the du. in 3 sorts [of n.], the abbreviated [16], the prolonged [230], and the [n.] arbitrarily curtailed of its final [231] (R). The l of the abbreviated is either 3rd or upwards. If it be 3rd, then, (1) if an o. f. of it in the و or ي be known, it is restored to its o. f. in the du., as عَصْرَانِ and فَتَيَانِ (M) from عَصَا and فَتًى (IY) : the poet says

وَقَدْ أَعَدَدْتُ لِلْعَذَالِ عِنْدِي * عَصَا فِي رَأْسِهَا مَنَوَا حَدِيدِ

And I have made ready, for the upbraiders beside me, a staff on whose head are two manè-weights of iron (A) ;

and the Kur has وَدَخَلَ مَعَهُ السَّجْنُ فَتَيَانِ XII. 36. And two young men entered the prison with him (IY, A) :

while حَمْرَانِ from حَمًى is anomalous (A), because its l is a substitute for a ي (Sn) : (2) if its o. f. be unknown, then, (a) if it be pronounced with Imāla, it is converted into ي, as مَتَيَانِ and بَلَيَانِ from مَتًى and بَلًى [639] when used as names ; (b) if not, it is converted into و, as لَدَوَانِ and الرَّوَانِ [686] from لَدًى and أَلًى when used as names (M). As to the 2 ls that are not substituted [for a known o. f., being either not substituted at all, or substituted for an o. f. whose identity is unknown (Sn)], vid. the rad. ا, i. e. that which is in a p., [as بَلَى (Sn),] or its like, [as مَتَى (Sn),] and the ا whose o. f. is unknown, [which IUK exemplifies by such as اَلَدَّ play, because, says he, one does not know whether its ا be from a ي or و (Sn),] there are 3 [or rather 4 (Sn)] opinions:—(1) the well known one, that their state with respect to Imāla is regarded, so that, if pronounced with Imāla, they are dualized with the ي; and, if not, with the و; this is the opinion of S, and is decisively asserted by IM here: (2) that, if pronounced with Imāla or converted into ي in any position, they are dualized with the ي; and, if not, with the و; this opinion is preferred by IU, and is decisively asserted by IM in the Kāfiya: and, according to this, عَلَى, أَلَى, and لَدَى are dualized with the ي, because their ا is converted into ا with the pron. [129, 205]; while, according to the 1st, they are dualized with the و; both of which sayings are transmitted from Akh: (3) that the rad. and unknown ا are converted into ي unrestrictedly, [i. e. whether they be pronounced with Imāla or not, and whether they be converted into ي in any position or not: (4) that they are converted into و, whether they be pronounced with Imāla or not, as in the Ham' (Sn)]. The ا sometimes has 2 o. fs. with respect to 2 dials., in which case 2 modes are allowable, as رَحَى, which belongs to the ی in the dial. that says رَحِيتَ, and to the و in the dial. that says رَحَوْتُ; so that the du. may be رَحِيَانِ and رَحَوَانِ, though the ی is more frequent (A). If, however, the ل be above the 3rd, it is converted into ی only, [because, when the abbreviated exceeds 3 letters, its ل is either converted from a ی or assimilated to what is converted from it (IY),] as مَرَمِيَانِ from مَرَمَى, where the ل is orig. converted from the ی (IY); مَلْهِيَانِ [from مَلْهَى, where the ل is converted from a ی, and the ی is a substitute for the و (685, 727) (IY)]; and حَبْلِيَانِ, حَبَارِيَانِ, [أَرْطِيَانِ, and قَبْعَثَرِيَانِ, from حَبْلَى (263), حَبَارَى (378), أَرْطَى (18, 497), and قَبْعَثَرَى (401), where the ل is not converted from any thing, but is in the predicament of what is converted from the ی (727), since the و does not occur as a final when 4th (or upwards) (IY)]. As for مَنُذَرَوَانِ [721], it is because the dualization in it is inseparable, like the feminization in شَقَاوَةٌ [266] (M), so that it has no sing. [228], as شَقَاوَةٌ has no masc. (IY): ‘Antara says

أَحْرَوْلِي تَنْفُضُ اسْتَكْ مَنُذَرَوِيهَا * لَتَقْتَلَنِي فَهَا أَنَا ذَا عَمَارَا

(Mb, IY), satirizing ‘Umāra Ibn Ziyād al‘Absī, What!

round me does thy rump shake its two buttocks, that thou mayst slay me? Then, mark, I am this hero [552], 'Umāra! (AAz); whereas, if it had a sirtg., you would say ^{مَدْرِيَانِ} in the du. (Mb). This is the opinion of the BB about the abbreviated that exceeds 3 letters, whether its letters be few or many: but the KK relate that, when the abbreviated transcends 4 letters, and its letters are many, the Arabs elide its l in the du. (IY). ^{قَهْقَرَانِ} and ^{خَوَزَلَانِ}, with elision [of the y (Sn)], in the du. of the quin. ^{قَهْقَرِي} and ^{خَوَزَلِي} are anomalous (A). In short, the l of the abbreviated is converted into (1) y in 3 positions, (a) when it is 4th or upwards; (b) when it is 3rd, a substitute for a y; (c) when it is 3rd, unknown in o. f. and pronounced with Imāla: (2) w in 2 positions, (a) when it is 3rd, a substitute for a w; (b) when it is 3rd, unknown in o. f., and not pronounced with Imāla (IA). The whole of the anomalies in the abbreviated one 3, (1) ^{مَدْرَوَانِ}: (2) ^{خَوَزَلَانِ} and ^{قَهْقَرَانِ}, which the KK hold to be regular: (3) ^{رَضِيَانِ}, which Ks holds to be regular; so that he allows ^{رَضِي} and ^{عَلِي}, which belong to the cat. of the w, but are pronounced with Kasr or Damm of the 1st, to be dualized with the y (A).

§ 230. The ns. whose final is a Hamza are of 2

kinds, prolonged and unprolonged. The prolonged [229] is every n. whose final is a Hamza preceded by an aug. ا, as كَسَاء and دَاء [683, 723] (IY). The Hamza of the prolonged is [of 4 kinds (R)], (1) substituted for the ا of femininization, as حمراء [263]; (2) denotative of co-ordination, as علماء [273]; (3) converted from a rad. [و or ي (R)], as كَسَاء [and حَيَاء (IA)]; (4) rad., as قراء (R, IA). The Hamza [substituted for the ا (IA, A)] of femininization is usually converted into و (R, IA, A), as حمراء (IA, A): and is rarely sounded true, as حمراء; or, [as Mb transmits from Mz (R),] converted into ي, as حمراء (R, A): but Sf asserts that, when its ا is preceded by a و, as عشاء, the Hamza must be sounded true, as عشاء, not عشاء, in order that 2 و having only an ا between them may not be combined; and the KK in that case allow both methods (A). The rad. Hamza is [usually (R)] preserved [in the du. (R, A), as قراء and ضاء (IA, A)]; but F transmits from some of the Arabs that it is converted into و, as قراء (R)]. The Hamza denotative of coordination, or converted from a rad. [و or ي (R, A)], may be converted into و, [as علماء, كساء and حياء (IA, A)]; or preserved, [as عِلْبَاوَانِ, كَسَاوَانِ, and حَيَاوَانِ (IA, A)]; but conversion is better in the Hamza denotative of co-ordination, and preservation in the one converted from a rad. (R, IA, A): so IM mentions, agreeably with the opinion of some; but S and Akh, followed by Jz, declare that preservation is better unrestrictedly, though S mentions that conversion is more frequent in the Hamza denotative of coordination than in the one converted from a rad., while it is rare in both (A). The Hamza [substituted for a rad. (R)] is sometimes converted into ي, [as كَسَايَانِ (A)]; though this is anomalous (R, A), contrary to the opinion of Ks: and they treat ثَنَائِيَانِ as sound [721], because they convert only the final و or ي into Hamza after the ا, as كَسَاوَانِ and رَدَاوَانِ; whereas here the ي is not final, since the sing. is not used [228]. The 2 aug. of femininization [273] (R), the ا and Hamza (A), when they follow 4 or more letters (R), are sometimes elided [together (A)], as قَاصِعَايِ [and عَاشُورَايِ, by analogy قَاصِعَاوَانِ and عَاشُورَاوَانِ (A), because of the length (R)]; though this is anomalous (R, A), contrary to the opinion of the KK (R). The anomalies in the prolonged are 5, (1) حَمْرَاوَانِ, which, as Ns relates, is allowed by the KK; (2) حَمْرَايَانِ, which, as some relate, is the dial. of Fazāra; (3) قَاصِعَايِ, which is held by the KK to be regular ; (4) كَسَايَ, which is held by Ks to be regular, and is transmitted by AZ from the dial. of Fazāra ; (5) قَرَادَانِ, though the language of some GG implies that it has not been heard (A). The unprolonged is every n. whose final is a Hamza not preceded by an ا, as رَشَا, حَدَا, and قَارَى; and it admits of only one method, vid. retention of the Hamza, as رَشَانِ, because the Hamza in it is rad. (IY).

§ 231. As for the n. [arbitrarily (R)] curtailed of its final, [it is of 2 kinds (IY) :—] (1) if the elided [ل (IY)] be restored in prothesis, as in أَب [16], أَخ, [حَم, and هَي (R),] it must be restored in the du. [also (R)], as أَبَوَانِ, أَخَوَانِ (IY, R), حُمَوَانِ, and هَنَوَانِ : (a) sometimes أَبَانِ and أَخَانِ are said (R) : (b) he that says هَنُك in prothesis says هَنَانِ in the du., and he that says هَنُوك says هَنَوَانِ (IY) : (c) as for فُوك, the ل is not restored in the du., as it is not restored in prothesis ; and the word is dualized only by conversion of its ل into م, as when it is not pre., as فَمَانِ : but فَمَوَانِ occurs in poetry, as

هَمَا نَفَثَانِي فِي مَن فَمَرِيهُمَا * عَلَى النَّابِغِ الْعَاوِي أَشَدَّ رِجَامِ

[by AlFarazdaq, They two have spat into my mouth from their two mouths (233) a most severe reviling against the barker, the howler (Dw)]; and فَعْيَانِي, which is stranger : (d) the ل of ذَانِ is restored in the du., not the ل of نُو, as نَوَاتَا مَالٍ; but ذَاتَا مَالٍ also occurs, though it is rare (R) : (2) if the [elided (IY)] ل be not restored in prothesis, as in يَدٌ (R), عُدٌ, and دَمٌ, it is not restored in the du. [also (R)], as يَدَانِي and دَعَانِي : (a) as for يَدَيَانِي in (R)] the saying of the poet

يَدَيَانِي يَيْضَاوَانِي عِنْدَ مُحَلِّمٍ * قَدْ تَمْنَعَانِي أَنْ تَضَامَ وَتُضَاهَا

[Two noble hands belonging to Muḥallim (a king of Al Yaman) do hinder thee from being wronged and oppressed (AAz), it is explained by our school as rare and anomalous, and is held by them to be a poetic license ; but, in my opinion (IY)], it is according to the dial. of those who say يَدِي, [treating it as abbreviated (IY),] like رُحِي : (b) [similarly دَمٌ is used abbreviated, so that (IY)] دَمِيَانِي [or دَمُولِي (R)] is said, as in the saying of the poet [Mirdās Ibn ‘Amr, or, as is said AlAkḥṭal (IY), or Suḥaim Ibn Wathīl arRiyāḥī (N),]

قُلُوْا إِنَّا عَلَى حَجَرٍ ذَبَحْنَا * جَرَى الدَّمِيَانِ بِالشَّخْرِ الْيَقِيْنِ

port the burden of warlike expeditions (N), cited by AUd; and they say لِقَاحَيْنِ سَوْدَاوَيْنِ Two herds of black milch-camels, [quoted by S (IY)]; and Abu-nNajm [al'Ijli (Jsh)] says, [describing a mare trained to war (N),]

تَبَقَّلْتُ فِي أَوَّلِ التَّبَقُّلِ * بَيْنَ رِمَاحِي مَالِكٍ وَنَهْشَلِ

(M) She grazed in the beginning of the grazing between the two clumps of spears of Mālik Ibn Dubai'a and Nahshal Ibn Dārim, 2 Chiefs of the Arabs (N). This is easier in اِبْلَانِ, because اِبْلٌ, being a generic n., is sing. [254], not a broken pl., like جَمَالٌ (IY). But لَنَا مَسَاجِدَانِ is not allowed.

§ 233. When 2 parts are pre. in letter or sense to their 2 wholes, then, if the 2 wholes be uniform in letter, the sing. number in the pre. is better than the du., as

كَأَنَّهُ وَجْهٌ تَرْكِييْنِ قَدْ غَضِبَا

As though it were the face of 2 Turks, who had become angry and حَيَا اللَّهُ وَجْهًا لِلزَّيْدَيْنِ God save a face of the 2 Zaidis!, in the latter of which the prothesis is in sense; and the pl. is better than the sing., as اِنْ تَوَبَّا إِلَى اللَّهِ LXXVI. 4. If ye turn again unto God, your hearts have swerved, [an address to Hafsa and 'Ā'isha (K, B)]. That is because in lit. prothesis, which is frequently used, they dislike the combination of 2 du. united in letter by the prothesis, and in sense, since the intention is that the pre. should be part of the post., while no ambiguity is produced by the omission of dualization ; and id. [prothesis] is made to accord with the lit. : but, if the omission lead to ambiguity, only the du. is allowable according to the KK, which is the truth [below], as you say

قَلَعَتْ عَيْنَيْهِمَا I plucked out their two eyes, when you have plucked out an eye from each one ; while قَاتَعُوا

أَيْدِيَهُمَا V. 42. Cut off their hands means أَيْمَانُهُمَا their right hands by tradition and common consent, and is so read by Ibn Mas'ūd, [for which reason the pl. may be put in place of the du., as in LXVI. 4., because the dualization of the post. is deemed sufficient (B)]. And the pl. is preferred to the sing. because of its affinity to the du. in being an addition of a sing. to another thing [234]. S makes no distinction between the first's being single in each of the two [seconds], as in قَلَبْنَاهُمَا, and its not being so, as in أَيْدِيَهُمَا, relying upon the evidence of V. 42. ; but the truth is what the KK hold [above], vid. that the pl. in the like of it is not allowable except with a plain indication, as in the text. The 2 idioms are combined in the saying [of Khiṭām alMujāshī'i, says S, or Himyān Ibn Kuḥāfa, says F (FA),]

وَمَهْمَيْنِ قَدْفَيْنِ مَرَّتَيْنِ * ظَهَرَا مِثْلَ ظَهْرِ التَّرْسَيْنِ

جِئْتُهُمَا بِالْغَيْتِ لَا بِالْغَيْتَيْنِ

[And many two deserts distant, bare of vegetation, whose 2 backs were like the backs of 2 bucklers, have I come to by the single description, not by the two descriptions !, i. e. have I traversed by hearing that road described a single time ! (AAz, N); and the o. f. is used in هُمَا نَفْثَا الْخَ (231)

(AAz)]. If, however, the 2 wholes be separated by a con., the sing. is preferred to the du. and pl., as نَفْسُ زَيْدٍ

وَعَمْرٍو The person of Zaid and 'Amr, in order that the apparent pre. may agree [in number] with the apparent post. : and, if the pre. be not part of the post., but they be separate, then, if there be danger of ambiguity, as in the pre. must be in the du.; whereas, if there be no danger, it may be regularly in the pl., agreeably with the opinion of Fr and Y, contrary to the opinion of others, who allow it as matter of hearsay, as in ضَعُ رِحَالَهُمَا

لَقِيتُ غُلَامِي الزَّيْدَيْنِ I met the 2 menservants of the 2 Zaid,

Put down their saddles, where there is no danger of ambiguity, because 2 camels have only 2 saddles. In the pron. relating to every n. that we have mentioned, whose letter differs from its sense, the letter or sense may be observed, as نَفْسُكُمْ أَعْجَبَتْنِي or أَعْجَبَتَانِي The persons of you two pleased me ; and similarly in the qual., dem., and the like (R). The sing. sometimes occurs in the place of (1) the du. (R, BS), in the case of those 2 things which accompany one another and do not separate, like the two legs and two eyes, as عَيْنِي لَا تَنَامُ Mine eye sleeps not (R), whence

أَلَا إِنَّ عَيْنًا لَّمْ تَجِدْ يَوْمَ وَاسِطٍ * عَلَيْكَ بِجَارِي دُمُعَهَا لَجَمُودٍ

(BS), by Abū 'Atá asSindī, lamenting Ibn Hubaira, Now, verily an eye that lavished not its flowing tears over thee, O Ibn Hubaira, on the day of thy death at Wāsiṭ, was indeed niggardly (FD) ; and approximate to it is وَعَيْنَايَ فِي رَوْضٍ مِنَ الْحَسَنِ تَرْتَعُ

And my two eyes revel in gardens of beauty, [for تَرْتَعَانِ]:

(2) the pl., [when there is no danger of ambiguity (K on II. 6),] as وَيَكُونُونَ عَلَيْهِمْ ضِدًّا XIX. 85. And they shall be adversaries to them, whence

كُلُوا فِي بَعْضِ بَطْنِكُمْ تَعْفُوا * فَإِنَّ زَمَانَكُمْ زَمَنٌ خَمِصٌ

[316] (R) Eat ye in part of your bellies : [if ye eat little (AAz),] ye will be abstinent. For verily your time is a hungry time (AAz, N), i. e. بَطْنُكُمْ (SL), and أَزْرَادُونَ

وَقِيمُ النَّحْلِ [18] with جُلْدٌ in the sing. (N). Conversely the

du. acts as a substitute for the sing., as فَجَعَلْنَ مَدَنَ عَاقِلَيْنِ أَيَّامَنَا * وَجَعَلْنَ أَمْعَزَ رَامَتَيْنِ شِمَالًا

Then they put the watercourse of 'Aqil on the rights, and put the hard ground of Rāmatān on the left, i. e.

وَلَمْ يَخَفْ, which is a mountain; and Fr allows

مَقَامَ رَبِّهِ جَنَّاتٍ LV. 46. And he that feareth the bar of his Lord shall have a garden to be an instance of this; and IKhz states in the Nihāya [fi-nNaḥw (HKh)] that they say مَاتَ حَتْفَ أَنْفِهِ He died [a natural death, literally] the death of his nose, [orig. He died upon his bed, and his soul came forth from his nose (Md),] and that

يَا حَبِذَا عَيْنَا سُلَيْمَى وَالْفَا

O most lovely are the two eyes of Sulaimā and the mouth is an instance of this construction, the o. f. being وَالْفَا, and the و elided by poetic license [228] (BS): and sometimes acts as a substitute for اِفْعَلْ, as L. 23. [193], either because dualization of the ag. is made a substitute for repetition of the v., as XXIII. 101. [598, 607] is explained; or because most travelling-companions are 3 in number, and each of them usually addresses his 2 companions, so that a single person also is addressed as two, because their tongues are accustomed to it (R). The pl. sometimes occurs in the place of the [sing. or (R)]

du. (R, BS), a synecdoche being meant to be understood, as ^{جَبَّ مَذَاكِيرَهُ} He cut off his penis and ^{قَطَعَ اللّٰهُ خَصَالَهُ} God cut off his testicles ! (R) ; and the substitution of the sing. and pl. for the du. are combined in the saying of the Hudhali [Abù Dhu'aib (N)]

^{فَا لَعَيْنُ بَعْدَهُمْ كَانَتْ} ^{حَدَاتُهَا * سَمِلَتْ بِشَوْكِ} ^{فَهِيَ عَوْرٌ تَدْمَعُ}

Then the eye after the death of them is as though its blacks were put out with thorns, so that they are blind, shedding tears (BS).

P. 456, l. 8. Read "ep."

P. 461, l. 7. This Khalid was the cousin of Abū Dhu'aib (Is, Jsh).

P. 464, l. 3. The majority, however, hold that ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك is curtailed, being constructively ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك: and that afterwards the ā is interpolated, without being reckoned [as the ā of feminization (Sn)]; and is pronounced with Fath, because it occurs in the place of what requires Fath, vid. what precedes the ā of feminization elided, but understood (A)—
l. l. By AlḤuṭai'a (IY).

P. 465, l. 20. It is named subst. in the conventional language of the BB: and, as for the KK, Akh says that they name it interpretation [of what is meant by the ant. (Sn)], and explanation [of it (Sn)]; while IK says that they name it repetition (A) of what is meant by the ant.; but the propriety of these 3 names is not evident in the case of the subst. distinct [from the ant.] (Sn).

P. 468, l. 17. Because the enunciative prop. would remain without a rel. (IY).

P. 469, ll. 6-7. By AlAkhtal (Akh).

P. 470, l. 11. Cited by Mz (MAd).

P. 471, l. 18. After "Zaid" insert "[160]".

P. 472, l. 7. ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك relates to ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك, being the cop. [27], according to R's theory as to the op. of the subst. [131].

P. 478, l. 5. He satirized AlḤajjāj (T)—l. 10. A heathen poet (FA).

P. 474, l. 1. Read "Kuraish".

P. 476, l. 11. Read "Sa'id".

P. 478, l. 17. ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك in lexicology is Reversion to the thing after departure from it (Sn)—l. 18. This appos. is named ^{ألف}مَمْلُوك البَيَان because the speaker reverts to, and manifests, the ant. by means of it (Sn).

P. 479, l. 2. The Khalifa Abū Ḥafṣ 'Umar Ibn AlKhaṭṭāb alKuraishī al'Adawī alMadanī, a. 13, l. 23 (Nw).

P. 480, l. 1. But here the synd. expl. is not a prim.

P. 481, l. 13. Bishr Ibn 'Amr, of the Banū Bakr Ibn Wā'il (AAz).

P. 486, l. 1. ^أبعض is governed in the acc. by an understood v. indicated by ^أرَدِّدَ, as though he said ^أكَفَرُوا بِبَعْضٍ (T).

P. 489, l. 2. For "his" read "His"—l. 3. Read "because (MAIH)]".

P. 492, l. 14. Maslama Ibn Dhuhl, Zayyāba being his mother (Jsh), one of the Banū Taim Allāh Ibn Tha'āba (IAth), a heathen poet—l. 15. AlḤārith Ibn Hammām ashShaibānī (T, Jsh).

P. 494, l. 17. Read "Umar".

P. 499, l. 18. R adds "being a verbal n." to the preventives of inflection in order to account for the uninflectedness of those verbal ns. which resemble the aor. (see p. 653, l. 7—p. 654, l. 1).

P. 501, ll. 18-20. That the verbal ns. are uninfl. is not disputed, though three different reasons are given at pp. 653-654 for their being so. The validity of the reason here given, vid. that they resemble the p. in not being impressible by the op., is based upon the theory that they have no place in inflection, i.e. do not occupy the place of a n. in any case, which is disputed (see p. 658).

P. 503, l. 7. Some of the BB, according to R (see p. 743, l. 19)—l. 16. Abū Ṣakhr 'Abd Allāh Ibn Sālim asSahmī alHudhailī, an Ishāmī poet of the Umawī dynasty (AKB). The Banū Sahm were his tribe (T)—l. 19. By Mīrbāl Ibn Jahm alMadhḥijī (MN, FA, Jsh) or Mubashshir Ibn AlHudhail alFazārī (MN).

P. 506, l. 2. On the name "met." see p. 823, ll. 9-10.

P. 508, l. 4. ^أخَلِيلِي [with reduplication (Jsh) of the final ^أي] is the [perj. masc.] pl. [of ^أخَلِيل (EC)] pre. to the ^أي of the 1st per. sing. (EC, Jah).

P. 510, l. 1. The 2nd hemistich is given in IY. 10 and 84 as وَهَذَا أَتَى مِنْ دُونِهَا الَّذِي وَالْبَعْدُ

And Hind, farness and distance have come in front of her, i.e., between me and her—l. 15. Or, as is said, his son Sawāda Ibn ‘Adī (AKB).

P. 517, l. 20. ^عا^طب^ا is abbreviated (MN, FA, N), by poetic license (FA, N), because its o. f. is ^عا^طب^ا with the Hamza (MN).

P. 518, l. 8. For “XXVIII” and “611” read “XXVII” and “612”.

P. 521, l. 8. ^حم^دا^حم^د Humaid or ^حم^دا^حم^د praiseworthy. The verse is attributed to Humaid Ibn Huraith Ibn Baḥdal [alKalbī (IAth)], of the Banū Kalb Ibn Wabra, whose pedigree reaches to Kuḍā’a. Humaid was an Islāmi poet; and Maisūn Bint Baḥdal, the mother of Yazīd Ibn Mu‘āwiya, was his paternal aunt (AKB). ^حم^دا^حم^د (IY. 414).

P. 523, l. 3. I.e. ^قب^ها^قم^ه. The verse is by AlMukhallab alHilālī, of whose pedigree and history I know nothing; and has been plagiarized by Al‘Ujair asSalūlī alHilālī, a freedman of the Banū Hilāl, whose name was ‘Umair Ibn ‘Abd Allāh, a minor Islāmi poet of the Umawī dynasty. Sgh says “The piece is Lāmīya; but ^نج^ب occurs in the Book of S in place of ^ذل^و tractable, and the GG have followed him in the mistranscription” (AKB)—l. 7. Hamdān is a tribe of AlYaman (AKB).

P. 531, ll. 17-18. An elegant, excellent poet of the Umawī dynasty (AKB). ‘Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān asked him for his daughter in marriage for one of his sons (Mb). The Khalīfa ‘Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān [alKurashī alUmawī, b. 26 (ITB), a. 65 (MDh), d. 86 (MDh, ITB). He was proclaimed Khalīfa in succession to his father Marwān Ibn AlḤakam after ‘Abd Allāh Ibn AzZubair had laid claim to the Khilāfa; and his undisputed Khilāfa, i. e. after the slaughter of ‘Abd Allāh Ibn AzZubair, was from the middle of 73 (ITB). The Khalīfa Marwān Ibn AlḤakam alKurashī alUmawī, [nephew and (Nw, ITB) private (TKh)] secretary of 'Uthmān [Ibn 'Affān (Nw, ITB), b. 2, (Nw), α 64 (ITB, TKH)], d. 65 (Nw, ITB, TKH). Ibn AzZubair was proclaimed Khalīfa (AGh, Is, TKh) at Makka (TKh) in 64 (Is, TKh) in the days of Yazid Ibn Mu'āwiya (TKh), [or] after the death of Yazid (AGh, Is) Ibn Mu'āwiya (Is); or in 64 or 65 after the death of Mu'āwiya Ibn Yazid (TKh).

P. 534, l. 4. ^{وَالشَّرَّ} إِيَّائِي as an ex. of detachment caused by suppression of the op. is appropriate only when the op. is supplied before the pron.; for, when the op. is supplied after the pron., it is an ex. of detachment caused by precedence of the pron. before its op. (see l. 19 and the Note on p. 196, l. 18).

P. 535, l. 3. Abū Bakr aṣṢiddīq said to the Apostle of God (God bless him and give him peace!) "Teach me a supplication wherewith I may supplicate [God] in my prayer." He said, Say ^{اللَّهُمَّ} اِنِّى ظَلَمْتُ

نَفْسِي ظُلْمًا كَثِيرًا وَلَا يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ فَاعْفِرْ لِي مَغْفِرَةً مِنْ عِنْدِكَ وَأَرْحَمْنِي إِنَّكَ أَنْتَ الْغَفُورُ الرَّحِيمُ

O God, verily I have done much wrong against mine own soul; and not (any) forgiveth sins but Thou. Wherefore forgive Thou me of Thy grace, and have mercy upon me. Verily Thou, Thou art the very forgiving, the Merciful (SB. I. 214)—l. 9.

Properly ^{أَنْفُسَنَا} [446] (AKB)—l. 10. He was named Dhu-l-Iṣba' because a serpent bit his finger (ID, AKB), so that it withered away. He is said to have lived 270 years; and AHm says that he lived 300 years. And he was one of the judges of the Arabs in heathenism (AKB). The question of 'Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān "Who is he?" in Tr. II. 815 and IATH. IV. 270 (see the Note on p. 44, l. 11), to which Ma'bad Ibn Khālid alJadālī answered "He is Dhu-l-Iṣba'", did not refer to the man put forward by 'Adwān as their spokesman with the Khalīfa, but to the author of the verses quoted by 'Abd AlMalik, as is clear from the var. "Who says this?" in Tr. II. 815, note k, and AKB, II. 409. Cf.

KA. III. 3—l. 11. Bk says (AKB), Qurra is a place in the countries of the Banu-lḤārith (Bk, AKB) Ibn Ka'b (AKB).

P. 542, l. 19. A heathen [poet (FA, AKB)], lamenting his brother Uṭait, and complaining of two companions of his, who were harassing him, said to be his two nephews Mudrik and Murra (MN, FA, AKB): so says Al'Aini (AKB).

P. 543, ll. 19—20. Attributed by the commentators of the Book of S to 'Umar Ibn Abi Rabi'a; but by [AFI,] the author of the KA, who is followed by [Jh,] the author of the Ṣiḥāb, to Al'Arji (AKB)—ll. 23-24. The author of عَدَدْتُ قَوْمِي أَلْع is [not Ibn Duraid, but] Ru'ba (MN, FA, EC, AKB) Ibn Al'Ajjaj (MN).

P. 544, l. 4. He said that of a man who was mentioned to him as intending to do him harm (IY).

P. 545, l. 10. The Persian ed. of the ML (p. 253, l. 16) has ^{لَتَسْكُنَ}لَتَسْكُنَ; but the 2 Egyptian eds., the DM (vol. II., p. 279) and Amr (vol. II., p. 223), have the form given in the text.

P. 546, ll. 20-22. These are the annullers of inchoation [24] The vs. of app. are omitted, because their pred. is an aor. v. [459]; and the generic neg. ى, because its sub. and pred. are indet. [100].

P. 549, ll. 13-14. Muḥammad Ibn Marwān [Ibn AlḤakam, brother of the Khalifa 'Abd AlMalik (Iath, ITB)], one of the Readers of AlMadīna, [d. 101 (Iath) or 102 (ITB)]. IAl says "Ibn Marwān wraps himself up in his solecism", i.e. by making the distinctive occur between the d. s. and s. s. (R)—l. 15. Zaid Ibn 'Alī [Zain al'Ābidīn (ITB)] Ibn alḤusain Ibn 'Alī Ibn Abī Ṭālib alḤāshimī [alMadani, d. 80 (IHjr)], k. [121 (IKb, MDh, MAB, TKb), 122 (IKb, MDh, Iath, MAB, IHjr, ITB), or] 123 at the age of [42 (MAB) or] 44 (FW).

P. 555, l. 10. Ibn Abi-l'Āṣ athThakafī alBaṣrī, the celebrated poet, reproving his cousin 'Abd ArRaḥmān Ibn 'Uthmān Ibn Abi-l'Āṣ (AKB).

P. 556, l. 2. D. 84 (Is, IHjr, AKB): d. 89 (ITB).

P. 557, l. 9. By Ṣakhr Ibn AlJa'd alMuḥārībī alKhudrī, an elegant poet contemporary with the Umayyad and 'Abbāsi dynasties (KA). The forms العبد or العبدى and الحضرى in the MN. II. 227, FA. 95, SM. 197, and Jsh, seem to be erroneous—l. 10. Ṣakhr Ibn AlJa'd was enamoured of Ka's, daughter of Bujair Ibn Jundab (KA); not, as Lane supposes (p. 2049, col. 1), "of El-Kelḥabeh El-'Oranee".

P. 559, l. 5. Shadan is a place in AlYaman (Bk).

P. 561, l. 7. Zaid Ibn Muḥalhil atṬā'i anNabḥānī, known as Zaid AlKhail, who came to the Prophet with the embassy from Ṭayyi in the year 9, and was named by the Prophet Zaid AlKhair. He was a good poet. On his departure from the Prophet, he was seized with fever; and, when he reached his family, he died; but some say that he died at the end of the Khilāfa of 'Umar (AGh)—l. 16. Kais is the father of a tribe of Muḍar (AKB, J) called Kais 'Ailān, a prothetic comp., [meaning The Kais of 'Ailān] (AKB)—l. 19. Ḥumaid Ibn Mālik.....Ibn Zaid Manāt Ibn Tamīm, an Islāmi poet of the Umayyad dynasty, contemporary with AlḤajjāj. He was named AlArkāṭ [The spotted or speckled] because of some marks that were on his face (AKB). Jh says the verse is by Ḥumaid (MN, FA); but IY says (MN, FA, AKB) it is by Abū Baḥdala (IY, MN, FA, AKB), whom I do not know (AKB).

P. 562, l. l. See an ex. of the 2nd prevailing over the 3rd in p. 125, ll. 14-16.

P. 575, l. 3. Ka'b Ibn Sa'd alGhanawī, an Islāmi poet, and apparently a Follower (AKB)—l. 19. Lane's assertion that هـ is not prefixed to the du. of ذَاكَ (p. 947, col. 3) is refuted by what IY says here; and his assertion that هـ is not prefixed to أُولَئِكَ (p. 947, col. 3), and that one does not say هُوَ لَيْسَ or the like (p. 86, col. 3), is refuted by the verse at l. 15 and by Al'Arjī's verse at p. 564, where the dim. of هُوَ لَيْسَ appears.

P. 576, ll. 12-14. هُنَا has 3 dial. vars., هُنَا, هُنَا, and هُنَا (IY. 337). .. They are all of one sense, vid. demonstration of place; but they differ in nearness and distance, the near places being demonstrated by هُنَا with Damm, and the distant by the 2 others (MN, FA)—l. 21. Read اَرَجَانَهَا and "on its," the pron. referring to the هُنَا trackless waste mentioned in the verse preceding.

P. 580, l. 6. This verse is cited by Skr in the DH as (AKB) by a man of Hudhail (DH, AKB). It belongs to the same poem as the lines cited in vol. II, p. 717, ll. 11-12 and in the Note thereon at p. 29A. Numerous vars. of this verse and of the verses cited in p. 579, ll. 16-17 and p. 580, l. 3 are given in the AKB. Read تَزْبِي—l. 10. The Lucknow ed. of the R gives لَا تُعَوِّدُ; but the Teheran ed. has لَا تُعَوِّدُ is not charmed, which seems more appropriate. The Delhi ed. gives no vowels—ll. 23-24. According to R, اِي is made det. by its expressed or constructive prefixion to a det., not by its conj. (p. 586, ll. 13-15).

P. 582, l. 13. Al'Aini says (AKB) it is by AlAkhtal (MN, FA, AKB); but I have searched diligently through his Dīwān without finding it (AKB). This poet was given the cognomen of AlAkhtal because of the bigness of his ears (MN, FA): [but various other reasons are stated in the KA and AKB]. He was a Christian (KA, FA), of the people of AlḤīra (KA); and he belongs to the 1st class of Islāmi poets (KA, MN, FA). He lived a long life until he went to Hell-fire (AKB)—l. 1. The saying of the Banū 'Ukail or Hudhail جَاءَ اللَّذْبُونَ قَامُوا They that stood came (BS).

P. 583, l. 2. Its author is Ru'ba Ibn Al'Ajjaj: but is said by AZ and IAr to be a heathen man of the Banū 'Ukail; though they differ about his name, which AZ says is Abū Ḥarb AlA'lam, while IAr says something else. And Sgh says that the author is Lailā alAkhyaliya (MN).

P. 583, l. 20. مَكَانٌ with Tanwīn from regard to its being a name of a مَكَان place (AKB). Either form suits the metre—ll. The verse is by Umayya Ibn AlAskar, or, as is said by [ID and] the author of the KA, Ibn Ḥurthān Ibn AlĀskar [or AlAshkar (AGh, Is)], alKinānī [al-Laithi alJunda'i (AGh, Is)], a converted poet (AKB).

P. 584, l. 1. 'Ukāz, Majanna, and Dhu-l-Majāz were markets for Makka in the time of heathenism. 'Ukāz is a level plain. AU says (Bk), 'Ukāz is between Nakhla and Aṭṭā'if (Bk, ZJ, MI), one night's journey from Aṭṭā'if and 3 from Makka (MI). It was taken as a market 15 years after [the year of] the Elephant, [in which the Apostle of God was born (SR, Tr, LM),] and was abandoned for ever in the year 129 (Bk). The market of 'Ukāz used to open on [the morning of (Bk)] the 1st of Dhu-l-Ḳi'da, and last 20 days (Bk, ZJ)—U. By a man of [the Banū (MN, FA)] Sulaim (MN, FA, EC).

P. 585, l. 20. Coptic by origin, freedman of the family of AzZubair Ibn Al'Awwām, b. 115 [or 120 (HH)], d. 197 (Syt).

P. 587, l. 9. Kais Ibn Jirwa (ID, T, AKB), a heathen poet (AKB), named 'Āriḳ because of this verse (T, AKB)—l. 15. An Islāmi poet of the Marwāni dynasty (AKB)—l. 20. Whence

قَوْلًا لِهَذَا الْمَرْءِ نَوَجَّادٌ سَاعِيًا * هَلَمْ لَأَنْ الْمَشْرِفِي الْفَرَّائِضِ

(R), by Kawwāl atṬṭā'i (T, AKB), an Islāmi poet, who lived at the end of the Umawī, and reached the 'Abbāsi dynasty, Say ye two to this man, who has come collecting the poor-rate, Come on; for verily the sword (called الْمَشْرِفِي in relation to the Mashārif, which were certain towns where swords used to be forged) is with us instead of the camels fit to be taken in payment of the poor-rate (AKB). The Mashārif were near Ḥaurān: Buṣrā was one of them (MI).

P. 588, ll. 18-19. Then he [the Fazāri mentioned in the story told in the Note to p. 845, l. 18] said to one of them, whose name was Mirḳama "Eat of it"; but he refused. Then he smote him, and cut off his head. Then said the other "Mirḳama has perished!". Then said the Fazāri أَنْتَ إِنْ لَمْ تَلْعَمَهُ And thou if thou swallow it not! IHb says "He meant ^{لَقِمَهَا} ^{أَنْ لَمْ تَلَقِمَهَا}; but, having discarded the ^{لَمْ}, he threw the Fatha on the ^م before the ^س, as they said ^{بِهَ رَجَالٍ دَائِي} ^{وَيْلَمُ الْخَبْرَةَ دَائِي} Woe to al-Hira and whatever men be in it!": he [IHb] supplies ^{هَ} in ^{لَقِمَهَا} as meaning the ^{مُضْغَةٌ} morsel or ^{بُضْعَةٌ} piece; otherwise [he would not supply it, because] there is no fem. in the preceding speech that the ^{هَ} may relate to (Md. I. 97-98).

P. 590, l. 2. An Islāmi poet (MN)—l. 10. The capital of Khurāsān (MI).

P. 591, ll. 10-11. And ^{أَلَّذِي عَمَّهُ خَالَهٗ عَمْرٍو} He whose paternal uncle is his maternal uncle is 'Amr (IY). Both these exs. seem to be absurd, because the 2 prons. in each of them relate to ^{أَلَّذِي} by hypothesis.

P. 592, ll. 10-15. This is F's explanation (AKB)—l. 11. By Al-Farazdaq. The true version is وَأَنِّي لَرَامٍ رَمِيَّةٌ قَبْلَ أَلَّتِي * لَعَلِّي دَانٍ شَقَّتْ عَلَى أَنَا

And verily I am shooting a shot, i.e. glance, at her (of whom I say), Perhaps I, even if it, i.e. the shot, be hard for me, shall get her (AKB)—l. 14

^{لَعَلِّي أَزُرُّهَا} Perhaps I shall visit her is an originaive prop., because it does not admit of being pronounced true or false [1]—l. 15. R ought to say ^{أَلَّتِي أَتَوَّلُ فِيهَا لَعَلِّي} her (of whom I say), Perhaps I, even of her destination be far, shall visit her, in order that the rel. of the conjunct may be obtained (AKB).

P. 593, l. 1. Hafs, the companion of Ks, b. about 150, d. [245 (TKh),] 246, or 248 (IHjr).

P. 596, l. 13. I.e. Dīnār Ibn Hilāl (MN, FA, EC), a heathen poet (MN, FA).

P. 599, ll. 6-7. And by the Bdd (MAđ. II. 233, l. 6)—l. 16. Al-Hudhālī (AKB)—l. 20. In full ^{أَهْلَهُ أَكْرَمَ} ^{لَأَنْتَ الْبَيْتَ أَلَّتِي أَكْرَمَ} (AKB).

P. 601, l. 4. Whence

فَإِنْ أَدْعِ اللّٰوَاتِي مِنْ أَنْاسٍ • إِضَاعُوهُنَّ لَا أَدْعِ الَّذِينَ

(R), by AlKumait Ibn Zaid, satirizing Kaḥṭān, i.e. the tribes of AlYā-t man, Then, if I spare to satirize those women (that) are of, i.e. dependen upon, men that have neglected, i.e. have not protected, them, I will not spare those men (that have neglected them), the conj. of اللّٰوَاتِي being مِنْ أَنْاسٍ, i.e. هُنَّ مِنْ أَنْاسٍ, while the conj. of الَّذِينَ is suppressed, because indicated by the previous mention of it [in إِضَاعُوهُنَّ ep. of أَنْاسٍ, which is part of the preceding conj.], the full phrase being الَّذِينَ إِضَاعُوهُنَّ (AKB), and

مِنْ اللّٰوَاتِي دَالَّتِي دَالَّتِي • زَعَمُنَّ أَنِّي كَبُرْتُ لِدَاتِي

(R) From those women (that have asserted etc.), and (from) that woman (that has asserted etc.), and (from) those women that have asserted that I, verily my contemporaries have grown old, the conj. of the first two conjuncts being suppressed, because indicated by the conj. of the third (AKB)—l. 7. Addressing Imra alKais Ibn Hujr alKindī (Jsh)—l. 17. ISh says, دَالَّتِي and دَالَّتِي are made fem. here because الدَّالِيَّة calamity is fem. (AKB). They are [proper (Md)] names for [Great and Small (T)] Calamity, and therefore dispense with the conj., [and are transferred from being conjuncts (T),] as

وَلَقَدْ رَأَيْتُ نَائِي الْعَشِيرَةِ بَيْنَهَا • وَكَفَيْتُ جَانِبَهَا اللَّتْيَا وَالَّتِي

(T, Md), by Sulmī [or Salmā (AKB)] Ibn Rabi'a [asSidi (AKB)], of the Banu-ṣṢid [Ibn Mālik Ibn Bakr Ibn Sa'd (AKB)] Ibn Ḍabba (T, AKB), a heathen poet, And assuredly I have reconciled the discord of the community among themselves, and have sufficed its wrong-doer against the great and small calamity that he has brought upon himself (AKB); but some say that their conj. are suppressed, because indicated by [the circumstances of] the case (T).

P. 605, l. 1. By Al'Uryān Ibn Sahla alJarmi, a heathen poet. This verse is one of three verses cited by AZ in his Nawādir; but his version is not like that of the majority (AKB). The other two verses are the 1st and 4th of the poem by Al'Uryān cited at p. 712 of the T and p. 181 of the Calcutta ed. of the Ḥamāsa, where the unmeaning words لَسَهْلَةٌ وَذَمَّ after بَنَ سَهْلَةَ الْجَرَمِيِّ seem to be a mistranscription for بَنَ سَهْلَةَ الْجَرَمِيِّ. This verse, which is the 3rd in AZ's version, is not given in either ed. of the Ḥamāsa—l. 5. F says that الَّذِي here may signify (1) the Ka'ba, being made masc. as meaning الْبَيْتُ the House, in which case the [acc.] pron. in حَجَّ is suppressed, because this v. is trans., as is shown by the text فَمَنْ حَجَّ الْبَيْتَ أَوْ اعْتَمَرَ II. 153. Then whoso performeth the pilgrimage to the House, or visiteth it; and the sense is الَّذِي حَجَّهُ حَاتِمٌ that (which) Ḥātim has performed the pilgrimage to: (2) God, in which case the full phrase is الَّذِي حَجَّ لَهُ حَاتِمٌ Him (that) Ḥātim has performed the pilgrimage (for the sake of). But IJ says on

وَرِيقٌ أَنِّي وَمَا حَجَّ الْحَجَّاجُ لَهُ • وَمَا أَهْلٌ بِجَنَّتِي نُخْلَةُ الْحَرَمِ

[by Ziyād Ibn Ḥamal, or Ibn Munkidh, one of the Bal 'Adawiya, of the Banū Tamīm (T)], *Ruwaika, verily I, I swear by that House which the pilgrims perform the pilgrimage to, or by that House (which) the pilgrims perform the pilgrimage to for the sake of obedience to Him, i.e. God, and by the raising of the shout لَبَّيْكَ [115] on the two sides of Nakhla, [a place near the city of the Prophet (11) (T),] by the enterers into the Sacred territory, the 2nd مَا being infinitival, that, when the 1st مَا is held to be an expression for the House, the s in لَهُ may denote (1) the House, لَهُ being i.q. إِلَيْهِ, as in XCIX. 5. [504], i.e. إِلَيْهَا, [as though he said أَنَسِمُ إِلَيْهَا]; (2) God, i.e. بِالْبَيْتِ الَّذِي حَجَّ إِلَيْهِ الْحَجَّاجُ وَبِأَهْلِ الْحَرَمِ (T)]; (2) God, i.e. [حَجَّهُ]. Thus it is known that R's language is [derived from] one of F's 2 explanations, الَّذِي being con-* strued to signify God (AKB). But, if so, R would supply ^{لُ} instead of ^{لِ} : and I think that he construes ^{إِلَى} to signify the House, but supplies ^{إِلَيْهِ} in accordance with the construction ^{حَجَّ إِلَى الْبَيْتِ} allowed by IJ and T—l. l. Ya'sur or A'sur was father of a tribe, that Bāhila belonged to (MN). See p. 27A.

P. 616, l. 22. The Banū Khalaf were AzZibriḳān's kinsfolk, Khalaf being his great-grandfather, because he was AzZibriḳān Ibn Badr Ibn Imra alḲais Ibn Khalaf.....Ibn Sa'd Ibn Zaid Manāt Ibn Tamīm (AKB).

P. 617, l. 10. Hudba was an elegant superior poet from the desert of AlHijāz (AKB). He had killed Ziyāda Ibn Zaid al'Udhri; and, when he was carried to Mu'āwiya, 'Abd ArRaḥmān, brother of Ziyāda Ibn Zaid, advanced with him, and prosecuted him. Then said Mu'āwiya to him, "What sayest thou?" He said "Likest thou that the answer be in poetry or prose?" He said "Nay, in poetry; for verily it is pleasanter." Then said Hudba (Mb). Here follow some verses, of which this is one.

P. 618, l. 6. Praising AlJarrah Ibn 'Abd Allāh [alḤakamī (IAth, ITB)], Governor of Khurāsān. He was Commander of AlBaṣra, and afterwards became Governor of Armenia. He penetrated into the lands of the Khazar, and was martyred there (Dw) in 112 (IAth, ITB)—ll. 14-15. Ḳaṣīr Ibn Sa'd (ID, IAth, KF) of Lakhm (ID, IAth) Ibn 'Adī (ID). See Md. II. 123 and P. II. 450.

P. 621, l. 18. Māwiya is one of the names of women, among them Māwiya, the wife of Ḥatīm of Tayyi; and this verse is similar to his poetry, but I have not known it attributed to him (AKB). It is not in his Dīwān as given in the FDw.

P. 622, l. 18. Ḥatīm Ibn 'Abd Allāh aṭṬa'i, celebrated for his munificence, and one of the poets of heathenism (AKB).

P. 623, l. 16. And ^{فِي رَمَادٍ} is transmitted (ML). This verse is part of a Dālīya ode by Ḥassān Ibn Thābit (MN, AKB) al Anṣarī (MN) aṣṢalābī: but its rhyme has been perverted by IJ, who transmiest فِي دَمَانٍ; and he is followed by many, among them IHsh in the ML, who says "And دَمَان is like دَمَان, in measure and meaning" (AKB)—l. 17. Ibn Dirār, cousin and contemporary of Zaid alFawāris Ibn Ḥusain Ibn Dirār adḌabbī (T. 279), who was a heathen (AKB)—l. 18. Ath says that Ḥassān composed this poem upon Rufai' Ibn Ṣāifī Ibn 'Abid, who was killed as an unbeliever on the day of Badr (AKB) in the year 2 (Tr, LM, TKh)—l. 23. The poets called AlKumait are 3 of the Banū Asad Ibn Khuzaima, (1) AlKumait alAkbar Ibn Tha'laba..... Ibn Jahwān Ibn Faḳ'as [Ibn Ṭarf.....Ibn AlḤārith Ibn Tha'laba Ibn Dūdān Ibn Asad Ibn Khuzaima alAsadī, a Convert, says AU, as AlMarzubānī mentions (Is)]; (2) AlKumait Ibn Ma'rūf Ibn AlKumait alAkbar [alFaḳ'asī, a Convert, says AlMarzubānī (Is)]; (3) AlKumait Ibn Zaid.....Ibn Sa'd Ibn Tha'laba Ibn Dūdān Ibn Asad (AKB), a poet of the Umawī dynasty, d. 122 (Is) [or] 126 (ITB). The verses at p. 616 of vol. II. and pp. 297 and 367 of this vol. are all from one ode by AlKumait Ibn Zaid alAsadī (MN. III. 111); and the verse at p. 112 of this vol. is by the same poet (MN. I. 534): while the verses at pp. 623 and 712 of vol. II. are by AlKumait Ibn Ma'rūf (MN. IV. 109, 320, Jsh); though IAr says that the last verse is by AlKumait Ibn Tha'laba alFaḳ'asī (MN. IV. 321).

P. 624, l. 20. D. [104 (Nw),] 105 (IKb, IATH, IKhn, Nw, TH), 106 (IKhn, Nw, TH), 107 (IKhn, Nw, TH, IHjr, TKh), 108 (ITB), or 115 (IKhn), at the age of 80 (IKb, IKhn) or 84 (IKhn)—l. 23. D. 156 (IHjr). Not [to be confounded with 'Isā Ibn 'Umar] athThaḳāfi, the Baḡrī Grammarian, who also is one of the leading Readers (DM).

P. 625, l. 3. The last word is الْقَتْلُ ^{الْقَتْلُ} speech, which Dm has mis-spelt ^{الْقَتْلُ} slaughter. The verse is from an ode composed by Ka'b Ibn Malik, poet of the Apostle of God, in answer to 2 pieces that Ibn AzZibā'rā and 'Amr Ibn Al'Āṣ had glorified themselves with on the day of Uḥud (AKB) in the year 3 (Tr, IATH, LM). Ka'b Ibn Malik [aṣṢaḥābī (Nw)] alAnṣārī (Agh, Nw, AKB) alKhazrajī asSalamī (AGh, Nw), of the Banū Salima (AGh) Ibn Sa'd (IHb, Dh) Ibn 'Alī.....Ibn AlKhazraj (IHb), one of the poets of the Apostle of God (AGh, AKB), d. 50 or 53 (Nw, AKB) at the age of 77 (AKB). The Prophet's poets were Ḥassān Ibn Thābit, Ka'b Ibn Malīk, and 'Abd Allāh Ibn Rawāḥa (AGh). See SR, pp. 623-625 for the ode. Read ^{لَقِيلُ}—l. 5-6. For "then.....(DM)" read "then for what does speech abound? (AKB)"—l. 12. Insert "knew" before "that"—l. 13. Or conjunct, knew that which my Lord hath forgiven me (K, B). The ب depends upon ^{عَفُوٌّ} if ^{مَا} be interrog., and upon ^{يَعْلَمُونَ} if ^{مَا} be ininitival or conjunct (B).

P. 629, l. 1. Suwaid Ibn Abi Kāhil [^{Uṭaif} or (Is, AKB)] Shabīb alYashkurī, a converted poet (KA, Is, AKB), who lived some time in heathenism, and [for 60 years after the Hijra (AKB)] in AlIslām until the time of AlḤajjāj (Is, AKB) : so in the Is (AKB).

P. 631, l. 5. AlḲurashī alAsadī (Nw, Is) alMadanī aṣṢaḥābī (Nw), k. [treacherously (Is)] on the day of the Camel, in the year 36, at the age of (IKb, Nw, Is) 60 (IKb), 64 (IKb, Nw), 66, or 67 (Nw, Is), by ['Amr (Is)] Ibn Jurmūz (IKb, Is), a man of the Banū Tamīm (Is).

P. 636, l. 2. ^{جُرْزُ} may be in the gen., governed by ^ب, understood after ^{بُلْ}; or in the acc., coupled to ^{دَارًا} (AAz). On the form ^{الْحَجَبَتِ} see § 646.

P. 637, l. 2. Shumair, so spelt by AZ, or Sumair, so spelt by Akh and Sgh, Ibn AlḤārith aḍḌabbī, a heathen poet, author of the verse ^{لُ} ^{أَيْبَكَ خَيْرُ الْعِ} [153] (AKB)—l. 3. This is one of 4 verses transmitted by AZ, and attributed by him to Shumair Ibn AlḤārith aḍḌabbī, or, as Akh says, Sumair (AKB). [The next verse is cited in vol. II, p. 296.] It is also transmitted, with the version ^{عَمَّا صَبَاحًا} May your life be pleasant at morn!, as part of a poem rhyming in ح; and is then attributed [without dispute (N)] to Jidh' Ibn Sinān alḠhassānī (N, AKB), a heathen poet (AKB). The poem rhyming in م is also attributed to Ta'abbāṭa Sharra (N).

P. 639, ll. 8-9. See the 2nd explanation in the Note on p. 169, l. 17, where the qualified, when treated as compounded with the qual. into one n., is considered to be uninf. upon Fath, not inf. in the acc., as R here says.

P. 640, l. 7. The disconnection is produced by the repetition of ^أن, which makes a fresh prop.

P. 643, l. 15. Naṣr Ibn Sayyār, governor of Khurāsān (Jsh).

P. 644, l. 13. R supplies a post. n. in imitation (see p. 647, l. 21).

P. 645, l. 21. By Ghassān Ibn 'Ula (MN, FA, J, Jsh) Ibn Murra (MN, Jsh) Ibn 'Ubād (MN). Murra Ibn 'Ubād was of Kais Ibn Tha'labā (IKb). [There was a poet named] Ghassān Ibn Wa'la, one of the Banū Murra Ibn 'Ubād (T). [The name of] the author of this verse has not reached me: IAmḡ says "AASh transmits it with Damm of ^{أش}ا" "on the authority of Ghassān, who is one of those on whose authority "the classical language is derived from the Arabs"; so that Ghassān is the author of the verse: but IHsh asserts that it is by a man of Ghassān; and God knows best! (AKB).

P. 646, l. 3. Hārūn Ibn Mūsā [al'Azdi al'Ataki, their freedman (IHjr), a Jew, who afterwards become a Muslim (IKb, NA),] al'A'war [the one-eyed], the [Baṣrī Grammarian and (NA, IHjr)] Reader (IKb, NA, IHjr). He transmitted readings from IIU (IKhn). The Follower (Nw, ITB) Ṭalḥa Ibn Muṣarrif [al'Yāmi (Nw, IHjr), orallyāmi (Nw), alHamdāni (Nw, ITB)], the Kufī Reader, d. [110 (Nw),] 112 (IKb, Nw, IHjr, ITB), or 113 (Nw). Yām or Iyām is a clan of Hamdān (LL)—l. 4. After "alHarra'" insert "the master of Fr." This is MIM.

P. 651, l. 1. This is one of the 50 verses of S whose authors are not known: but is asserted by Al'Aini, who is followed by Syt in the SM, to be part of an ode by AlMuthaḥḥib al'Abdi; whereas there is no foundation for this (AKB). It is by Suḥaim Ibn Wathīl arRīyāḥī (MN, FA, N), from the same ode as ^{أنا ابن جُلّ النخ} [149] (N)—l. 2. An ancient heathen poet, contemporary with 'Amr Ibn Hind: so says IKb

(AKB). His name, [as IKb says, was Miḥṣan Ibn Tha'labā ; but, as Iamb says (AKB),] was 'Ā'idh Ibn Miḥṣan (ID, MN, Nw, AKB) Ibn Tha'labā (MN, AKB).

P. 652, l. 10. The ps. are superfluous to the attribution—l. 19. The 'Aḳīḳ [pl. A'īḳḳa (KF)] is every channel [of water (MI)] that [the water of (KF)] the torrent has cloven (MI, KF) in the earth, and then enlarged and widened. The lands of the Arabs contain many A'īḳḳa ; and the mention of the 'Aḳīḳ in poetry is frequent (MI).

P. 653, l. 3. By Laḳīṭ Ibn Zurāra (AKB), l. on the day of Jabala (SR, ID).

P. 654, l. 1. See p. 659, l. 15.

P. 655, ll. 4-6. This is the opinion of IH (p. 652, ll. 2-3) and R (ll. 8-9 below).

P. 656, l. 13. Read "197".

P. 657, l. 10. ^{فَطَحَلْ} (Th, IY, KF, MAd) or ^{فَطَحَلْ} (Th, KF) or ^{فَطَحَلْ} (MAd).

P. 660, ll. 3-4. This is one of 7 verses by 'Antara, the author of the Mu'allaka [see Ahl. 35] ; and is also transmitted as by Khuzaz Ibn Laudhān asSadusi. Both of them were heathens. 'Antara addressed these verses to his wife, who ceased not to mention his horses, and to reproach him about a steed which he used to prefer above the rest of his horses, and to which he used to give milk to drink (AKB)—l. 5. ^{الْعَبْدِيقِ} is a name for dates, a proper name (AKB). For "wine" read "dates".

P. 661, l. 3. ^{أَرَصَتْ} (R) : ^{رَصَتْ} (K. 1071). ^{الْقَرَّاطِقِ} pl. of ^{الْقَرَطِقِ} (N), which is Persian (Jk), arabicized (Jk, KF) from ^{كِرْتَه} (KF) : ^{الْقَرَّاطِقِ} (K, R), pl. of ^{قَرَطِق}, like ^{جَعْفَر}, which is a ^{قَطِيفَةٌ}, i. e. garment having a nap. This verse is from an ode by Mu'akkir Ibn Aus alAzdi alBāriḳi, [a heathen poet (ID),] praising the Banū Numair, and mentioning what they did to the Banū Dhubyān at the Pass of Jabala, where a battle took place between the Banū Dhubyān and the Banū 'Āmir, in which the Banū 'Āmir were victorious. Numair was the progenitor of a tribe of Ẕais, vid. Numair Ibn 'Āmir Ibn Ṣaṣa'a; and Mu'aḳḳir was a confederate of theirs. The day of Jabala was 59 years before Islām, and 19 years before the birth of the Prophet, [who began his Mission at the age of 40 (SR, Tr, LM)]: so in the KA by AFI (AKB). Jabala was a [huge (Bk)] red mountain in Najd (Bk, MI) —ll. 4-5. He says Many a Dhubyānī woman was there that bade her sons take plenty of these two things as booty, if they should overcome their enemies; and that because of their neediness, and the fewness of their goods (AKB). MDE, who says that she enjoined her sons to take care of the coats, etc., seems to have misunderstood the verse, probably from not knowing the occasion; but this is strange, because the K has "as though he said, that bade them take them as booty".

P. 662, l. 5. The word "mostly" is a reservation of such as كَذَّبَ.

P. 665, ll. 22—23. Umm Sālim was his beloved (AKB).

P. 668, ll. Delete the full stop after "Th".

P. 670, l. 10. Lane (p. 1350, col. 1), citing the KF as his authority, says "The word سُرْعَان is used as a simple enunciative [placed before "its inchoative], and also as an enunciative denoting wonder": but this rendering of the KF involves serious errors, because (1) it gives سُرْعَان a place in inflection, vid. that of a nom. as an enunc., whereas the majority of GG hold that the verbal n. has no place in inflection; while those who give it the place of a nom. make it an inch., not an enunc. (p. 658 above); (2) if it were an enunc., it would not be placed before its inch., because, since, like other verbal ns., it governs an ag. (p. 661), the post-pos. inch. would be taken for an ag.; so that سُرْعَانُ ذَا, like سُرْعَانُ زَيْد, would not be allowable as enunc. and inch. (p. 111). The words of the KF are سُرْعَانُ يَسْتَعْمَلُ خَبْرًا مَقْضًا وَخَبْرًا فِيهِ and as an enunciation containing the sense of wonder, [i. e. How quick is!]:

مَعْنَى التَّعَجُّبِ And سُرْعَان is used as a simple enunciation, [i. e. Quick is];
خَبْرًا meaning enunciation, the correl. of command; not enunc., the correl.
of inoḥ.

P. 672, l. 19. I. e. AlFaḍl Ibn Ḳudāma (ID, KA, SM, AKB), who contended with Al'Ajjāj in reciting poetry of the Rajaz metre, and was contemporary with [the Khalifa (Nw, ITB)] Hishām Ibn 'Abd AlMalik (AKB) alḲurashī alUmawī adDimashqī (ITB), b. 72 (Nw), a. 105, d.
125 (Nw, ITB).

P. 673, l. 2. By Zaid Ibn 'Amr Ibn Nufail alḲurashī al'Adawī, d.
5 years before the Mission: but attributed to his son Sa'd Ibn Zaid [aṣṢaḥābī (Nw)], d. 50 or 51 or 52, at the age of 70 and odd, or of 73, years; and to Nubaih Ibn AlḤajjāj. Nubaih and his brother Munabbih were chiefs [of the Banū Sahm (ID)] of Ḳuraish; and were killed, [with Al'Āṣ son of Munabbih (SR),] on the day of Badr as unbelievers (AKB)
—l. 20. The Khalifa Sulaimān Ibn 'Abd AlMalik [alUmawī (ITB), b. 60 (FW, TKh)], a. 96, d. 99 (MDh, FW, ITB, TKh) at the age of [39 (MDh),] 45 (MDh, ITB), or 53 (MDh).

P. 674, ll. 6-7. The verbal and inf. ns. may both be said to act as substitutes for the v.; but with the latter the v. is, and with the former it is not, supplied—l. 11. Of Khunā'a Ibn Sa'd Ibn Hudhail (DH)—l.
15. 'Alī Ibn Ma'ūd alAzdī [alGhassānī (Tr, Iāth)] was brother of 'Abd Manāt Ibn Kināna on the side of his mother [Fukaiha Bint Hanī (Tr, Iāth)]; and, when 'Abd Manāt died, he brought up 'Abd Manāt's children, whose origin was therefore traced to him (DH), so that the Banū 'Abd Manāt were called Banū 'Alī (Tr, Iāth).

P. 675, l. 3. سِر Journey thou (R)—l. 5. سِر Journey ye (R)—ll.

17-19. It is sometimes pre. to the ag., as رَوَيْدَكَ زَيْدًا [161, 187, 560].

P. 676, l. 6. يَغِبُّ (T): يَغِبُّ (Md). يَغِبُّ is in the ind., the prop.
being supposed to be anacoluthic and in ceptvei [423], an answer to an assumed question "Why should I leave it alone?" [1]; and يُغَبِّ is in the apoc., as correl. of the command, there being no ف [421]. Lane (p. 2221, col. 2) apparently considers يُغَبِّ to be in the subj.: for he says "حَتَّى being understood, according to the explanation of Meyd", i. e. Md; while the apoc. does not occur after حَتَّى [414]. But Md's words أَيُّ دَعَا حَتَّى تَأْتِي عَلَيْهِ أَيَّامٌ فَتَنْظُرُ كَيْفَ خَاتَمَتَهُ أَيْحَسَدُ أَمْ يَذُمَّ i. e. Leave it alone until etc. (see the next Note) are an explanation of the sense, not of the syntax; for the subj. is not governed by حَتَّى [410], but by أَنْ necessarily understood after it [411, 413, 501]; while the subj. governed by أَنْ understood after حَتَّى understood is a thing unheard of. Moreover, even with the ف, the subj. does not occur in the correl. of the requisitive verbal n. [187, 411, 421]: and, without the ف, the subj. is impossible after a requisitive v. [420], such instances as مَرَّةً غَبَّ عِنْدَنَا هَـ being anomalous, not to be taken as precedents [418. A]; and much more then after a requisitive verbal n.—l. 7. غَبَّ عِنْدَنَا هَـ He remained a night with us, i. q. بَلَّتْ, like أَغَبَّ; and hence their saying رَوَيْدُ الشَّعْرِ يُغَبِّ (KF), i. e. Leave it alone until some days pass over it, so that thou mayst see how its end will be, whether it will be praised or blamed: or it may mean Leave the poetry alone: it will keep back from the people, from غَبَّتِ الْحُمَّى The fever intermitted, when it keeps back for a day, i. e. Repeat not thy poetry to them incessantly, so that they weary of it (Md). See Md. I. 253 and P. I. 522.

P. 677, l. 5. يُسْمَعُ (IY. 507): تُسْمَعُ (IY. 511).

P. 680, l. 11. هَـ (DA. 117, D. 140).

P. 683, l. 4. Muzāḥim Ibn AlḤārith, or, as the author of the KA considers more correct, Ibn 'Amr Ibn Murra Ibn AlḤārith, al'Ukailī, of the Banū 'Ukail Ibn Ka'b Ibn Rabi'a Ibn 'Amir Ibn Sa'sa'a, an elegant Islāmi poet of the desert, contemporary with Jarir and AlFarazdaq (AKB)—l. 10. Ḥarmala Ibn AlMundhir, or, as is said (KA, Is), AlMundhir Ibn Ḥarmala, [the former being correct (KA),] aṭṬā'i, a Christian poet [in the beginning of AlIslām (AKB)], who is said to have lived 150 years (KA, Is, AKB), and remained till the days of Mu'āwiya (Is, AKB).

P. 684, l. 3. He was one of the one-eyed men of Kais, who were 5 poets, Tamīm Ibn Ubayy Ibn Muḳbil, ArRā'i, AshShammākh, Ibn Aḥmar, and Ḥumaid Ibn Thaur. ISh says that he was one of the poets of heathenism, and reached AlIslām: and IHjr says in the Is (AKB), AlMarzubānī says that he was a Convert, and died in the time of 'Uthmān after having attained a great age; but AFI says that he was one of the renowned poets of heathenism, and afterwards became a Muslim, and praised the Khalifas that he met, vid. 'Umar and his successors down to 'Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān, which is contrary to the saying of AlMarzubānī, that he died in the time of 'Uthman (Is, AKB): and God knows! (Is)—ll. 16-18. What shows it to be a verbal n. is the saying of Ibn Harma

يَمْشِي الْقُطُوفُ إِذَا غَنَّى الْحَدَادُ بِهِ * مَشَى الْجَوَادُ قَبْلَهُ لِجَلَّةِ النَّجْبِ

[The slow (beast) steps out, when the drivers sing to him, with the step of the fleet (courser): let alone the full-grown, high-bred (camels)!, for they, with singing, go faster than others (AKB)], because here it puts what follows it into the acc.: whereas in the saying of the other, [Abū Zubaid aṭṬā'i anNaṣrānī (AKB),]

مَنْ يَبْلُغُ قَوْمَنَا لَتَأْتِيَنَ إِذْ شَحَطُوا * أَنْ الْغَوَاةَ إِلَيْهِمْ شَيْقُ وَلَعِ
حَمَلٌ أَثْقَالِ أَهْلِ الْوَدِ أَوْنَةً * أَعْطَاهُمُ الْجَهْدَ مَنَى بَلَهُ مَا أَسْعَ

[Who will convey to our distant people, since they have gone far away, that the heart is yearning for them, eagerly longing? (It is) the carrier of the loads of the people of the, i. e., my, love at (many) times. I give them

the utmost effort of me : let alone what I can easily compass /, the rel. being suppressed, i.e. ^{أَسْعَهُ} (AKB)], ^{مَا} may be in the position of an acc., ^{بَلَهُ} containing a pron. in the nom., [i.e. ^{فَدَعَ} ^{الْوَسْعَ} (AKB)], as is shown by ^{بَلَهُ} ^{الْجَلَّةِ} ^{النَّجْبَا} [above]; or in the position of a gen., according to him that recites ^{بَلَهُ} ^{الْأَكْفَ} [below], making ^{بَلَهُ} an inf. n. (IY), i. e. ^{تَرَكَ} ^{زَيْدَ}; or [in the position of a nom. as an inch., ^{بَلَهُ} being i.q. ^{كَيْفَ}, because] the sense may be ^{كَيْفَ} ^{الْوَسْعَ} ^{أَعْطَاهُ} (Then) how is what I can easily compass, (that I give it not)? (AKB)—ll. 18—21. F says, What confirms its being an inf. n. is that AASh transmits ^{مَا} ^{بَلَهُكَ} ^{لَا} ^{تَفْعَلُ} ^{كَذَا} What is the matter with thee that thou dost not such a thing?, i.e. ^{مَا} ^{لَكَ} What ails thee? (AKB). Lane (p. 254, col. 2) has ^{مَا} ^{بَلَهُكَ}; and so apparently has the KF (p. 910), though here the vowel-mark is blurred; and the AKB does not give the vowel: but, since ^{بَلَهُ} is infl. when an inf. n., Damm seems necessary.

P. 685, l. 8. In the year 5 (SR, Tr, LM)—l. 9. See the ode in SR. 705-706—l. 17 and l. 21. Jahn (IY. 513) prints ^{مِنْ} ^{بَلَهُ} and ^{مِنْ} ^{بَلَهُ}; but, ^{بَلَهُ} being uninfl. when i.q. ^{كَيْفَ}, Fatha, as in ^{مِنْ} ^{أَيْنَ}, seems correct; and is said to be so in the tradition (p. 686, ll. 12-14). See, however, the Note on p. 686, ll. 14-15—l. 22. The SB. III. 309, followed by the K and B, gives this tradition in the exposition of the text ^{لَا} ^{تَعْلَمُ} ^{نَفْسٌ} ^{مَا} ^{أَخْفَى} ^{لَهُمْ} ^{مِنْ} ^{قُرَّةِ} ^{أَعْيُنٍ} XXXII. 17. Then not a soul shall know what delight of eyes hath been hidden for them, not of the ^{أُمِّ}; so that Lane is wrong in inserting "[by these three letters]" after "God says" (p. 686, l. 1).

P. 686, l. 3. ^{بَلَهُ} [without ^{مِنْ}] (SB, K, B); [and so in the Ṣaḥīḥ of Muslim:] but ^{مِنْ} ^{بَلَهُ} occurs in most of the MSS of the SB; and IHjr says that, according to Sgh, the MSS of the SB agree upon ^أمِنْ بَلَاءٍ (AKB). ^أأَطْلَعْتُمْ ^أأَطْلَعْتُمْ ^أأَطْلَعْتُمْ ye have been acquainted with (SB): ^أأَطْلَعْتُمْ (K, B, KF); and so in l. 22 below—ll. 7-10. Shm says, In the version with the gen. ^أبَلَاءٍ may be an inf. n., i.q. ^أالتَّركَ, and ^أمِنْ causative, i.e. on account of their abandoning what ye have become acquainted with, vid. sins; and in this case it is not excluded from the preceding [meanings] (Amr, DM). The prep. and gen. have been interpreted by the phrase “It is as though He said, Let alone what ye have become acquainted with; (for it is easy by the side of what has been treasured up for them)”: but this is appropriate only to the exposition of ^أبَلَاءٍ not preceded by ^أمِنْ; whereas, when it is preceded by ^أمِنْ, it is said to be i.q. ^أكَيْفَ, ^أأَجَلٍ [not ^أأَجَلٍ, as in the KF], ^أغَيْرَ or ^أسَوًى, and ^أنُضِّلَ (AKB). The ^أمِنْ in this version, as explained by IHsh, seems to be expl., as in XXXII. 17. (Note on p. 685, l. 22)—ll. 14-15. The Kasra of ^أبَلَاءٍ may be a Kasra of uninflectedness, which is corroborated by what AH says in the Ir, vid. that Fath and Kasr of the * have been heard in ^أبَلَاءٍ (AKB)—l. 15. ^أالنَّصَبَ in DM. I. 168, l. 23 appears to be a mistake for ^أالْفَتْحَ —l. 22. This is a piece of a tradition, vid. “God says, ^أأَعْدَدْتُ لِعِبَادِيَ ^أأَلْفَ [above]” (AKB).

P. 687, l. 8. The poet says

تَرَاكِبًا مِنْ إِبِلٍ تَرَاكِبًا • أَمَا تَرَى الْخَيْلَ لَدَى أَوْرَاكِبَا

(FY) Leave them, namely camels (the acc. pron. being expounded by the sp. governed in the gen. by the expl. ^أمِنْ, because the pron. is not preceded by what it relates to), leave them. Dost thou not see the horsemen at their haunches? This was the saying of Tufail Ibn Yazid al-Harithi, a heathen poet and horseman, when Kinda had made a raid upon his camels. He came up with them, saying قَرَاكُمَا أَلَحْ, or, in another version, قَرَاكُمَا مِنْ إِبِلٍ قَرَاكُمَا أَلَحْ Overtake them, etc.; and, bearing down upon the stallion of the camels, hamstrung him, whereupon the camels circled round him: then the Banu-l-Hārith Ibn Ka'b, coming up with Tufail, rescued his herd, while Kinda were put to flight (AKB). الْخَهْلُ (IY): الْمَوْتُ death (Mb. 269, AKB. II. 354). The fighting occurs at the hinder parts of the camels, because the raiders drive them, and urge them on; while the owners hinder them from that (AKB).

P. 688, l. 3. By Abu-nNajm al'Ijlī, an Islāmī Rajiz (AKB).

P. 689, l. 15. R has followed the author of the Ṣiḥāḥ in his relating the verse thus. It is compounded of 2 verses: for the verse containing دُعَيْتُ نَزَالٍ, which is by Zuhair Ibn Abi Sulmā, has for its 1st hemistich

وَلَنْعَمَ حَشْوُ الدَّرْعِ أَنْتَ إِذَا

And assuredly most excellent is the padding, i.e. wearer, of the coat of mail, thou, when; while وَأَنْتَ أَشْجَعُ أَلَحْ is the 1st hemistich of a verse by AlMusayyab Ibn 'Alas, the 2nd hemistich of which is the cry for help occurs, and etc. The latter verse, which is from an ode praising Kais Ibn Ma'dikarib alKindī, who died in heathenism, whence نَصَفَ النَّهَارُ أَلَحْ [80], is attributed by As to AlMusayyab Ibn 'Alas alJumā'i, who was maternal uncle of AlA'shā Maimūn, and was a heathen poet, who did not reach AlIslām; but by AU, ID, and others to his sister's son AlA'shā Maimūn (AKB).

يَقْعُ الصَّرَاخُ وَلَيْعٌ فِي الدَّعْرِ

P. 690, l. 20. An admirable minor heathen poet (AKB).

P. 691, ll. 6-7. AtTaimī, a heathen poet, retorting upon Laḥṣ Ibn Zurāra atTamīmī, who had satirized 'Adī and Taim. He upbraids Lakīṭ with having fled in a battle where his brother Maʿbad Ibn Zurāra had been taken prisoner; and attributes his flight to greediness for food and drink (AKB)—l. 15. See the ode in SR. 723—l. 16. In the year 6 (LM)—ll. 19-20. Because the form of the inf. n. is not that of the d.s., which is really an ep. [76] (IY. 241).

P. 692, ll. 20-21. See Md. IL 164 and P. IL 547, IIL 285.

P. 693, ll. 5-10. See the Note on p. 38, ll. 3-4; and see p. 698, ll. 10-18—l. 21. Read “أَطْرَفَ الْخَ [497]”.

P. 694, l. 15. Mb does not say “used in the non-voc.”; but implies these words by the form of his exs., جَعَارِ يَا قَتَّى and حَلَقِي يَا قَتَّى, the voc. phrase يَا قَتَّى being added to show that جَعَارِ and حَلَقِي are not vocs. themselves.

P. 695, l. 16. Ibn Jaʿfar Ibn Kilāb (SR). He was a heathen (IAth. I. 416).

P. 696, l. 15. The reference is to p. 691, l. 5—l. 16. R cites this hemistich to show that بَدَاكَ is a fem. ep. made to deviate from مُتَبَدِّعَةٌ, i.e. مُتَفَرِّقَةٌ; but this is contrary to the saying of S, who cites it to show that بَدَاكَ is made to deviate from a fem. inf. n., not from an ep.; and بَدَاكَ occurs also as an imp. verbal n.: so that, according to this, بَدَاكَ is of 3 kinds (AKB): but R's explanation obviously fails when بَدَاكَ occurs as a d.s. to a masc., as in the verse of Ḥassān at p. 691; whereas S's explanation, which is adopted by IY, applies in the case of both genders.

P. 697, l. 1. Sajāḥ Bint AlḤārith [Ibn Suwaid (MDh, IAth)] at Tamīmīya, [of the Banū Yarbū' (IKb),] who set up as a Prophetess in the Apostacy, and was followed by some people [of the Banū Tamīm (IKb)]. She afterwards made peace with Musailima, and married him; but, after his death, she returned to Al-Islām. She lived till the Khilāfa of Muʿāwiya (Is)—l. 2. Musailima [Ibn Ḥabīb (SR, IKb) alḤanaḥī (SR) of the Banū ʿAdī Ibn Ḥanīfa Ibn Lujaīm (IKb)], the Impostor of AlYamāma, k. 11 (MDh)—ll. 5-6. See Md. I. 161, P. I. 32c—l. 77 King of AlHira, commonly called AlMundhir Ibn Mā asSamā after his mother Māwiya Bint 'Auf Ibn Jusham, who received the cognomen of Mā asSamā [Water of Heaven] on account of her beauty (AF)—l. 14. See Md. I. 79, P. I. 151—ll. 16-17. Sgh says, Laṣāf is the name of a water in a place between Makka and AlBaṣra belonging to the Banū Yarbū' of the tribe of Tamīm : Bk says (AKB), Laṣāf, says Ath, is a water belonging to the Banū Yarbū' (Bk, AKB).

P. 698, l. 3. By Abū Muhawwish Rabi'a, or Ḥaut, Ibn Ri'āb alAsadi [alFak'asī (Mb)], mentioned by IHjr in the Is among the Converts who reached the Prophet, but did not see him. The poet is satirizing Nahshal Ibn Ḥarri (AKB)—l. 7. The version نَبِيّ, [which occurs in the ID. 137,] is transmitted by Jhand Sgh; and the version نَبِيٍّ by many, among them ISk, Kl, AAMr, and Bk (AKB)—l. 15. The reference is to p. 693, ll. 5-10. See the Note on p. 38, ll. 3-4—l. 18. "like رَقَاشٍ" means "governed by the rules laid down in p. 699, l. 20—p. 701, l. 3."

P. 700, l. 1. The father of Ḥanifa and 'Ijl (MN). See Md. I. 160. But see too p. 27A, l. 18—l. 22. One of the champion poets of heathenism, who was named صَنَاجَةُ الْعَرَبِ The Cymbalist, or Harper, of the Arabs on account of the excellence of his poetry. He reached AlIslām at the end of his life; and set out, during the peace of AlḤudaibiya, [concluded between the Prophet and Kuraish in the year 6, and broken in the year 8 (SR, LM),] on a journey to the Prophet, in whose praise he composed an ode beginning اَلَمْ تَقْتَمِضْ اَلْبَحْرَ [126]: but he was dissuaded by Abū Sufyān at Makka from carrying out his intention; and went away to AlYamāma, where he was thrown by a camel and killed. The ode is an excellent one, numbering 24 verses, most of which are cited by the ML, while not one of them occurs among these Evidentiary Verses. [It is given at length in pp. 255-256 of the SR.] AlA'shā in lexicology is he that sees not by night, but sees by day, [i.e. blind by night]; and this A'shà became [altogether] blind towards the end of his life. The number of poets who were blind by night is 17 (AKB).

P. 701, l. 1. Iram is the name of a tribe; and 'Ād too is a tribe, vid. the people of [the Prophet (IBd)] Hūd (peace be upon him !) (AAs). He was Hūd Ibn 'Abd Allāh.....Ibn 'Ād Ibn 'Auṣ Ibn Iram Ibn Sām Ibn Nūḥ (IKb, Tr, IBd, B on VII. 63); or, as is said (Tr, B) by some genealogists (Tr), Hūd was ['Ābar (Tr)] Ibn Shalakh Ibn Arfakhshad Ibn Sām (Tr, K on VII. 63, B) Ibn Nūḥ (Tr, K), [grand] son of the uncle of the father of 'Ād (B). These two tribes, 'Ād Ibn 'Auṣ Ibn Iram and Thamūd Ibn Jāthar Ibn Iram, were descended from Iram; and they were the indigenous Arabs (Tr). Historians, however, divide the Arabs into 3 kinds, (1) extinct, i. e. the first Arabs, the details of whose histories have gone from us on account of the antiquity of their epoch, vid. 'Ād, Thamūd, Jadīs, Ṭasm, and the 1st Jurhum, who were in the time of 'Ād; whereas the 2nd Jurhum were among the children of Qaṭṭān : (a) Noah carried [in the Ark] those that God had commanded him to carry : and among them were the 3 sons of Noah, vid. Shem, Ham and Japheth, and their wives; and some say that he carried 6 [other] persons also, and some say 80 men [and women (Nw)], one of whom was [the 1st] Jurhum, all of the children of Seth (MAB) : (b) 'Ād son of 'Auṣ Ibn Iram (SR), Thamūd and Jadīs, sons of [Jāthar or] 'Āthar Ibn Iram, and Ṭasm, ['Imlīk or (KF)] 'Imlāk, and Umain, sons of Lāwadh Ibn Sām Ibn Nūḥ, were all of them Arabs (SR, TKh) : so in the SR (TKh) : (2) indigenous, i. e., the Arabs of AlYaman, vid. the Banū Qaṭṭān Ibn 'Ābar Ibn [Shalakh or] Shalāḥ Ibn Arfakhshad Ibn Sām Ibn Nūḥ, whence the Banū Jurhum Ibn Qaṭṭān and the Banū Saba Ibn Yashjub Ibn Ya'rub Ibn Qaṭṭān : (3) insititious, i. e., the children of Ismā'il Ibn Ibrāhīm, who, when Abraham had settled him at Makka, joined the 2nd Jurhum, who were residing in the neighbourhood of Makka, and took a wife from them, [vid. Ra'la (SK KA. XIII. 108, TKh) asSayyida (Tr), daughter of Muḍāḍ Ibn 'Amr alJurhumī (SR, Tr, KA, TKh)]; so that he and his children are called insititious Arabs, because Ishmael's origin and language were Hebrew (MAB), and he [and his children (Iath)] learnt Arabic from Jurhum (Iath, IKhd, TKh) : (a) Kaïdhār Ibn Isma'îl was the father of the [imititious] Arabs (KF); and the tribes of the children of Ishmael branched out from 'Adnān (SR, TKh), who, according to the pedigree preferred, was 'Adnān Ibn Udd Ibn Udad.....Ibn Kaïdhār Ibn Isma'îl (MAB). ^{أزر} Asar [the name of Abraham's father (K)] is most probably [a foreign proper name (B)] upon [the measure of (K)] فاعل, like [تارح (K)], ^{عبر} ʿibr (K, B on VI. 74), ^{عازر} ʿāzar, ^{شائع} shāʿi (K) [or] ^{شائع} shāʿi (B), فائع, and similar names of theirs (K)—l. 2. Khl says (Bk), Wabār was a country [193] belonging to 'Ad (Bk, AAz), between AlYaman and the sands of Yabrin (Bk) : so in the Ṣiḥāḥ : but some say that Wabār [Ibn Umaim (Tr, MDh)] is the name [of the progenitor] of an ancient people of the indigenous Arabs, that perished like 'Ad and Thamūd (AAz)—l. 13. Humaid Ibn Kais [alAsadī, their freedman (Nw),] alMakkī alA'raj (Nw, IHjr), the Reader, d. in or after 139 (IHjr). The A'raj celebrated for reporting Abū Huraira is 'Abd ArRaḥman Ibn Hurmuz alA'raj, a Madani Follower, a Kuraishi, freedman of Rabi'a Ibn AlḤarith Ibn 'Abd AlMuṭṭalib or of 'Umar Ibn Abi Rabi'a, d. 117, or, as is said, 110, the former being the true [date] (Nw)—l. 16. The Mu'adhhdhin Abū Ḥaiwa Shuraiḥ Ibn Yasīd alḤadramī alḤimṣī, d. 203 (IHjr)—l. 17. Ka'nab alTamīmī alKufī, of the 6th class of Traditionists, vid. those who were contemporary with the 5th, but are not authentically recorded as having met any of the Companions, like [the Follower of the Followers (Nw)] 'Abd AlMalik Ibn 'Abd Al'Azīz Ibn Juraij [alKuraishi (Nw)] alUmawī, their freedman, alMakkī, the Jurist, d. [149 (Nw),] 150, [151, or 160 (Nw),] being then past 70, or, as is said, past 100, which is not authentic (IHjr).

P. 703, ll. In some MSS ^{يوم} day is found instead of ^{يوم} in in both places (Mad). So too in the M, IY, AAz, and AKB. III. 56. The Sh, Mr. I. 152, YS. II. 205, MAD, and MKh. II. 105 have ^{يوم} يوم.

P. 704, l. 1. AlA'shà Maimūn (AKB)—l. 2. ISB says that Hayyān and Jābir were sons of 'Amīra of the Banū Ḥanīfa, and that Hayyān was a boon companion of AlA'shà (AKB)—l. 7. A freedman of [the Banū (IKhn)] Sulaim (IKhn, AKB), as is said (IKhn); or, as is said, one of the Banū Jadhīma Ibn Mālik Ibn Naṣr Ibn Ku'ain (AKB), of the Banū Asad Ibn Khuzaima (IKb, ID): and God knows! (IKhn). He was a born poet. The cause of the ode was that Rabi'a had praised Yazīd Ibn Usaīd, who was then Governor of Armenia, in an excellent poem; but Yazīd failed to reward him properly: whereas, when he praised Yazīd Ibn Ḥātim, the latter was extremely liberal to him (AKB).

P. 708, l. 1. Praising AnNu'mān Ibn AlMundhir (AKB)—l. 3-4 AZ transmits the saying of the Rājiz

وَيْسَا فِدَاؤُكَ يَا فَضَالَةَ * أَجْرُهُ الرَّمْحُ وَلَا تَهَالُ

(IY, AKB) Go on, let the people, or mankind, ransom thee, O Faḍāla! Make him trail the spear, and be not dismayed, where فِدَاؤُكَ has literally no ag.

but the ag. is understood from the context, i.e. لِيَفْدِكَ النَّاسُ and the like (AKB)—l. 17-19. فِدَاؤُكَ is a verbal n. transferred from the imp.

[187]. F says "It is unimp. because it implies the sense of the p., vid.

"the imp. ل, since فِدَاؤُكَ is constructively لِيَفْدِكَ; it is unimp.

"upon Kasr, because it denotes the imp., and the imp., when vocalized,

"is vocalized with Kasr [664]; and they pronounce it with Tauwin,

"because it is indet." (AKB).

P. 709, l. 20. See SB. I. 475.

P. 710, l. 22. مَكَانَكَ means اَلْزَمِ مَكَانَكَ keep thy place (R); [and so] مَكَانَكُمْ X. 29. means اَلْزَمُوا مَكَانَكُمْ keep your places (K, B): but these are explanations of the sense, not of the construction, otherwise the pre.n. in مَكَانَكَ and مَكَانَكُمْ would be a direct obj., an notadv.

P. 712, l. 16 and l. 17. "what" means "the state of the pron. a. ag., obj., or gen."

P. 714, l. 24. I do not know who Jahm was; and God knows! (AKB).

P. 715, ll. 5-6. The [whole] verse occurs in the poems of 2 poets, (1) 'Uwāif alKawāfi, i. e. 'Uwāif Ibn Mu'āwiya [alFazārī (KA)], a minor poet of the Umawī dynasty : (2) Suḥaim, or, as some name him, Ḥayya, the black Abyssinian slave of the Banu-l-Ḥaṣḥas, who, says Ibn Hishām in the SR, were of Asad Ibn Khuzaima, a [celebrated (Is)] converted poet, who reached heathenism and Al-Islām, and was killed in the Khilāfa of 'Uthmān; but in his poem the version is وَأَدْنَىٰ رِدْفِي And he that rode behind me cried (to the camels). And the 1st hemistich occurs in the beginning of a verse in an ode by Muḍarris Ibn Rib'ī.....Ibn Fak'as.....Ibn Asad Ibn Khuzaima, a good heathen poet, describing camels; and is followed by

وَقُلْنَ لِحَادِيهِنَّ عَلَّ أَنْتَ نَاطِرَةٌ

And said to their driver, Art thou waiting for him? (AKB)—l. 9. This is the meaning generally assigned; but some say that he means by the رِدْفِ his follower of the Jinn; for, when the rhymes crowded together in his mind, and whispered to him, men used to say he had a devil that whispered to him; and, in this case, the pron. in دُعَاهُنَّ belongs to the rhymes, i. e. My devil called the rhymes, and they answered him, and poured out upon him, meaning that Poetry obeyed him (AKB).

P. 722, l. 17. I am not acquainted with the name of the author of this verse (MN). Fr says, It was recited to me by one of the Banū 'Ukail (AKB)—l. 18. Al'Azd, or Al'Asd, was the father of a tribe of Al-Yaman, vid. Al'Azd Ibn AlGhauth Ibn Naḥt Ibn Mālik [Ibn Zaid (IKb, KAb, Dh)] Ibn Kaḥṭān Ibn Saba, one of whose branches was called أَزْدُ شُرْمَةٍ And Shaḥw'a, from شُرْمَةٌ meaning keeping aloof from pollutions; and sometimes, says ISk, ^{أَزْدٌ شَنْوَةٌ} Azd Shanūwa (AKB)— 20. This is the last of 5 verses by Yazīd Ibn ‘Amr Ibn Khuwailid as-Ṣa’ik al-Kilabī; but Al‘Aini says its author is ‘Abd Allāh Ibn Ya‘rub Ibn Mu‘āwiya Ibn ‘Ubāda Ibn Al-Bakkā [Rabī‘a (IKhn)] Ibn ‘Amir [Ibn Rabī‘a Ibn ‘Amir Ibn Ṣa‘ṣa’a (IKb, IKhn)]. It is generally related, [as by Al‘Aini in the MN and FA,] with ^{بِالْمَاءِ الْحَمِيمِ} with hot, [or as some say, cold (MN, FA),] water; but Thi and Z relate it with ^{بِالْمَاءِ} ^{الْفَرَسِ}, which perhaps is from another poem (AKB).

P. 723, l. 6. According to R, ^{قَبْلُ} and ^{قَبْلَ} mean the same, e.g. ^{قَبْلُ} ^{قَبْلُ} before (that), both being intended to be understood as pre.: but ^{قَبْلُ} is wrong because the post. is suppressed; while ^{قَبْلَ} is right because the post. is, as it were, expressed by means of the compensatory Tanwīn.

P. 724, l. 15. Part of a poem recited by Ma‘n Ibn Aus al-Muzani in the presence of Mu‘āwiya and ‘Abd Allāh Ibn al-Zubair (Mb. 357).

P. 725, l. 1. There is another version ^{قَبْلَ بَنِي مُزَاهِمٍ} Ta‘alla Ibn Mu‘āḥim (MN)—ll. 4-5. Read “with ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ}, [for ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ}] making it indeed, like ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ} ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ} ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ} [above], ^{مِنْ قَبْلِهِ} [below], and the like; but”
 —l. 14. “[the sign of] the nom. and acc.” here (R. II. 81, l. 5) is a loose expression for “Damm or the sign of the acc.”

P. 726, l. 15. And also, if it were pre., ^{مِنْ عَلَى} meaning from above we would be said, because the sense requires that, not ^{مِنْ عَلَى} (DM).

P. 728, l. 6. IBr says that this Rajaz is by Ghailān Ibn Ḥuraith ar-Raba‘ī; but I have not met with any information about Ghailān (AKB)—l. 7. The A’shā of Bahila was ‘Amir Ibn al-Ḥarith, a celebrated heathen poet, author of an elegy on his half-brother by his mother’s side, AlMuntashir Ibn Wahb, as AU says, or Ibn Hubaira Ibn Wahb, as As says (AKB).

P. 732, l. 7. On the clause "the saying ^{سأف} ^{أف} being a solecism" (p. 730, ll. 7-8) the DM has a Note to the same effect as this passage from the Fk; and from this Note the words "like R" have been abstracted.

P. 733, l. 18. The dem. "this", as appears from the Sn, may include the two usages of ^{أف} ^{سأف}, as an indet. ep. and as a prim. substantive.

P. 735, l. 20. See Mb. 698, ll. 2-6.

P. 736, l. 2. The n. of time is said to be in sense the adv. of the inf. n. of, i.e. implied by, the prop., because it denotes the time of the occurrence indicated by the inf. n., as LI. 13., where ^{أف} ^{سأف} denotes the time of their being burnt, contrary to IV. 50., where ^{أف} ^{سأف} does not denote the time of Our deforming. It is not in letter the adv. of the inf. n., because it is not governed in the acc. by that inf. n. [64].

P. 738, l. 19. This verse is from an ode by Abù ẖais [Ṣaifī (ID)] Ibn 'Āmir alĀslat Ibn Juṣham.....Ibn AlĀus [alĀnṣārī (AGh) alĀusī (Is)], a heathen poet. The author of the KA says his name has not come to my knowledge; but IHjr in the Is says his name was Ṣaifī or AlḤārith or 'Abd Allāh or Ṣirma or something else; [and the first 3 names are given in the AGh]. He died 10 months after the Hijra: or, [when the Prophet arrived at AlMadīna (Is),] he fled to Makka, and abode with ẖuraish until the year of the Conquest, [i.e. the year 8 (SR, LM)]. But Z attributes the verse to AshShammākh; some of the Commentators of S to a man of Kināna; and a learned foreigner to Abù ẖais Ibn Rifā'a alĀnṣārī. No one, however, called Abù ẖais Ibn Rifā'a is to be found in the Books of the Companions: but only 1 or 2 Companions called ẖais Ibn Rifā'a, the 1st being ẖais Ibn Rifā'a alĀnṣārī [alĀusī] alWāḳif, of the Banū Wāḳif, [whose name was Malīk (Nw),] Ibn Imra alẖais Ibn Malīk Ibn AlĀus, mentioned in the MSh; and the 2nd ẖais Ibn Rifā'a.....Ibn Numair alĀnṣārī, who was a poet, and, says IHjr, may perhaps be the same as the preceding (AKB). The name of Abū Kais Ibn Rifā'a alAnṣārī was Dīnār (Jsh).

P. 739, l. 8. Jj composed a Commentary, which he named the Mughnī, on the Idāh of F (HKh)—l. 18. This hemistich is from a long ode by AlFarazdaq satirizing Jarīr, of which we must mention two verses in order that its meaning may become manifest, vid.

أَنَا لَنَضْرِبَ رَأْسَ كُلِّ قَبِيلَةٍ • وَأَبُوكَ خَلْفَ أَثَائِهِ يَتَقَمَّلُ
يَهْزَأُ بِأَرَانِعِ عَقْدَةِ الْخَصَى * يَا ذَلَّ حَيْثُ يَكُونُ مِنْ يَنْذَلُّ

Verily we smite the head of every tribe; and thy father, behind his she-ass, kills lice. His squeeze with the thumb and forefinger crushes the small lice beside the testicles. O etc! The عَقْدَة is a mode of counting with the fingers of the two hands; and he means the عَقْدَةُ الثَّلَاثِينَ counting of thirty, which is effected by placing your thumb at the end of the fore-finger, i.e. by joining their tips, like the holder of a needle (AKB).

P. 743, l. 8. This text is somewhat garbled in the R (vol. II, p. 84, l. 19).

P. 745, ll. 10-11. بِغَيْرِهَا by something else (ML), i.e. مِنْ بِغَيْرِ (DM). Lane (p. 683, col. 2) says "by another prep.", thus making لَدَى in the subsequent ex. a prep.

P. 746, l. 14. Lane (p. 683, col. 3) has "where I saw Zeyd".

P. 747, ll. 6-7. كَذَا represents the 2 regs. of أَنْ, e.g. زَيْدًا قَائِمًا; and أَنْ with its 2 regs. is renderable by a single term, e.g. قَائِمًا زَيْدًا, post. to حَيْثُ, From the place, i.e. circumstance or fact, that Zaid is standing, i.e. of Zaid's standing, i.e. Whereas Zaid is standing, حَيْثُ place in مِنْ حَيْثُ أَنْ signifying circumstance or fact, like جَا place in the similar Persian expression از آنجا که From that place, i.e., circumstance or fact, that, i.e., Whereas—l. 11. An [excellent (KA, MN) Islāmi (AKB)] poet, contemporary with the Umawī and ‘Abbāsī dynasties (KA, MN, AKB), d. in the year 180 odd (AKB).

P. 755, l. l. Insert “but the 2 doctrines [of redundance and verification (DM)] are of no account, [because they involve the assertion of exclusion of a word from its well known meaning without any evidence (DM)] :” before “while.”

P. 756, ll 4-5. This is what determines that “the text” [in p. 755, l. l. and p. 756, l. 3] must be taken to refer to XLIII. 38. (DM); and not, as Lane (p. 39, col. 1, ll. 47-52) supposes, to II. 28.

P. 757, l. 12. I have seen in the KA what indicates that this verse is by ‘Abd Allāh Ibn AlMu’tazz; though its last hemistich is cited in the form of

وَالدَّارُ جَامِعَةٌ أَزْمَانٍ أَزْمَانًا

When the home was uniting us times and times [211]: but I have seen the verse attributed to one of the Arabs in the Nawādir of AZ, who cites it in the same form as IHsh; and AZ died before ‘Abd Allāh Ibn AlMu’tazz was born (SM). See KA. IX. 142.

P. 758, l. 3. See Md. II. 219 and P. II. 677.

P. 759, l. 16. I. e. Having already the sense, اَلْا now acquires the government, of اَنْ though the affixion of مَا (see p. 771, l. l.)—l. 19. The argument is that, the government of the apoc. by اَلْا not being explicable on the ground of composition, اَلْا must be an apocopative p.—ll. The author of the 2 verses [cited in § 589] is said [by S and others (AKB)] to be ‘Abd Allāh Ibn Hammām asSalulī (S, AKB), of the Banū Murra Ibn Ṣa’ṣa’a of Ḳais ‘Ailān, who are known as the Banū Salūl, their mother being Salūl Bint Dhuhl Ibn Shaibān Ibn Tha’laba, wife of Murra Ibn Ṣa’ṣa’a. This ‘Abd Allāh was an Islāmi poet of the Followers. The poet traces his lineage to Fahm [Ibn ‘Amr Ibn Ḳais Ibn ‘Ailān (IHb, IKb)] and Ashja’ [Ibn Raith Ibn Ghatafān Ibn Sa’d

Ibn Kais (IHb, IKb)], though he was of Salāl, because they were all of Kais [Ibn] 'Ailān Ibn Muḍar (AKB).

P. 760, l. 1. Dele the semicolon.

P. 761, l. 1. The construction of this text mentioned by IHsh does not occur in the language of Z (DM). [The latter indeed says on X. 22.,] It is as though He said ^{أَنَا رَحِيمُهُمْ مِنْ بَعْدِ ضَرِّ أَفْجَارٍ وَتَوَعُّدِ الْمَكْرِ} , ^{مِنْهُمْ} And, when We have mercy on them after a hardship, they suddenly fall to the occurrence of plotting proceeding from them (K); but the context shows that this is intended as an explanation of the sense of haste in the 2nd ^{أَنَا} , not of its op.

P. 764, l. 1. In XXX. 24. the 1st ^{أَنَا} is cond. (K); and the 2nd denotes suddenness of occurrence, and [therefore (B)] supplies the place of the ف in the correl. (K, B) of the 1st (B), [i.e.] of the condition (K) —l. 15. By Ka'b Ibn Zuhair (S). ^{أَنَا} is abstractive [1] (N). Translate I rouse in her (the she-camel), at the end of the night, a terrified wild bull, MDE's rendering in the text being a paraphrase.

P. 765, l. 18. This verse is from an ode containing more than 10 verses by 'Abd Kais Ibn Khufāf, of the Barājim, [a people of the children of Ḥanzala Ibn Mālik (KF),] an Islāmī [poet]; but I have seen these verses attributed to Ḥāritha Ibn Badr alGhudānī atTamīmī (SM).

P. 766, l. 18. An Islāmī poet. AHm says he was of the Banū Kināna Ibn AlKain.....Ibn Qudā'a, and lived 200 years; and he is mentioned by IHjr in the 1s among the converts, who reached the itme of the Prophet, and become Muslims, but saw him not (AKB); and AUd says he was a heathen (Is).

P. 769, l. 7. After "the ج" insert "of inception". Z and B also hold the ج in this text to be the ج of inception, for the same reason as in LXXV. 1. (see the Note on Vol. II, p. 116, l. 2); and they meet the objection that the ج of inception, when prefixed to the aor., gives the sense of the present with the reply that, when combined with سُوفَ , it is divested of the sense of the present, and denotes were corroborated [404], as the art. in يَا اللَّهُ [52] is divested of the sense of determination, and becomes a mere compensation for the Hamza of إِلَه : but IHsh declares that this is an unnecessary elaboration ; and asserts that the ج of the oath is sometimes necessary when the ن is disallowed, vid. when the aor. is conjoined with the p. of amplification, as in XIX. 67. (see the K and B on XIX. 67., and the ML on the ل).

P. 771, l. 10. The Banù Faḵ'as were a clan of the Banù Asad (T, AKB) Ibn Khuzaima. These verses are attributed also to 'Amr Ibn Asad alFaḵ'asī ; and God knows ! (AKB).

P. 772, l. 7. Abù Lailā is the surname of AlḤarith Ibn Zālim alMurri, a heathen (AKB)—ibid. The sense is دَامَ لِيَنْصُرَهُ (AKB).

P. 773, ll. 1, 5. The gen. after بَيْنَا in this verse, printed by Jahn (IY. 551) as the sole, and by Thorbecke (D. 64) as an alternative version, seems to be out of place here, because the discussion is about the propriety of introducing اِنَّ and اِلَّا into the correl. of بَيْنَا, which has a correl. only when it is pre., as in the version with the nom., to a prop. (see p. 778, ll. 8-10); not when it is pre., as in the version with the gen., to a single term—l. 10. It is related [by H in the D (IKhn, HH) on the authority of IKlb (D)] that 'Abd [or 'Umar (AGh, Is, CD), which perhaps is due to a mistake (Is, CD) in hearing (Is),] Ibn [Shariya (Is, CD) or] Sharya alJurhumī, who lived [240 or, as is said (AGh, Is, CD),] 300 years, and reached AlIslām, and became a Muslim, entered the presence of Mu'āwiya [Ibn Abi Sufyān (IKhn, HH)] in Syria, when he was Khalifa. Then said Mu'āwiya to him "Tell me the most wonderful of what thou hast seen." He said "I passed one day by some people burying a dead man of theirs; and, when I had come up to them, mine eyes filled with tears, and I quoted the saying of the poet." [Here follow 6 verses, of which the two in the text are the 4th and 5th.] "Then said a man to me 'Dost thou know who is the author "of this poem?' I said 'No, [by God, except that I have been "reciting it for a long time! (HH)]'. He said '[By Him thou swearest

 "by (HH),] verily the author of it is this [companion of ours (HH)], "'whom we have buried at this hour!'".....Then said Mu'āwīya to him "Verily thou hast seen a wonder: then who was the dead man?"
 He said "[He was (D, HH)] 'Ithyar Ibn Labīd al'Udhri" (D, IKhn, HH. II. 119). But to this there is the objection that [the corpse on the bier and (SM)] the author of the verses was a man of [the Banū (CD)]
 'Udhra called Huraith Ibn Jabala (SM, CD); and that [fact] is positively asserted by Z in the Exposition of the Evidentiary Verses of S (SM). 'Abd lived till the Khilāfa of 'Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān (Is, CD).

P. 774, l. 7. I. e. the full phrase in ^{9 9 9}قَدْ قَامَ بِهَا (see p. 776, l. 3).

P. 776, l. 13. After "ps.," insert "[While etc, lo, he saw Hind,]"
 —l. 21. alJurabi, of Juraib Ibn Sa'd Ibn Hudhail, a heathen poet (AKB)—l. 23. ^{9 9 9}قُتِلَتْ كُتْلًا Kutā'idā, [as is said (MI, AKB) by ISB (AKB),] is a [well known (ZJ, MI, N) narrow (AKB)] mountain-road (ZJ, MI, N, AKB): but As says that every mountain-road is a ^{9 9 9}قُتْلًا; and, according to his saying, its triptote declension [in the verse] is not due to poetic license (AKB).

P. 779, l. 8. A minor Islāmi poet (KA), reckoned by MIS in the 2nd class of the Poets of AlIslām (AKB). He was a Christian (KA, AKB), and then became a Muslim; and he was the sister's son of AlAkhtal (AKB). IAl says that the first thing mentioned of him is that he arrived at Damascus in the Khilāfa of AlWalīd Ibn 'Abd AlMalik, or, as is said, of 'Umar Ibn 'Abd Al'Azīz (KA)—l. 14. Of the Banu-Iḥārith Ibn Hammām [Ibn Murra Ibn Dhuhl Ibn Shaibān ash-Shaibāni (T)], a Ṣaḥābi poet, mentioned by IHjr in the Is (AKB).

P. 781, ll. 15-16. See the whole poem at pp. 568-569 of the SR.

P. 784, l. 20. Its author is said by Jh to be Abu-nNajm; and by some to be Ru'ba Ibn Al'Ajjāj, but it is not in his Dīwān (MN): and AZ says in his Nawādir that MD said "Abu-lGhāl recited it to me as by one of the people of AlYaman" (MN, AKB); but Akh says in the Exposition of the Nawādir that AHm said "I asked AU about these "verses, and he said, 'Put a mark upon them: this is a forgery of MD'" (AKB).

P. 785, l. 9. For "red." read "red."—l. 14. The reference is to p. 568, l. 15.

P. 786, l. 19. K1 says that Rauḥ recited this poem in the presence of 'Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān (MN). Rauḥ is mentioned by some among the Companions: but Companionship is not correctly attributable to him; though he may have been born in the time of the Prophet, for his father was a Companion. He is mentioned in the 2nd class of the Followers of the people of Syria; and is said to have been a Governor over Palestine. He died in 84 (Is).

P. 787, l. 11. For "bears" read "hears"—l. 20. Read "the Banū Tamīm".

P. 788, l. 19. From a Rajaz in the Nawādir of AZ, who heard it from the Arabs (AKB).

P. 791, l. 5. The celebrated poet (MAd).

P. 794, l. 3. 'Ifāḥ Ibn Murayy [alKushairī, who had taken up his abode in the neighbourhood of Bāhila (AKB),] was seized in a famine by AlAḥḍab Ibn 'Amr alBāhili, who roasted and ate him (KF, AKB).

مَرَى with Damm of the م, Faṭḥ of the , , and reduplication of the م (AKB): مَرَى (KF)—l. 4. عَنَقَاء is fem. of عَنَق, and means Long-necked.

Sgh says, عَنَقَاء is Calamity, as طَارَتْ بِهٖ الْعَنَقَاء Calamity flew away with him, being orig. a Great Bird known in name, unknown in body. AHm says in the Book of Birds, As for الْمَغْرِبَةُ الْعَنَقَاء, it is Calamity, not one of the birds that we know. And ID says, ^{عَنْقَاءٌ مُغْرَبٌ} is a phrase that has no foundation [in fact]: it is said to be [the name of] a Great Bird seen only [once] in ages; but was so frequently used that they named Calamity ^{عَنْقَاءٌ مُغْرَبٌ}, as

وَلَوْلَا سُلَيْمَانُ الْخَلِيفَةُ حَلَقَتْ • بِهِ مِنْ يَدِ الْحَبَّاجِ عَنْقَاءٌ مُغْرَبٌ

And, but for Sulaimān the Khalīfa, a calamity from the hand of AlḤajjāj would have soared away with him. And ^{عَنْقَاءٌ مُغْرَبٌ} is an act. part. from ^{أَغْرَبَ الرَّجُلُ فِي الْبَلَدِ} when he goes far in them by incessant journeying; and is ep. of ^{عَنْقَاءٌ}, meaning far-flying: Sgh says that the ʾ of feminization is elided in the same way as in ^{نَاقَةٌ ضَامِرٌ} A lank-bellied she-camel, i.e. ^{ذَاتُ ضَمَرٍ} possessed of lankness in the belly [312]; and so Z explains the masculinization of the ep.: but ^{مُغْرَبَةٌ} also is said (AKB).

P. 795, ll. 1-2. IS is followed by his pupil F, who is followed by his pupil IJ and by [another pupil] Abd (BS)—l. 22. For “v.” read “v.”

P. 798, l. 18. By [‘Abd Allāh] Ibn Hammām asSalūlī (S).

P. 800, l. 22. Abū Abd ArRaḥmān ‘Abd Allāh Ibn Ḥabīb asSulamī (IKb, IATH, IHjr, TH, TKh) alKūfī (IKb, IHjr, TH), the Reader (IKb, IHjr, TH, TKh) of Al‘Irāq (TKh), one of the companions of ‘Alī (IKb), studied under ‘Uthmān and Ibn Mas‘ūd (TKh), taught Reading 40 years (TH, TKh), d. after 70 (IHjr, TH), in 74 (TKh), in 92 (TH), or in 105 at the age of 90 (IATH, TH).

P. 801, l. 19. The reference is to pp. 85, l. 21—86, l. 12.

P. 802, ll. 14-15. If the n. were not complete, the verbal prop. would be its ep. [44]; and, if this prop. did not contain the pron. of the cond. n., it could be neither enunc. [27], nor ep. [144], of the latter.

P. 803, l. 15. The reference is to vol. II, p. 679, ll. 13-17.

P. 805, ll. 5-14. According to S, كَيْفٌ is an adv.; but, according to Akh and Sf, it is a non-adverbial n. (ML).

P. 810, l. 6.

لَا جَعْلَنَ لَابْنَةِ عَثْمَ فَنَّا * مِنْ أَيْنَ عِشْرُونَ لَهَا مِنْ أَنَّى

I will assuredly make for the daughter of 'Uthmān a sort (of altercation), or a wonderful matter. From where has she twenty (camels), from where? This verse is from a poem in the Rajaz metre transmitted from Th by Akh in the Exposition of the Diwān of AZ. Akh says, Mb and Th say that by عَثْمَ he means عَثْمَانُ; but elides the ا and ن by poetic license, and pronounces its initial with Fath to indicate what is elided; and Th says that by فَنَّا he means a sort (of altercation). ISk says that these verses were a satire on a Collector of the poor-rate. And Sf says, The Rajaz is by Mudrik Ibn Ḥuṣain; فَنَّا means a wonderful matter; and عِشْرُونَ means twenty (camels) (AKB).

P. 815, l. 10. And (c) أَرْمَانَ أَرْمَانَ times (and) times, says IJ (AKB. III. 346), as in the hemistich cited in the Note on p. 757, l. 12—l. 18. Ibn Ḥujr alKindī (Jsh). The poets named Imra alḲais are many, among them Imra alḲais Ibn Ḥujr alKindī, Imra alḲais Ibn 'Ānis alKindī, and Imra alḲais Ibn Mālik anNumairī (Mr).

P. 816, l. 13. By Dābi Ibn AlḤārith [atTamīmī (AKB)] alBurjumi (Lane, p. 1380, col. 3), of the Banū Ghālib Ibn Ḥanzāla, who reached the Prophet, and died in prison in the time of 'Uthmān. AlBurjumi is a rel. n. to the Barājim, who are 6 clans of the children of Ḥanzāla Ibn Mālik Ibn Zaid Manāt Ibn Tamīm, vid. Ḳais, 'Amr, Ghālib, Kulfa, Zūlaim, [sons of Ḥanzāla (IKb, ID),] and Mukāshir, who received the cognomen of AlBarājim because a man of them named Ḥāritha Ibn 'Āmir said to them "Come; then let us combine like the بُرَاجِمُ anger.

joints, [the sing. of which is ^{بِرْجَمَةٍ} (ID),] of this my hand ;" whereupon they did so, and were then named ^{أَلْبُرْجَمُ}, which are the joints of the fingers, 3 in each finger (AKB).

P. 817, l. 1. By AlFarazdaq (AKB).

P. 818, l. 7. Al'Amrī, one of the Banū 'Amr Ibn AlḤārith Ibn Tamīm Ibn Sa'd Ibn Hudhail, an Islāmī poet; a convert, according to what is mentioned in the Is on the authority of AlMarzubānī ; but, according to the KA, a poet of the Umawī dynasty, one of their eulogists, who composed odes on 'Abd AlMalik Ibn Marwān and 'Abd Al'Azīz Ibn Marwān, with the latter of whom he abode long in Egypt (AKB).

P. 819, ll. 4-5, 13, 21. See HH. I. 326.

P. 822, ll. 13-15. I.e. S makes it uninfl. in both members, but Z only in the 1st member.

P. 823, l. 16. See the Note on p. 14, l. 1—ll. 17-18. Saif adDaula Abu-IḤasan 'Alī Ibn 'Abd Allāh Ibn Ḥamdān atTaghlabī, who became chief of Aleppo in 333, [and before that was chief of Wāsiṭ and those regions (ITB),] b. 301 or 303, d. 356 (IKhn, ITB). His sister Khaula died in 352 (ITB).

P. 826, l. 1. Of the Madīd [metre] (MN). ^{نَعِيمٌ} is post to ^{سَوْنَةٌ} (DM): but ^{نَعِيمٌ} would violate the metre ; and I think that ^{نَعِيمٌ سَوْنَةٌ} is like ^{أَعَاذَاتُ الْعَظِيمِ} (see pp. 363, 463, 489), meaning and how many prosperous men, subjects (see the next Note).

P. 829, l. 1. This verse, where the sp. of ^{كَمْ} occurs pl. and sing., combines both constructions (DM) ; and, but for the pluralization of the pron. in the enunc. ^{بَادِرًا} [222], I should have translated the 2nd hemistich and how many a prosperous subject (literally a prosperous man, a subject) has perished !

P. 830, l. 22. After "riding-beast" insert an Italicized note of admiration—l. 24. The sp. of كَم is مَحْدُودِيًّا (AAz, MN); and the phrase is constructively كَم مَحْدُودِيًّا غَارَهَا مِنْ الْأَرْضِ دُونَهُ (AAz): or rather, as I suppose, the sp. is بَقَعَةٌ or the like suppressed, qualified by مَحْدُودِيًّا غَارَهَا, the full phrase being كَم دُونَهُ بَقَعَةٌ مِنْ الْأَرْضِ مَحْدُودِيًّا غَارَهَا, otherwise it is difficult to account for the gender of the pron. attached to غَارُ, which is the ag. of مَحْدُودِيًّا.

P. 831, l. 7. Its author is said to be Dhu-r-Rumma; but I have not found it in his Diwān (MN)—l. 12. The verse occurs anonymously in the S and M; and not one of their Commentators [except IY] has attributed it to its author: but [IY followed by] Al'Aini says it is by AlFarazdaq; and God knows! (AKB)—l. 15. This is one of some verses attributed by the author of the KA to Anas Ibn Zunsim alKināni, a Ṣaḥābī poet, who said them to 'Ubaid Allāh Ibn Ziyād Ibn Sumayya, Governor of Al'Irāk, [l. 67 (IKb, IATH)]: so say the author of the KA, the Expositors of the verses of S, and the Commentators of the Jumal. And the 1st verse [with a different version] is cited by R in the Commentary on the SH to show that يَدْعُ, pret. of يَدْعُ has been heard [482]. The verses have also been attributed to 'Abd Allāh Ibn Kuraiz, and to Abu-l-Aswad adDu'alī; and God knows! (AKB)—ll. 23-25. This means that, when the sp. of the interrog. كَم would, if كَم were not separated from it, be governed in the gen. [224], it is treated, when كَم is separated from it, in the same way as the sp. of the separated enunciatory كَم.

P. 834, l. 7. Read "Banū".

P. 840, l. 7. 'Umar, or Muḥammad, [or 'Abd Allāh (Dh),] Ibn 'Abd ArRaḥmān Ibn Muḥaiṣin [asSaḥmī (IHjr)], the Reader [of the people (IHjr)] of Makka (Dh, IHjr), who studied reading under Mujāhid (Iḥ), d. 123 (IHjr)—l. 16. The IY (p. 587, l. 14) has كَيْتٌ and ذَيْتٌ without repetition.

P. 841, ll. 9-12. IBr says, This distinction is the opinion of Th and his followers ; while Khl and S and their followers make no distinction between them : and H sometimes forgets what he says here, for he says in his Maḳāmāt فَفَتَقُوا مِنْ كَيْتٍ وَكَيْتٍ وَأَمَّا أَضْحَكُهُمْ خَبَرُ ذَيْتٍ ذَيْتٍ, Then they burst out laughing at such and such a story, and only the announcement of such and such an affair made them laugh (CD). See H. 235, where, however, I do not find وَأَمَّا أَلْحُ. Thorbecke (D. 99) omits the , throughout, printing كَيْتٌ كَيْتٌ and ذَيْتٌ ذَيْتٌ ; but the Constantinople ed. (p. 60) and the CD (p. 143) give it.

P. 842, ll. 20-21. As

كَانَ بَيْنَ فَمِّهَا وَالْفَكِّ • فَارَةً مَسْكٍ ذُبِحَتْ فِي سَكِّ

(IY, R), by Manẓūr Ibn Marthad alAsadī, praising a woman for fragrance of the mouth, As though between her jaw and the jaw were a bag of musk slit open in perfume of the kind called سَكِّ (AKB), meaning بَيْنَ فَمِّهَا between her two jaws (IY, AKB). Manẓūr Ibn Marthad, also called Ibn Ḥabba, Ḥabba being his mother, was a Rājiz of the Banū Asad Ibn Khuzaima (AKB). سَكِّ (IY) : سَكِّ with Damm of the س (AKB). In vol. II, p. 690, l. 1, read “Ḥabba”.

P. 843, l. 4. الدَّامُ is a dial. var. of الدَّمُ (AKB)—l. 5. A heathen poet. Zimmān [Ibn Mālik Ibn Ṣaʿb Ibn ʿAlī Ibn Bakr Ibn Waʿil in Rabīʿa (IḤb)] was one of the poet's ancestors, and was of the Banū Ḥanīfa (AKB) ; [or more correctly] the Banū Zimmān were of Mālik Ibn Ṣaʿb, but were reckoned among [their cousins] the Banū Ḥanīfa Ibn Luḡaim Ibn Ṣaʿb (IKb).

P. 845, l. 17. By AlKumait Ibn Tha'labā (Md, AKB) alAsadī, a Faḳ'asī Asadī Islāmī poet, called AlKumait alAkbar, grand-father of AlKumait Ibn Ma'rūf Ibn AlKumait alAkbar. He became a Muslim in the time of the Prophet, but did not join him; and is mentioned by IHjr in the Is among the Converts on the authority of AU and AlMarzubānī (AKB). He has elided the ة from فُؤَادٍ as it is elided in curtailment, although this is in the non-voc. [58]; or he may have meant مِنْ فُؤَادِي, and then lightened the ي of relation (Md)—l. 18. The Banū Fazāra are taunted with eating the penis of the he-ass (AKB). The story is that 3 men joined company together, a Fazārī, a Taghlabt, and a Kilābt. They found a [wild (AKB)] he-ass; and, when the Fazārī had gone away on one of his needs, they cooked and ate, but kept the yard of the he-ass for the Fazārī. On his return, they said to him "We have kept for thee [thy share (AKB)]: then eat". So he set about eating [it (Md)], but was [almost (Md)] unable to swallow it. Then [said he "Was all the roast-meat of the he-ass a penis?"; and (Md)] they began to laugh. Then he perceived [the trick played upon him]; and took the sword, [and went up to them (AKB)], and said "Ye "shall assuredly eat [of (AKB)] it, or I will [surely (Md)] slay you" (Md, AKB). Then they refused; so he smote one of them, and killed him; and the other took it, and ate of it (AKB). For Md's ending of the story see the Note on p. 588, ll. 18-19—l. 19.—The 1st Fazāra is the tribe of Fazāra, and the 2nd is their eponymous ancestor.

P. 846, l. 2. Khiṭām, or Bishr, Ibn Naṣr, of the Banu-lAbyaḍ Ibn Mujāshi' Ibn Dārim, the Rājiz (AKB).

P. 849, l. 9. مَلِيَّان (M): مَلِيَّان and مَلِي (IY): مَلِيَّان and مَلِي (Mb. 59)—l. 21. See Md. I. 151 and P. I. 301.

P. 850, l. 20. عَد (A).

P. 851, l. 7. مَوَدَّ قَرَأ (IA): مَوَدَّ قَرَأ Excellent reader (R).

P. 852, l. 19. عَاشُرُونَ (A), apparently a misprint.

P. 853, l. 1. This verse is the last of an ode composed by AlFarazdaq at the end of his life, when repenting towards God of his excesses in his satirizing people; and in it he blames Iblīs for having misled him in his youth (AKB).

P. 854, l. 1. The du. pron. relates to Iblīs and his son (AKB) —l. 3. By “the barker” he means the poet that applies himself to satire and abuse; and like it is “the howler” (AKB) —ll. 4-5. ذُو being orig. ذِي, its du. ought to be ذِيًّا, but is ذُو; so that its ى is not restored: while the du. of ذَاتُ, orig. ذِرَاتُ, like ذِرَاةٌ, is ذِرَاتَا; so that the ى, i.e. the ا substituted for the ي, is restored. R in another place (vol. I, p. 266) says “The ى of ذُو is a ي, as is proved by ذِرَاتَا and ذِرَاتُ, “because the eat. of طَوَيْتُ is more numerous than that of الْقَرَّةُ, and to “make it accord with the most prevalent is better”; and “the ع is “elided in ذَاتُ from frequency of usage” —l. 20. Abū Bilāl Mirdās Ibn ‘Amr Ibn Ḥudair [alḤanzalī (IAth)], of [the Banū (ID)] Rabī‘a Ibn Ḥanzala [Ibn Mālik Ibn Zaid Manāt Ibn Tamīm (Mb)], was known, like his brother ‘Urwa, as Ibn Udayya, she being a [heathen (Mb)] grandmother of theirs (IKb, ID). He revolted against ‘Ubaid Allāh Ibn Ziyād (ID), and was killed in 61 (IAth). ‘Urwa was killed by ‘Ubaid Allāh Ibn Ziyād (IKb, IAth) in 58 (IAth). For “Udayya” [in vol. II, p. 142, l. 15] one MS [of the D] has “Udhaina,” which is correct (CD). ‘Urwa Ibn Udhaina alLaithī, [of the Banū Laith, a Kinānī (T).] alḤijāzī, the celebrated poet, d. about 130 (FW) —l. 21. ID, who is the authority in this matter, attributes the verse to ‘Alī Ibn Baddāl Ibn Sulaim; and God knows! (AKB).

P. 855, l. 12. Attributed by Sgh to Shu‘ba Ibn [‘Umar (Is) or] Kumair [aṭṬuhawī, a heathen (Is), or] a converted poet, who [reached Allāh (Is), and] believed in the time of Prophet, but did not see him mentioned by IHjr in the Is among the Converts (AKB). One of the 2 ف is red., as in وَلَا تَجْزَعِي أَلَمَ [62,540] (AAz)—l. 20. alKalbr, an Islāmi poet (AKB).

P. 856, l. 17. By AlFarazdaq, satirizing Jarir, whom he ridicules, and makes out to be a woman. He likens each half of the فَهْمُ [mentioned 2 verses before, and] here meaning vulva, to the face of a Turk, the Turks being coarse, broad, and red in the face (AKB)—l.l. The Mother of the Believers (Is), Ḥaṣṣa Bint 'Umar Ibn AlKhattāb, is said to have been born [when Quraysh were building the House (Nw),] 5 years before the Mission [of the Prophet (Nw)]; was married by the Apostle of God [after 'Ā'isha (Is)] in the year 2 or 3, [the latter date being preferable (Is)]; and died in the year 27, [28 (Nw),] 41, 45, (Nw, Is), 47, or 50, at the age of 60 (Nw). Between the Hijra and the birth of the Apostle of God were 53 years 2 months and 8 days; between the Hijra and the Mission of the Apostle of God were 13 years 2 months and 8 days; and between the Hijra and the death of the Apostle of God were 9 years 11 months and 22 days (AF). The Hijra is the beginning of the Islāmi era (Nw, AF); and the first [person] that dated by the Hijra was 'Umar Ibn AlKhattāb in the year 17 of the Hijra (Nw). The Hijra occurred (AF, TKh) in the 14th year of the Mission (TKh), when AlMuḥarram, Ṣafar, and 8 days of Rabī' alAwwal had elapsed. So, when they resolved upon founding [the era of] the Hijra, they went back 68 days, and made the beginning of the era the 1st of AlMuḥarram of this year. Then they computed from the 1st of AlMuḥarram to the last day of the Prophet's life, and it was 10 years and 2 months; whereas, when his age is really reckoned from the Hijra, he is found to have lived 9 years 11 months and 22 days after it, [the difference between the 2 periods being 2 months and 8 days, i.e. 68 days] (AF). [But the assertion that the period from the 1st of AlMuḥarram in the year of the Hijra to the last day of the Prophet's life was 10 years and 2 months is difficult to reconcile with the statement that] he died (God bless him, and give him peace !) in the forenoon, [or, as is said, at midday (AF),] on Monday, when 12 nights were left, [i.e. on the 18th,] of Rabi' alAwwal in the year 11 [of the Hijra (Nw), i.e. 10 years 2 months and 18 days from, and including, the 1st of AlMuḥarram in the year of the Hijra]. He died at the age of 63, the [most correct and (Nw)] best-known [opinion]; or, as is said, 65 or 60 (Nw, AF). The preferable opinion is that he was sent [on his Apostolic Mission] at 40 years, and abode in Makka calling [the unbelievers] to AlIslām 13 years and a fraction, and abode at AlMadīna after the Hijra nearly 10 years; and that is 63 years and some fractions (AF). If, then, Ḥafṣa was born 5 years before the Mission, she was 18 or a little more at the beginning of the Hijrī era; so that, if she lived 60 years, she died in 41.

P. 857, ll. 25-26. The truth is that these 2 verses are from a Rajaz by Khiṭām alMujāshi'i, an Islāmi poet; not by Hinaẓan Ibn Kuḥāfa (AKB) the Rājiz (ID).

P. 859, l. 8. Abū 'Aṭā was a contemporary of the 2 dynasties: he praised the Banū Umayya and the Banū Hāshim (KA). Yazīd Ibn 'Umar Ibn Hubaira [alFazārī (ITB), b. 87 (IKhn)], governor of the 2 'Irāqs for Marwān Ibn Muḥammad Ibn Marwān Ibn AlḤakam [alQurashtī (TKh) alUmayyī (IKhn, TKh) adDimashqī (TKh), known as alJa'dī, and nicknamed AlḤimār (IKhn), the last Khalifa of the Banū Umayya (IKhn, TKh), b. 72 (TKh) or 76 (Tr, IATH, ITB)], a. 127, k. 132 at the age of [58 (MDh),] 59, [62 (IATH, MAB), 69 (MDh, IATH), or 70 (MDh)], was put to death by Abū Ja'far alManṣūr, [afterwards Khalifa,] at Wāsiṭ in 132 in violation of a capitulation (IKb). The advice of Abū Ja'far was to keep faith with him; but Abū Ja'far's brother Abu-l'Abbās 'Abd Allāh asSaffāḥ Ibn Muḥammad [alQurashtī (TKh) alHāshimī (ITB) al'Abbāsī (ITB, TKh), the 1st Khalifa of the Banu-l'Abbās (FW, ITB), b. 108 (FW, TKh)], a. 132, d. [135 or (TKh)] 136 [at the age of 27 (TKh), 28 (Tr, IATH, FW, TKh), 29 (MDh), 32 (TKh), 33 (Tr, MDh, IATH, MAB, ITB, TKh), or 36 (Tr, IATH)], insisted upon Abū

Ja'far's putting him to death (IKhn). Marwān was called AlJa'da [because he had learnt (Iath, MAB)] from [his preceptor and master (TKh)] AlJa'd Ibn Dirham (Iath, MAB, TKh) the doctrines of the Creation of the Qur'an and of Predestination (Iath, MAB), etc. (Iath) : and he was known as AlḤimār because of his bravery, from the saying قُلَانُ أَصْبَرُ مِنْ حِمَارٍ فِي الْحَرْبِ Such a one is more patient than a he-ass in war ; for he used not to flag in waging war upon the rebels against him, and was the bravest of the Banū Umayya (TKh). It is said that AlJa'd Ibn Dirham published his doctrine of the Creation of the Qur'an in the days of Hishām Ibn 'Abd AlMalik, under whose order he was put to death by Khālid alQasrī, governor of Al'Irāk (Iath). The Wāsiṭ of Al'Irāk was founded by AlḤajjāj Ibn Yūsuf athThaḳaṭī between AlKufa and AlBaṣra ; and for that reason was named Wāsiṭ, because it was intermediate between the 2 cities, [the distance from it to each being 50 parasangs (MI), i.e. leagues] : it was begun by him in 84, and finished in 86 (Mk)—l. 12. The 1st hemistich is

حُشَايَ عَلَى جَبَرٍ ذَنْبِي مِنَ الْغَضَا

My heart is on glowing embers of the wood called غَضَا ; and the verse is from an ode by AlMutanabbī : W says (AKB), He says My heart is on glowing embers from passion, i.e. on account of their bidding farewell and their departing ; and mine eye is revelling in the face of the beloved in a garden of beauty (W, AKB). مِنْ الْغَضَا (W) مِنْ أَهْوَى .

P. 860, ll. 2-3. بَطْنُ عَاقِلٍ The bottom, or low land, of 'Āqil is [a place (MI)] on the road of the pilgrims of AlBaṣra between Rāmātān and (Mk, MI) Āmirra (Mk) [or] Immara (MI)—l. 4. 'Āqil is said to be a mountain (Bk, ZJ) that Ḥujr, the father of Imra alQais, used to dwell in (Bk). The author of the Mk, after enumerating 8 places named 'Āqil, the 2nd of which he describes as "a mountain that the "children of [Ḥujr (KA)] Ākil alMurār, the ancestor of Imra alQais, "used to stop in", adds "But I do not find myself confident that they "are 8 [separate] places ; and perhaps there is some intermixture in them"—l. 8. See Md. II. 182 and P. II. 598—ll. 16-17. The R (vol. II, p. 142, l. l.) has "either because repetition of the v. is made a "substitute for dualization of the ag.", which, though it occurs in all 3 eds., I have ventured to invert—ll. 19-20. The 2 Indian eds. of the R₂ (vol. ii, p. 143, l. 2) have صاحبہ his companion ; but the Persian ed. has صاحبہ his 2 companions.

P. 861, l. 1. تسمیة جز باسم کل naming a part by the name of a whole (R), i.e., putting a whole for a part, as penes for penis and testicles for two testicles in the exs. given—l. 3. Read "two testicles" and "substitutions."

